

A FALL MESSAGE

Dear Sir: According to the Calendar and the Weather Bureau, our old friend and yearly visitor, Mr. J. Frost, will soon be with us again, and we suppose he will bring with him his usual retinue of snow, ice, cold and blizzards. Are you prepared for his reception? How is your wardrobe? To meet the changes in the weather that heralds the old Chap's coming you must be warmly clothed. Doesn't your last Winter's Overcoat look a little shabby? Isn't your last Winter's Suit the worse for the wear you have given it? Is your Winter Underwear heavy enough, or do you need more of it? Have you everything in Hats, Caps, or Haberdashery necessary for your comfort?

You certainly must have some clothing wants this fall, and if so, we make the earnest request that you visit us before making any purchase of Winter Clothing and Furnishings. We want to get your opinion on the new and beautiful Clothing we have purchased. We have no fear of the result, as the best dressers in Salem are among our regular customers.

We are continually at the front with the latest and best things the market affords, and if you buy your Clothing of us, you will enjoy wearing it, as you will have the satisfaction of knowing you have the correct thing. Our goods are marked in plain figures and our prices we guarantee to be as low as anybody in this wide world can quote on the same grade of goods.

Our rule is: Money back, if you want it. You see you take no risk here—not a bit. We want you to favor us with a call. We shall expect you.

Sincerely yours,
G. W. Johnson & Co.

TO IMPROVE HIGH STREET.

The property owners along South High street are said to be in favor of improving that street.

It is to be graded and graveled from Trade street to the south limits of the city.

Screened gravel is to be used and put down with a heavy roller, and the street is to be curbed and provided with sidewalks.

That is one of the most beautiful residence streets in the city, and the trial of screened gravel should be made.

There is no doubt that screened gravel, if put down properly, so that the round loose hen-egg and goose-egg gravel will not come to the surface, will make a fine driveway.

Enough of the street should be improved so that the expense of cutting through the hill will not fall upon a few property owners. The entire length of the street will get the benefit.

With a screened gravel street and a broken rock macadam street alongside of each other, there will be a fine chance to test the merits and the wearing quality of the two.

The park board should take an interest in the matter, and protect as many of the beautiful natural trees along the street from destruction as possible. They are very ornamental along improved streets.

SAM CLARKE'S HISTORY.

"Pioneer Days of Oregon," by S. A. Clarke is thoroughly interesting.

It is written mostly in the easy style of a gay raconteur, or story teller. Mr. Clarke's literary manner is excellent.

The privations of the pioneers are pictured with a faithful hand, and the author has erected a monument to their labors in opening Oregon to the world that will stand while libraries exist or books are read.

The whole history will bear reading.

around in the family circle, about as severe a test as any book can be put to.

There are thousands of bits of gossip and personalities that none but the man trained to pick up newspaper literature would ever treasure.

The Clarke history is especially replete with sketches of pioneer, trapper, hunter and Indian character.

He deals fearlessly and intelligently with the various missionary enterprises that resulted in settling up the Willamette valley.

The second volume is devoted to tracing the various immigrations, the Indian wars, down to the provisional government, territory and state.

Mr. Clarke's two volumes are beautifully illustrated. The publishers are the J. K. Gill Company, of Portland.

THE CHARACTER OF MURILLO.

The great Spanish painter, Murillo, was a most lovable character.

As a man he was handsome, good and virtuous. Envy knew not where to attack him.

He was nearly universal in the scope of his art. He could paint the sacred fervor of the devotee, the ecstasy of the religious enthusiast, or depict the raggedness of the street urchin with the sympathetic grace of genius.

Spain has produced but two great painters—Velasquez and Murillo. While the former painted exclusively noblemen, the latter painted humanity.

The homeless beggar was as much to Murillo as the highest aristocrat was to his noble contemporary.

Except to students of art, Murillo is remembered and Velasquez forgotten. His parents were poor people and their son struggled upward, not downward.

HE WANTS ADVICE.

President Roosevelt knows that the building of canals is not what he has followed all his life, and he gives a practical demonstration of his fitness for the high office he occupies by seeking advice from the world's experts in the building of the great waterway at Panama.

Many months were lost by the inefficient commission first named, and the President seeing that as the result of bickerings, divisions, and jealousies there was little hope of early results, decided to reorganize the commission. New men were named, men who expected to return value for the great salaries paid. Not content with this, the President invited engineers of Europe as well as America to meet in conference to go over the situation. This means that the best ideas of the world will be used to advantage in building the canal. Health conditions are being shaped up and the work of digging will be prosecuted with unusual vigor. The President wants advice, but when once he gets it, it goes without saying that the dirt will fly down at Panama.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and, unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. E. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Extravagance in College Life.

(From Daily Portland Journal.)

The vice president of Stanford university, in an address delivered a few days ago before the student body called sharp attention to the rapid increase in luxury and expenditure that was beginning to mark and mar the college life. Much of it was due to the intense rivalry of the fraternities but by no means all, for athletics cut a very important figure in the scene of extravagance. "Fraternity life," he says, "has come to be vastly more expensive than is either necessary or reasonable, and this expensiveness is kept up, not by the necessary requirements of the organizations, but by childish rivalries in display. In some instances, while you are here spending enough money to support an ordinary family, back at home are father and mother working early and late, saving and denying themselves in order to pay for these indulgences of yours."

It would be unjust to imply that this criticism was deserved alone by Stanford, for unfortunately it applies indiscriminately to all colleges to a greater or lesser degree. But there are universities, of which Stanford was asserted to be a noted example, in which the democratic spirit prevailed to a most delightful degree, mere money counting against rather than in favor of a man, and where each student stood upon his merits totally irrespective of the cash equivalent which he could muster back of him. It was this reputation that was doing so much for Stanford and which was calculated to do so very much more. If the contrary spirit is creeping in it is best that it should be throttled in its incipency. If the fraternities are largely to blame for the conditions then the men who control them should patriotically set on foot reforms and carry them to a definite end, no matter how much their societies may appear immediately to suffer. There is presented at Stanford a noble opportunity for aspiring young men to acquire an education at relatively slight cost. The spirit of genuine democracy should not be permitted to die out and no matter what the cost the university should be saved from that calamity.

How General Porter Found Paul Jones.

The October Century, which will be issued on the one hundred and twenty-sixth anniversary of the death of the Seraph and the Bonhomme Richard, will contain the first detailed and authoritative account ever published of the recovery of the body of John Paul Jones, written by General Horace Porter, LL. D. It is to the unselfish zeal and patriotism of General Porter that the United States owes the recovery of the remains of its first naval hero.

While ambassador to France, General Porter, on his own initiative and at his own expense, began a personal search for John Paul Jones's body, in 1899. The details of this search, its final success, the rigorous verification of identity, are all covered in General Porter's story, which is to be fully illustrated from photographs.

HOUSEHOLD CARES.

Tax the Women of Salem the Same as Elsewhere.

Hard to attend to household duties With a constantly aching back. A woman should not have a bad back. And she wouldn't if the kidneys were well.

Doan's Kidney Pills make well kidneys.

Mrs. Wm. Rainwater, wife of Wm. Rainwater, employed in Veal's Chair Factory, residing at 93 East First street, says: "My kidneys troubled me off and on for eight years. Every time I contracted a cold it settled on my kidneys, causing my back to ache often so badly that I could hardly get about to attend to my household duties. Accompanying this was a very annoying and distressing difficulty with the kidney secretions. I was treated by physicians and took a number of highly recommended remedies, but the relief I obtained was only temporary and I was about discouraged. Finally I read an advertisement about Doan's Kidney's Pills, and got a box at Fesbey & Mason's drug store and began their use. I expected some relief, of course, but to my surprise they went quickly to the root of the disease and I had no more trouble until recently I felt symptoms of a recurrence. Doan's Kidney Pills are the best kidney medicine I ever used, and I have recommended them to my neighbors."
