Behold, a copper tinted man,
The noble chieftain Powhatan.
This Injun good—who once was bad—
Of Pocahontas was the dad.
His moccasins he highly prized
Until he grew so civilized,
Such footgear he'd no longer use
But tomahawked in Crawford Shoes.

vided for all the orators to have spoken their little piece. That would have made it a real love feast. All the candidates did not get to sing their matin melody of the sunrise aspirations, nor the swan song of their political careers, as the case might be. Some of the overly cautious Republican managers did not show up at the convention, but confined themselves to back-room manipulation of the wires with trusty lieutenants to bring them reports of progress. But that is nothing new, and, all things considered, the convention, which in reality had nothing to do but blow off a little steam and let the world know that the party organization still exists, was a successful performance and has laid the groundwork for the party's future existence.

Marion County Leadership.

Marion county had not only the strongest delegation present, but asserted leadership throughout the conference in a quiet and determined way. Chairman Hal D. Patton called the delegates together at his headquarters in the New Lange Hotel and 15 minutes before the time for the meeting at the Empire theater, in a well-voiced speech, had secured the unanimous support of the sixty delegates to the support of Frank Davey for chairman of the convention. J. N. Smith and W. C. Hawley were appointed to present the name to the convention. This was done in a pleasant manner and when A. L. Mills, speaker of the last house of representatives, had presented the name of Senator Haines, of Washington county Davey was elected with a whoop. He took the gavel amid great applause and made an eloquent opening harmony address and never lost his grip of the gavel nor his grasp of the situation until he had declared the convention adjourned sine die, and he was warmly congratulated by the people from all over the state for his ability as a presiding officer.

After State Chairman Baker had delivered the opening address in calling to order, in which he plead for harmony and asked the convention to resolve itself into "an old-fashioned Quaker meeting," the speakers were turned loose. Senator Fulton spoke on national issues, eulogized the president and favored the interstate commerce commission having power to fix reasonable rates. This subject was brought before the platform committee, but was tabled and did not appear in the report of the committee. Before the convention adjourned, Stephen A. Lowell called up the resolution endorsing a rate law, had the convention take it off the table and the convention adopted it after striking out reference to any particular bill but indorsing the principle. Manning of Salem and Lee of Portland made speeches against the resolution. Frank C. Baker refused the honor of temporary chairman, saying a Baker was chief of the ushers. If a Baker were chairman, they might as well move to the Baker theater and take the whole bakery. This raised a laugh and Mr. Baker's reputation for modesty was fully sustained.

Tooze Scores a Hit.

Walter L. Tooze, candidate for congress from the first district, scored a hit and had the convention by the heels and the nape of the neck by his spirited speech for the recognition of the interior and the coast harbors and rivers. His remarks were directed to the plea of Judge Caples that the whole state was back of the improvement of the Columbia to a depth of 35 feet to Lewiston and 40 feet to the seaboard. His talk was the hit of the convention and finely offset the narrow view that is sometimes expressed at Portland when improvements are talked about. He said in part:

"It is all right to talk of increasing the waterways along the Columbia river, but we of the Willamette valley do not think we have received the attention of development of our portion of the state. Southern Oregon is a coming portion of the state. You people of Portland forget we have harbors that need improvement. We will stand by you for your deep harbor, but don't forget us."

Marion Scores Again.

In the committee on resolutions, Hal D. Patton, member of the committee from Marion county, handed in a substitute for the treatment of the primary law. It fully pledges the Republican party for the honest, faithful and just enforcement of the direct primary system of making county, state and congressional nominations, and then provides for holding county conventions to ratify the county ticket and make a state platform. This was hastily disposed of by Walter McCammant secretary, and Grant Dimick, chairman of the committee, and by the committee itself. But before the convention adjourned the Patton resolutions were taken from the table and, after some speakmaking, substituted for the committee's rather cursory treatment of the nomination problem. The plan adopted provides for recognition of the new system, continuity in the party organization, and preservation of the convention system, but subordinates it to the people's control of the nominating power.

FAMOUS MALE QUARTET

The Parland-Newhall Company at the Grand Opera House Tonight

The "Parland-Newhall," a company of musical specialists, will give one of their fine entertainments at the Grand Opera House tonight.

This is the first attraction of the Y. M. C. A. entertainment course and promises to be first class in every particular. Reports from Albany, where this company filled an engagement last night, are very flattering. The male quartet was encored time and time again. The voices in this quartet have been together before the public for five years and their blending is as nearly perfect as practice can make.

The people of Salem, who have been fortunate enough to secure season tickets to the Y. M. C. A. entertainment course will be glad to know that they are to be given such high class attractions.

Maro, the Magician, who is the second attraction of the course, is a wonder in his line. Single tickets to this entertainment will be worth $1.

The management of the Y. M. C. A. is to be complimented on securing such fine attractions and at such reasonable prices for season tickets.

"No shade, no shine, no fruit, no flowers, no leaves,—November!" Many Americans would add no freedom from catarrh, which is so aggravated during this month that it becomes constantly troublesome. There is abundant proof that catarrh is a constitutional disease. It is related to scrofula and consumption, being one of the wasting diseases. Hood's Sarsaparilla has shown that what is capable of eradicating scrofula completely cures catarrh, and taken in time prevents consumption. We cannot see how any sufferer can put off taking this medicine, in view of the widely published record of its radical and permanent cures. It is undoubtedly America's greatest medicine for America's greatest disease—catarrh.

KICKERS OF THE PIGSKIN

Webfooters Hold the Children of the Orange Groves Down to Cases

By playing the University of California football team to a standstill yesterday at Berkeley, the team from the Oregon State University at Eugene again demonstrated the fact that the state of California is not the whole show, and that there is going to be some great football played in Oregon this year. If either of the big southern teams should have the nerve to leave their own fields and come north it is a safe guess that they would both be defeated this year by all three of the big college teams of this state.

According to the reports which have been received, the game at Berkeley yesterday was a good one, though Oregon did not succeed in holding down the Californians quite as well as did Willamette last Saturday. It will be remembered that the Willamette goal was never in danger, while the Berkleyites were twice on the five-yard line of the men from Eugene, and only failed to score through the lack of judgment of the California quarterback. Neither did Oregon get so close to the goal line of the opponents as did the Salem team.

Gordon Moores, of Salem, who played end on the Oregon team, was the star of the game. It is said that he circled the end of the opposing line four times, and made the only sensational run of the day. Moores is a son of C. B. Moores of this city, who is a graduate of Willamette University and a member of the board of trustees of the Salem institution, yet his children go to every other school in the state except Willamette.

Friessell, Oregon's new man from Nevada, was also a star player, especially on the defensive, when he would leap over the line and break up the California plays.

It seems that Oregon was weak on the offensive in the first half of the game, and it was only the magnificent punting of Captain Lamourette that saved the Oregonians from disastrous defeat in this period. Their team work was better in the last half. A California clearly had the better of the first half, so Oregon put up the better game in the last half.

This game goes to show that the game between Eugene and Salem, which is to be played in this city November 4, will be a hammer. The greatest ever played in this city without a doubt.

TO HAVE A LIBRARY.

Marion County's Commission Provides for the Little Folks.

Bids were opened Tuesday by the state library commission for supplying the various counties of the state with books to form the nucleus of school libraries. But two bids were submitted, one by Gill, the Portland stationer, and the other, the successful one, by A. C. McClurg & Co., of Chicago.

The establishment of school libraries has been made possible by a law of the last legislature, which delegated the duty to a board to be created and called the state library commission. The law has also provided that funds for the libraries be obtained by a tax levy in each county of ten cents for every child of school age.

The only money available for the purchase of books this year will come from and benefit Marion, Yamhill and Douglas counties. These counties were the only ones in the state that provided for the library fund in the last tax levy.

About $2,000 in all will be expended this year by the library commission. The books include a wide assortment of all kinds for all ages and classes of readers.

WALTER LYONS IS OUT

Hard Hearted Company and Water Segregate Him From the World

Owing to the continued fall of the river, the O. C. T. Co. will be compelled to discontinue steamer service to Independence. The water at 10 o'clock this morning showed a height of one foot five inches above low water, a fall of four inches in the last 24 hours.

The Willamette, on account of the rains of last week, has been higher than usual at this time of the year. At this time last year the river was a tenth below low water. It is probable that a steamer will be able to get up to Independence Sunday, the 15th, until there is higher water.

A MEASURE OF MERIT.

Salem Citizens Should Weigh This Evidence.

Proof of merit lies in the evidence. Convincing evidence in Salem. Is not the testimony of strangers. But the endorsement of Salem people.

That's the kind of proof given by the statement of a Salem citizen.

William H. Spayd, living at the corner of North Winter and D streets, says: "Words cannot express my opinion half strong enough of Doan's Kidney Pills. I have known their remarkable merits for the last 10 years having used them in Clinton, Mich., where I was living. My kidneys were a source of annoyance quite a number of years. I had pain across my loins and the secretion from the kidneys were irregular in quantity, causing me to rise often in the night, and at times there was a tingling. I also had more or less dizziness. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills from Dr. Stone's drug store and gave them to a person visiting us and they gave her wonderful relief, and in my case I was benefited in every way. My backache was relieved and the trouble with the kidney secretions was cured. You are at liberty to refer to me as one who can endorse the pills made for Doan's Kidney Pills and also know of a great many others who have used them with the best of results."
