

NEW YORK FASHIONS

New York, Sept. 2.—There are certain materials which never go out of fashion. Lace is one of them. It seems as if this popular material is to more the rage than ever this winter for gowns and wraps.

A gown made entirely of lace is not always effective, and as a consequence the dressmakers are combining it with other materials or with some other lace. The smartest effects are obtained in this manner. Embroidered batiste or linen combined with lace is always charming. Two kinds of lace; a heavy and a light quality, will produce some beautiful results, and chiffon lace is still popular.

As said before, simplicity is to be the keynote in the coming fashions, and in lace gowns marks the smartest models of this season. Lines are long and rather severe, and the trimming is on the same order.

A very charming model was made of what is known as all-over lace. The skirt is gored and finished with a medium-width flounce and is slightly fuller in the back, forming a short train. The waist is just as simple, closing in the back, colorless and with short puff sleeves. The only trimming is appliques of heavier lace in long lines down the skirt.

A decidedly novel coat to be worn with a citron colored cloth costume, is made in princess style. The coat is cut off like a man's cutaway, fits tightly in the back and at the sides and is held together at the bust by a rosette of black satin ribbon. It is cut with a low neck effect and filled in with a guimpe of lace and lingerie. A wide collar of embroidered satin outlines the guimpe. The sleeves are shirred to the elbow and have a turned back cuff of embroidered satin with the frilled sleeve so fashionable now reaching just below the elbow.

Dr. Stone is a regular graduate in medicine and has had many years of experience in the practice. Consultations are free. Prescriptions are free, and only regular prices for medicine. Paris, striped materials are to be extremely fashionable. The stripes are to be had in all widths from the barely visible pin stripe to the conspicuous widths that will be worn by the extremists. The color schemes are generally light.

Black, always fashionable, is to be especially smart this winter. A black gown always looks distinguished and has added advantage of being the most economical in the long run. A black costume for evening wear trimmed with bands of handsome jet is the most effective gown for a matron.

La Mode effects styles in lingerie as well as the outer garments and the tendency here as in the case of gowns is toward simplicity. The numerous frills, berthes and other fluffy trimmings are no longer used on the night-gowns, chemises and corset covers of the up-to-date woman. Petticoats are the only piece of underwear which still have billowy frills and flounces.

The finest French batiste and nainsook are the material chosen for the finest underwear and the coarsish but more durable cambric is seldom seen. What is lacking in trimming is made up in the sheerness of the material.

The chemise, which was pushed into the background for a time has regained its place in popular favor and appears in some very pretty designs. A line of beading or insertion and lace holds the smartest chemise over the shoulder and sometimes the shoulder strap is made of ribbon. This is especially suitable for wear in the evening with decollete dresses but is also seen on models intended for everyday use.

Empire models are the most popular for chemises and nightgowns with the short waist line defined by a band of broad beading just below the bust. Ribbon is run through the beading and tied with long ends and loops in front.

The use of ribbons is one of the distinctive and extravagant features as well of the stylish lingerie. After one has bought the ribbon necessary for the beading, the bows and knots used so lavishly on modern underwear, this item of expense is quite a large one.

The lovely designs in embroidery, insertion and flouncing are pressed into service for trimming some of the smartest underwear. However these are better for petticoats, nightgowns and drawers than for chemises and corset covers.

Embroidered medallions may be used with lace and are easier to handle than the other trimmings. An effective trimming may be made by buying little embroidery butterflies in various sizes and setting them around the neck of chemise or corset cover with the tips of the wings touching and a narrow edge of valenciennes frilled into their regular line made by these embroidered motifs.

Tiny squares of very fine embroidery are also set into fine lingerie with valenciennes insertion or with beading. Monograms or initials are set into the garments with lace and look as if embroidered to order.

Alaska.

"Do you know?" asks William T. Perkins in the World's Work, "that Name, Alaska, is 300 miles west of Honolulu! Do you know that Alaska has almost two and a half times as much coast line as the rest of the United States?"

The "panhandle" of Alaska includes 1000 miles of inland sea, protected by a range of islands.

The Yukon carries as much water as the Mississippi. It rises within 20 miles of the Pacific and travels 3000 miles to Bering sea.

The mouth of the Yukon is 90 miles wide. As in the Amazon's mouth, you may ascend it on a clear day and see no shore.

From Cape Prince of Wales, American soil, you can see Asia across only 32 miles of Bering strait.

Seven railways are in operation or being constructed. The most famous is the Skagway-Yukon connecting link of 140 miles.

Alaska's canned salmon output is estimated this year at $10,000,000.

Get What You Ask For.

When you see an article well advised in the newspapers, you may be sure it's a good article, for advertising only pays if the goods are honest and possess merit. The people who make a specialty of one advertised article, like Cascarets, Candy Cathartic for example, stake their whole business existence on it's doing what they say it will. They must "make good," as the saying is. Readers of this paper are urged to be sure that they get what they ask for, when they ask for an advertised article, for it is the good thing that is imitated and counterfeited. Don't accept substitutes! Insist on getting the genuine!

The Man Who Never Kicks

There are some people who through sickness, indifference or sheer terror of their fellows go through life suffering many unpleasant things without protest. They dislike "fuss" or they are too careless or happy-go-lucky to assert themselves; hence they come off badly everywhere. These are the man who always get the uncooked chops and the tough cuts off the joint.—London Saturday Review.

An Altered Case.

Ascum—Have you seen anything of Jiggins lately? Doctor—Yes, I prescribed a trip to Europe for him only this morning. Ascum—Indeed! He's getting wealthy, isn't he? Doctor—Well, I can remember when I used to prescribe for him simply a dose of sodium bromide for the same complaint.
