WAGER STILL STANDS

Money Is Tied Up Until Well Known Portlanders Walk to Salem.

Two well known Portland men, who had imbibed not wisely but too well, met at the Quelle, Sixth and Stark streets, and engaged in friendly conversation until a late hour. Steins were filled and emptied, and the pair became more and more pleased with life.

Time to arise and leave for home came, and it was with difficulty that the two accomplished the "getting up."

"You're drunk and can't walk home," said one to the other.

"I'll bet you $100 that I can walk to Salem, starting from the postoffice, before you can go the same distance," replied the other.

"Baron" Schlenk, one of the proprietors, was in charge at the time and agreed to hold the stakes. The $200 was put up, and the walk was to have begun the following morning.

The only thing that the two could recall the next day, however, was the fact that each had deposited $100 with "Baron" Schlenk. This they wished to "draw down," and proceeded to the Quelle to get it.

"Neither of you has won the wager," said "Baron" Schlenk. "I don't see which one is entitled to the money; in fact, I think I'll hold it awhile, and maybe you will walk to Salem. I'm ready to turn the $200 over to the winner at any time."

How to get the money back, is now troubling the two disciples of Bacchus, who, on second thought, are not anxious to display their athletic powers by a tramp to Salem. The walking is not good just now.—Oregonian.

York State Folks

Thereaters in this city are to be given a treat this evening in the pastoral play, "York State Folks," which is in its successful season. It has been greeted everywhere with packed houses. It is a great improvement upon such plays as "Jed Prouty" and the "Old Homestead," and is really the best and newest thing of its kind ever played to Salem. Unlike most plays it has no villains, but all the characters are made to please and one forgets they are just stage folks, their acting being so realistic. The stage settings are all fine and the makeup in perfect harmony with the play. In fact, it is the play of the season and none should fail to attend it.

SALEM CITY PRIMARY

Will Be Held Under the New State Law

But the Date and Places Will Be Fixed by the City Council

The new direct primary law applies to all cities and towns of two thousand population or over. Hence the Salem City election, to be held Monday, December 4, will have its candidates nominated under the provisions of that law.

At Salem there will be one alderman elected in each of the seven wards of the city and two per cent of the party vote in each ward is required to entitle a petition to be filed with the city recorder, who at a certain time fixed by the council will have all the names for each ward printed on a ballot for the primary election.

In cities holding their elections at the same time as the general elections, the state law fixes the time for holding the primary and the time for filing petitions. But cities holding their municipal election at some other time than the general election are governed by the following provisions of the statute, section 6:

"Under the provisions of the law the lawfully constituted legislative and executive authorities of cities and towns within the provisions of this section not holding their municipal elections at the same time the general elections are held shall have such power and authority over the establishment of municipal voting precincts and wards, municipal boards of judges and clerks of election and other officers of their said municipal elections and other matters pertaining to municipal primary nominating elections required for such cities and towns by this law that such legislative and executive authorities have over the same matters at their municipal elections for choosing the public officers of said cities and towns."

The city council expects at its next regular meeting to make provision for compliance with the direct primary law for the coming city election. It will select the time and place and appoint the judges for the primaries, who will probably be the same as the judges for the election.

Cheated Death.

Kidney trouble often ends fatally, but by choosing the right medicine, E. H. Wolfe of Bear Grove, Iowa, cheated death. He says: "Two years ago I had kidney trouble, which caused me great pain and suffering and anxiety, but I took Electric Bitters, which effected a complete cure. I have also found them of great benefit in general debility and nerve trouble, and keep them constantly on hand, since, as I find they have no equal." J. C. Perry, druggist, guarantees them at 50c.

Additional Church Notices

THE KATZENJAMMER PICNIC.

To Be Given for the Benefit of the Public Library.

Clara Louise Thompson is in the city, the Woman's Club having engaged her to put on her new play, "The Katzenjammer Picnic," for the benefit of the Public Library. The Library is greatly in need of money and it should be the desire of all to help in this worthy cause, either in taking part in the play or patronizing the entertainment. The play is full of fun, as the name suggests. The cleverest local talent of the city has been secured to take part. New music, catchy songs and original specialties. Not a dull moment is allowed to creep in. Watch the papers to note the progress of the picnic.
