

The Taking Cold Habit

The old cold goes; a new one quickly comes. It's the story of a weak throat, a tendency to consumption. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral breaks up the taking-cold habit. It strengthens, heals. Ask your doctor to tell you all about it.

DAILY CAPITAL JOURNAL

OFFICIAL CENSUS SALEM.
MAY, 1904, 13,287.

THE WILLIAMSON JURY.

It is stated as a fact that of the 100 jurymen drawn in the panel from which the Williamson jury was selected, 52 were from Portland.

This may be true or not. But if it is anywhere near true the trial was hardly a fair one, everything considered.

There are thirty-three other counties in the state from which that panel of 100 jurors was supposed to have been made up.

If one-fourth of the population of Oregon is in Multnomah county, there should not have been over 25 jurors from Multnomah county.

If 52 were chosen from that one county where no other newspapers are read but those bitterly opposed to the defendant it is wrong.

The newspaper is the sole medium for information and enlightenment of people on public matters, and a man who reads only one side is not fit for jury duty. His mind is unconsciously made up for him.

Newt Williamson is entitled to a new trial if there were any Portland men, who are influenced to a degree of almost a mania against the land case defendants, on that jury.

ARE WE DRIFTING INTO AN EMPIRE.

Collier's seems to think so when it says in its issue of September 30th:

West Point was made ridiculous, when visited by Baron Rosen and M. de Witte, by the remission of punishments previously awarded to the cadets. "This action," the order reads, "is taken as a compliment to the distinguished envoys themselves, and as a mark of regard to the great nation they represent." Truly this is regal. When majesty has a birthday or is graciously pleased to traverse some town, criminals are freed in honor of the great event. We are getting on. One-man power increases at Washington along with the power of half a dozen senators and fifty financiers, while the house of representatives loses, except in the case of its one man, the speaker.

MOVE IT ALL TO PORTLAND.

The Oregonian is making the modest suggestion that all the normal schools be combined in one, and that be combined with the state university, and the whole shooting-match moved to Portland.

Let the state buy the Lewis and Clark fair and make it annual appropriations, and keep that at Portland, consolidating the state fair with it. There is room for all at Portland.

Move the state capital into the refined political atmosphere of the city of moral purity, where gambling is unknown, and the churches only are open on Sunday.

With the fair running the legislator could hit the trail on Sunday and hire a room on weekdays for a friendly game of poker, knowing that the mayor would never allow him to be prosecuted.

Move the fish hatcheries, the state agricultural college and the state soap factory and the whitewash board all to Portland, for they will be needed, and the state disinfectant as well.

Move all the newspapers and all the job printing offices to Portland, and have all the state national guard quartered there all the time. The rest of the people who don't like it can move out of the state.

CARE AND KINDNESS PAY.

Care and kindness in the keeping of horses amount to more than feed in the long run.

Blankets and waterproofs at the right time, the liberal use of the brush and curry comb, cost less than grain and hay.

Heavy feeding will not make up for thoughtful care and kindness. Loving intelligence sustains life as well as material food.

Fred Schindler is an expressman, who three years ago began with one horse hauling the mails from the trains.

He has now a good team and is making six dollars a day. He has enough ahead to buy another team and vehicle.

He has a light team, and they are in good condition at all times, and can get around with a great deal of speed.

Mr. Schindler takes the best of care of his horses, and gets as much work out of a light team as many do out of heavy draft horses.

This proves that it pays to feed well, to groom well, and to treat well man's best friend, the intelligent horse.

It is the mark of a successful business man to treat horses well, and it always pays from a business standpoint.

FROM DEY GOODS TO BLACK SMITH.

Salem has a man who, after thirteen years at the dry goods trade goes back to blacksmithing.

George Melson, who conducted the Beehive store in this city, has taken a forge in the Glover and Patton shop on Court street.

His son, Harry Melson, has worked there a year, and his father now takes a hand at the anvil and bellows.

The work of the blacksmith requires as much intelligence as carpenter or any other trade. He must know metals and understand mechanics.

The editor of this paper was apprenticed to learn the blacksmith trade, but he gave it up because of poor health.

What a blessing it would have been to the public had he become a good horse-shoer instead of a poor editor.

But few men have entire control of their destiny. They cannot be what they would, and they would not be what they are.

So it is not as great a jump from dry goods to the anvil as it is from the anvil to the editor's desk.

Few men in their younger years know just exactly what they were out for, and still fewer reach a state of perfect satisfaction.

To do well the part in life allotted to you is the best course for any man to pursue. The humblest tasks are rendered satisfactory by putting a little intelligence into them.

COLLEGE HAZING - VS. HOSPITALITY.

Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford, writing for Collier's of September 30th on the subject of College Women and College Customs, in part says:

It is to be hoped that the reopening of the college year to women will not be marked by the foolish frolics which have so long disgraced the colleges attended by men. For nothing can be more contradictory to any idea of womanliness than any form of hazing.

Hospitality is an ancient virtue. Such food, such shelter as our ancestors had, belonged to the stranger that asked for it, help, and forwarding, and all further kindness. It is strange their descendants should degenerate in this so pleasant habit. Surely hospitality is as much a virtue in the college as in the home; the person just entering there, young man or young woman, is a stranger within the gates, not to be made the butt of stupid fun, or the object of vulgar cruelty.

In some, at least, of our colleges for women, a charming custom prevails which is the very opposite of the one under consideration. There the sophomores take the freshmen, so called, in charge—the latter often homesick and more or less bewildered, even if full of hope and courage—they show them over the college, initiate them into the mystery of this or that foreign appearance, afford them encouragement and savoir faire, and a cordial and friendly entertainment. And, after that, each one of the class above becomes the sponsor, as it were, of one novice. This is the Golden Rule touching gay and boisterous spirits to fine issues, and let us hope that it will be the cause of something finer still in the college for men.

One dressmaker declares that men certainly need the corset. "I for one," she declares, "am disgusted with this belt and suspender effect. It is horrid to see a man continually hitching up his trousers. Think how much neater he could keep his shirt in summer." It is horrid. It is. It is. And we should love to see the neatness of his shirt in summer. Besides, what if this prospect does contain just a suspicion of the effect?

What Is Most Valuable in Teachers?

Is it book knowledge or human qualities? Ability or gentleness?

But if a teacher has good manners, dresses properly, used good language, is kind, polite, courteous, those qualifications cannot be hidden.

Children learn unconsciously by observation. They are great imitators. If a teacher is quick-tempered, snappish, uses rough language, is not careful about dress or manners, the children copy that also.

The first essential of a teacher of children is that he or she be a gentleman or a lady.

That is far more important than having passed all the examinations in the world and be the opposite.

Mrs. J. B. McInnis, a well-known resident of Springfield, Lane county, died Monday morning at her home at that place, aged 66 years.

You Must Sleep.

If you cannot, it is due to an irritated or congested state of the brain, which will soon develop into nervous prostration.

Nature demands sleep, and it is as important as food; it is a part of her building and sustaining process. This period of unconsciousness relaxes the mental and physical strain, and allows nature to restore exhausted vitality.

Dr. Miles' Nervine brings refreshing sleep, because it soothes the irritation and removes the congestion.

It is also a nerve builder; it nourishes and strengthens every nerve in your body, and creates energy in all the organs.

Nothing will give strength and vitality as surely and quickly as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"During the past winter I had two attacks of LaGrippe which left me very weak, and in bad condition. I was so nervous I could not sleep. My wife, after trying different remedies, went for a doctor. The doctor was out, and a neighbor recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine, and she brought home a bottle. I had not slept for some time, and had terrible pains in my head. After taking a few doses of Nervine the pains were not so severe, and I slept. I am now taking the second bottle, and am very much improved."

HENRY M. SMITH, Underhill, Vt.
Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.
