EXPENSES IN GERMANY

In a long, detailed report on the cost of living in Germany Consul Harris, writing from Chemnitz, says that foods are comparatively dearer in the empire than in the United States. For example, coffees range in price from 24 to 48 cents per half kilo or 1.1 pounds; tea runs from 48 to 95 cents; sugar, granulated, from .078 to .085 cents; rice and barley from 4 to 8½ cents; butter from 32 to 33 cents; oleomargarine, much of which is manufactured, from 5 cents a quart; fresh meats sell for about 19 cents a pound; bacon, 21 cents; ham, 29 cents; turkeys 24 to 28½ cents per 1.1 pounds; potatoes from 95 cents to $1.07 per 112 pounds.

It is hardly necessary to say that no very substantial part of the empire's working people pay any such prices, for their wages do not permit of such. The food of the masses, made up in large part of fish, herring, cheap meats, potatoes and the cheaper forms of vegetables, are high enough to hinder anything like luxurious living. Herrings sell for .023 cents each; salmon for 48 cents to $1.19 per 1.1 pounds. The foregoing items and figures have been picked from Mr. Harris' report for the purpose of pointing out the most suggestive and significant features of the whole.

In regard to meats, Mr. Harris says: The question of cheap meat for the poorer classes is beginning to agitate the empire. As was to have been expected, the tariff laws enacted in favor of the landed proprietors have not produced the desired effect. Germany produces about 75 per cent of her own foodstuffs. It was claimed that the remaining 25 per cent could also be produced by a better system of intensive farming, if somewhat facilitated by a tariff which would protect the home wheat and grain markets. Germany's population is 60,104,000, an increase of 800,000 in a year.

In this connection a leading Chemnitz paper publishes pages from a workman's daily food expense book. The yearly outlay for rye bread was $44.88; white bread, $20.34; meat, $9.90; sausage, $7.64; bacon, $10.85; butter, $21.27; eggs, $4.10; milk, $18.84. The family consisted of a father, mother and several children; unfortunately, the exact number and age of the members of the family are not given.

In this connection Consul Harris calls attention to the fact that the impor-

A Serious Mistake.

It is a serious thing to neglect your heart.

The moment you detect any weakness or irregularity, such as short breath after exercise, palpitation, fluttering, weak or hungry spells, pain in breast, side or shoulder, or uneasiness when lying on left side, you should take Dr. Miles' Heart Cure; it rarely ever fails to relieve all these symptoms.

If not promptly restored, chronic heart disease soon develops, and then it only remains for some sudden strain to completely exhaust the heart.

Thousands of hopeless cases have been cured, and if you do not try it, it will be the greatest mistake of your life.

"When I began taking Dr. Miles' Remedy I was in a very bad condition. I had stomach trouble, with severe distress after eating. My heart hurt me, and I had shortness of breath, palpitation. My pulse was irregular, and my feet, ankles and hands were swollen. Every month at regular periods I had severe pain. I wrote Dr. Miles' Medical Co., and they advised me to take Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve and Heart Cure. I soon noticed an improvement, and I continued the medicine until I was completely cured. I feel like a different person. In fact I have not felt so well for 20 years."

tations of all kinds of meat from the United States fell off from 47,243 tons in 1898, worth $9,448,600, to 4342 tons, worth $859,882, in 1904. This is due to the severe laws regarding meat inspection. Other countries, however, are affected, notably Denmark, Holland, Russia and Austria-Hungary.

The New Waitress.

William W. Russell, the new minister to Venezuela, was being congratulated on his appointment.

"Thank you," said Mr. Russell, "I appreciate your good wishes, and I will try to do well in my new place."

"In new places," he went on, "we all, with hard work, may do well. Now and then, before unexpected and unprecedented crises, we may err, but there is no need for us to err greatly; to err, for instance, as did the new waitress of a friend of mine.

"This waitress was willing but inexperienced. The first day all went well. The second day, having developed a good deal of faith in her, my friend gave a dinner party.

"She was, it seems, a little short of forks. After each course the waitress should have taken the soiled forks and washed and dried them in the pantry.

"But, instead the waitress, as she removed the plates after the fish course, said to the assembled guests in a loud, authoritative voice:

"All keep yer forks."—New York Tribune.

Discouraged.

"Mamma," remarked Dottie, "if I get married when I grow up will I have a husband like papa?"
"I suppose so, dear," said mamma.
