NEW MEN AND NEW POLICIES.

The influence of the Republican conference held at Portland will be to bring new men and new policies to the front. It remains to be seen whether the Republican party can proceed on the lines, or whether it will have to map out new state policies.

By the enactment of the initiative and referendum, which the Republican leaders endorsed, government has gone far out of the hands of parties.

By the adoption of the direct primary law the party machinery has been rendered about as obsolete as the old-fashioned hand-rake reapers.

The new machine will deliver a bundle of candidates securely bound to the people by direct pledges and amenable to no party discipline.

The local option forced on the statute by the dictation of a little handful of prohibitionists shows what can be done by initiative.

Will the new leaders of the party go farther in the direction of party disorganization, or will they try to restore party responsibility?

The indications are that the conference will endorse the direct primary law, and then recommend county and state conventions to ratify the nominations made by the people, and organize for the campaign.

AN OREGON INSURANCE COMPANY.

The disorganization of the great life insurance companies of the east paves the way for the organization of a strong home company.

L. Samuel, of Portland, who has for years represented the great Equitable Life Insurance Company, has undertaken this organization. He was too honest a man to remain with the New York methods, and resigned.

He has enlisted many of the strong men of Portland and some outside who have subscribed stock to the amount of $1000 and upwards.

He will start with a $100,000 company, and will have stockholders in the interior of the state. The character of the men who are going in with him indicates that the new company has come to stay.

This state has been a prolific field for life insurance; $54,887,221 was the amount of insurance in force in Oregon in 1904.

The amount of life insurances written in Oregon in 1904 was $14,700,841, and the premiums collected for that year amounted to $1,887,994.

Premiums collected for five years before this year, $6,723,103. The death losses paid were $1,722,924 for same five years. Dividends paid, $314,249.

The total death losses and dividends were $2,337,166. Net premiums sent out of Oregon, after paying losses and dividends, five years, $4,855,937.

It would seem as if there were a field for a life insurance company in Oregon. If men can be found who handle other people's money honestly, when paid for such a purpose, it ought to prosper.

It will depend some on who compose the board of directors. There are large margins of consideration in the management of these enterprises, and the state may take a hand in saying how they shall be conducted. The right

MONEY VS. MONEY SAVED

It's not the money made, but the money saved that provides a fund for the "rainy day."

Money saved makes you independent, enables you to grasp business opportunities and lays the foundation for financial success.

The way to save is to put it in the bank—then what you put in earns more.

In this bank it earns three per cent interest, compounded semi-annually. One dollar will open an account.

kind of state supervision would give a home company great standing.

PRESIDENT'S RAILWAY POLICY.

W. Z. Ripley, whose paper upon President Roosevelt's Railway Policy: "The Problem," in the September Atlantic, attracted so much attention, is out with a sequel in the October Atlantic, dealing with "Remedies."

Treating chiefly of the problem of federal ownership of railways, Mr. Ripley makes a very searching examination of the conditions abroad and in this country. His conclusion is that whatever the future may some day contain, it is clear that public ownership and operation of the railways of the United States may become a necessary experiment to business and property, and to the safety and welfare of the republic.

Smiles from the Typewriter

Boys better be kept busy getting the woodbox filled than learning to play poker.

Shall Salem, Albany, Eugene, Roseburg, Medford, or Ashland be the coming railroad center of Oregon.

Col. Bob Smith, of Grants Pass, does not want to run for congress. He may have others imitating his example.

If the Journal could think of something that would please the Woodburn Independent man it would print it in this column.

Salem has paid about a quarter of a million this year attending a Portland side show. Why not move the state capitol to Portland, and then we could do that every year.

Albany Democrat: In the spirit of the law an application for school lands was just as much of a contract as anything else, Judge Burnett to the contrary notwithstanding.

If the Republican party wants to win in the future in Oregon, let it go before the people with clean hands and a pure heart. But that is asking almost too much, as politics go.

What does so-called education amount to when a college professor tries the clumsy way of suicide by cutting his own throat? There are more scientific methods that ought to occur to an educated man.

Paul Morton says, "There is no nobler work than to put good names on the list as policy holders in the Equitable." Yes, good names, men who can pay premiums promptly. That's what we all want for customers.

Oh, yes! It's easy to abolish all the state institutions, build new ones, and move them all to Portland. Then give Portland all the federal appropriations and a million a year to make a forty-foot channel to the sea.

Independence Enterprise: Phil Damm recently from Kansas was in Salem Saturday and expresses great satisfaction with Oregon, says the Journal. If the rest of the Damm family are as well satisfied, guess we'll count them in our next census.

Astorian: There is an ominous silence prevalent in regard to that new Nehalem railroad. Can it be possible the bottom has fallen out so quickly? Such ventures usually exhaust newspaper space and comment before they lapse to memories.

The time will come when it will not be considered smart to go to the legislature to sell goods to the state or to trade your vote for a federal office. It will be just common, plain, dishonesty, compared to which picking pockets or highway robbery are minor offenses.

People come and go from Alaska nowadays without much notice. How different a few years ago when it took a column for a personal.—Albany Democrat.

After a while people will make trips to Africa or to Coos Bay and nothing will be thought of it.

A Gardiner item has this: The railroad surveying crew has passed Elkton and is investigating the feasibility of the pass up Binders creek with a view of tunneling through to Paradise creek. This would shorten the route about three miles, besides avoiding Brown's hill, one of the most difficult problems to contend with on the entire route.

If hating were made a penitentiary offense, there would be less of it. The crime of cracking a man's skull and probably rendering him a dependent cripple for the rest of his life is none the less a crime because it is committed by a reckless lot of young men. Girls are still able to get an education without having their collar bones broken in hazing or football.

It don't make so much difference who presides over the Portland conference as what shall the program be for the future. The taxpayer is sometimes a voter, and the management in the past has left our state without a delegation in congress or a dollar of appropriation that is not wrathfully tied up by the people, and God alone knows when it will be let loose. We have all been so busy looking after our own little grafts that we have not looked after the public very much. It is true these are minor matters, and the Fish and Game Warden may not take our view. If we have any brains let us stop and think and we will see that we cannot go along much farther on the old lines. But it is sometimes painful to even think.

As the poultry season arrives it is worth noting that bundling a lot of chickens in a gunny sack and hauling them over a rough road in the bottom of a wagon box is not exactly a humane way to treat dumb animals. Yet this is very common. This paper will keep calling attention to this kind of careless brutality, and to the way poultry is shipped in full boxes, closely packed in and half dead on arrival, to say nothing of being starved for food and drink. If all people understood these cruelties there would be a great falling off in the use of poultry. The papers after a while will be full of the accounts of picking turkeys and other birds alive. But it will be after all these outrages have been committed in the name of business. Let us have a little heart for the creatures God has given man dominion over, if not for the animals at least for our own self-respect as human beings who are supposed to be accountable.

Rather Badly Mixed.
Here's a fairly curious one from an Eastern exchange. Recently in the probate court room at Rochester, N. Y., a well dressed man, who gave his age as seventy-five, was married to a girl who had just passed her seventeenth year. After the ceremony a son of the old gentleman, who will be fifty in a few days, went through the form of marriage with a lady who is in her sixty-eighth year. Leaving the office together, both the happy couples entered a motor car that was waiting and drove away.

Frightful Suffering Relieved.
Suffering frightfully from the virulent poisons of undigested food, C. G. Grayson, of Lula, Miss., took D. King's New Life Pills, "with the result," he writes, "that I was cured." All stomach and bowel disorders give way to their tonic, laxative properties. 25c at J. C. Perry's drug store, guaranteed.
