THE CITY BOARD OF HEALTH.

The report that the Salem board of health contemplates resigning has caused some discussion.

It is to be hoped the local board will not take any rash or hasty action. Neither should the gentlemen on the board grow impatient because they have so little authority to enforce their rules, findings and regulations.

This is not a metropolis where all these modern scientific departments are fully established. It took five years of agitation and discussion to get a high school established in this city.

It will take several years to get the first street paved, if it can be done then without an injunction suit.

The members of the city board of health should be thankful that they have not been made parties to such a proceeding.

Let them patiently perform their public duty in their present offices with what pay, power and authority they have.

Better times are in store for all of us. We have a high school. We will have paved streets and a highly-organized health department some time. Let us hope and wait and watch and pray.

Salem people have some unhappy recollections of the state board of health.

One Dr. Woods Hutchinson gave this city an advertisement from the evil effects of which it will not soon recover.

Let us not lose faith in the future of our city because of these things.

INDIAN EDUCATION.

The Indian educators held an important convention or institute at Portland the past month.

These Pacific Coast institutes are growing in importance and have rendered a real service to the cause of Indian education.

The men and women engaged in this labor of love—for all are to some extent isolated—are meeting their duties bravely.

Their problems are complicated with the questions growing out of the relations of two races.

They must face not only the subject of educational processes, but the industrial, moral and civic phases of life and usefulness of the Indians.

Industrial work has been enlarged in the Indian schools until its preeminence and success have begun to attract the attention of all American educators.

It is a question whether the average Indian boy or girl who has gone through a first-class industrial school as conducted by the government is not better equipped for the struggles of life than one from a school for the white race.

The problems of discipline are made far more difficult in the Indian schools by the admixture of white blood.

To make useful, self-supporting men and women—good citizens—out of the boys and girls from the reservations and frontier internarrages is the purpose of the Indian training schools.

This work is carried on intelligently and conscientiously and progressively by the department of Indian affairs. But the greatest share of the credit belongs to the officers and teachers of the schools.

Just for Fun.

The Road to Wealth

It is easy to follow if you will only HAVE A PART OF YOUR INCOME.

Study the career of almost any man who has made his mark. You will find that if he had spent all his earnings in early life, he could not have taken advantage of the opportunities that came to him. And when you look for the opportunities that came to him, you will find that they didn't come, but the man MADE them. The spirit possessed by one who resolves to save and DOUBT IT, enables him to MAKE opportunities, while others WAIT for them.

BEGIN NOW by starting a savings account. One dollar will open an account.

Downfall of Addicks. (Washington Post.) According to apparently trustworthy reports from Delaware, the 17-year fight of J. Edward Addicks is at an end. He is no nearer the United States senate than he was at first, and he cannot keep up the fight, as his only argument—money—is lacking. The best accounts are to the effect that Addicks' supporters are dropping away from him as iron shingles drop from a magnet when the current is turned off. The attraction of gold is lacking.

The routing of Addicks marks the end of one of the most interesting campaigns in American politics. It was an out-and-out test, from first to last, of corruption against decency for the highest office in Delaware. Addicks was never regarded, even by his friends, as a fit man to succeed the great sons of Delaware in the United States senate. His sole strength was money. So long as his money lasted he employed it with a tenacity of purpose that made him notorious. Such persistence in a better cause would have won him fame. His tireless quest of the senatorship, in view of the methods he employed, made a nuisance of a honest virtue. If it be true that his collapse is final, a sigh of relief will go up from many states where men of the Addicks stamp had taken heart from his astonishing pertinacity.

W. E. Chandler, of Lebanon, was held up and robbed of a small amount of money Thursday evening on his way home from Albany. The hold-up occurred about 6 o'clock in the evening, and there were two of the robbers. No clue has been secured as yet.

Johannie Barker, a car repairer, was run over by the tender of the engine in the Southern Pacific yards at Roseburg and sustained injuries that several hours later caused his death. The Stage American. (From the London Saturday Review.) A real American would have helped the play in place of that ridiculous stock-figure which on the English stage has for so many years done duty for American men. Always blatant, always cool, always resourceful, always ready with dreadful furnishings in the manner of Max Adeler, that stock-figure duly created its joints under the label of "Hawthorne, U. S. A." Thirty years ago, before the development of steamship navigation, it was natural enough that English playwrights should be content with this figure. But nowadays, when London, throughout every summer, is overflowing with real Americans, it certainly does seem strange that our playwrights can give us nothing better than this one old battered simulacrum.

So far as I know, the one playwright who has made no attempt to portray an American from actual experience of Americans is Mr. Bernard Shaw. Hector Malone, in "Man and Superman," is an admirable study. Not alone has Mr. Shaw used his ears, and delicately reproduced typical modern American peculiarities of speech, instead of offering us a jargon which is as remote as starred and striped waistcoats from reality, he has also entered thoroughly into a typical modern American soul.

FRAUD EXPOSED. A few counterfeiters have lately been making and trying to sell imitations of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and other medicines, thereby defrauding the public. This is to warn you to beware of such people, who seek to profit, through stealing the reputation of remedies which have been successfully curing disease for over 25 years. A sure protection to you is our name on the wrapper. Look for it, on all Dr. King's, or Bucklen's remedies, as all others are mere imitations. H. E. BUCKLEN & CO. Chicago, Ill., and Windsor, Canada. For sale by J. C. Perry, Salem.

A Japanese Test. In Japan it appears that one factor entering into the choice of a daughter-in-law is her skill in raising silkworms. There is more to this than appears on the surface of the statement, for it seems that the thread spun by a silkworm is regular and even in proportion, as the worm has been regularly and carefully fed. The prospective mother-in-law carefully and minutely examines the garments of the aspiring bride, judging of her qualifications by their condition.

Commencing September 1st. The Southern Pacific will sell special tickets to Portland and return, account Lewis and Clark exposition; rate: One and one-third fare for round trip, $1.85. Limit: Thirty days, but not later than October 31, 1905.
