AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT.

The Grand—"York State Folks."
Edison—Vaudeville.

"York State Folks."

The most delightful of all rural comedies, "York State Folks," which has won its place at the head of the list of great plays of American country life, will be seen with the entire original cast and the complete scenic production at the Grand Opera House tonight. This beautiful play enjoyed three months run at the Majestic theater, Boston. "York State Folks" packed the Great Northern, Chicago, for two months previous to the Boston engagement, and then did what no other play ever accomplished in the latter city in keeping a theater open all summer long, with the orchestra under the stage at every performance.

after the first week. The present tour brings all the originals of the great cast, including Rhea Acton as Jennie, Adelbert Knott as Myron Cooper, L. T. Loring as Simon Peter Martin, and all the other favorites, and the magnificent scenic mounting prepared especially for the Boston run. The settings for the "Maple Lane" scene, the wagon shop scene, and the dream scene of the finale are said to be especially effective. This unique finale, in which a full vester choir of boy sopranos appears, is one of the most striking of stage pictures.

NEW EDISON THEATRE.

The show at the Edison is one of the best ever seen at any vaudeville house on the Coast, every act being a feature. Mlle. Vida opens the show with a wize act that is without doubt the best of its kind ever seen in vaudeville. Mr. Harry Moyer has a song that just suits and is rendered with great success. Morris Jones, a black-fact artist of prominence, entertains the crowd for twenty minutes with a brand new monologue. His impromptu songs are full of innocent humor and keep the audience in a constant uppour. The Yale Trio Club Swingers put on a marvelous act that is, perhaps, more enjoyable than any other in the show. They must be seen to be appreciated. So don't fail to see the Yale Trio. The performance ends with a very laughable film of moving pictures entitled "The Lost Truck."

The First Number.

The first number of the Y. M. C. A. lecture course was successfully rendered to a large audience at the Opera house last night and proved to be one of the best musical entertainments ever given in this city.

The members of the company, J.
Lincoln Newhall, Willis C. Maupin, Stewart A. Smith and Ralph H. Par-land are all stars of the first magnitude. They were compelled to respond from two to five times to encores for each number, which shows how greatly their work was appreciated by the Salem lovers of good music.

Every number was good, but especially so were the chimes, introducing the hymns "Abide With Me," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "Onward, Christian Soldier," arranged by Par-land; "When I'm Big I'll Be a Soldier," bass solo, Malloy; Serenata, bells, McBeth.

NEW YORK FASHIONS

The absence of pronounced changes in the general style of fall and winter suits and outer garments is welcome intelligence to the economically inclined.
Last winter's plaited skirt holds good for ordinary occasions, and the long redingote is still the long redingote.
The newest skirts however are circular, and much wider around the lower edge, the extreme measuring six yards.
The Eton loses nothing in popularity, and for imperfect figures, is of inestimable value. The medium-length jacket is even more potent than the Eton, in concealing defects, but is not so stylish as the short or long garment.
An additional under covering, such as a quilted jacket or wool sweater, renders any of these three styles sufficiently warm for winter use, with the addition of a fur boa.

The Long Redingote

is shown with or without velvet collars and cuffs, and of course manufacturers are happy, as here, the skill of the amateur dressmaker is set at defiance. The Eton comes within the sphere of domestic ingenuity, and with the aid of white broadcloth trimmings, darkest plum to the palest heliotrope.

The next window included all the green shades, the net the browns, in succesion the greys, the wine shades, then the white and pastel shades, with an intermixture of crushed strawberry hues, and various blue tints by way of contrast.

Although Secondary to Broadcloth mixed wools and plaids command a considerable share of attention, a large proportion of the latter fabric being in effective combinations of gay colors.
In silks, all soft varieties are stylish, and moires are in special favor, coming in exquisite shades of all the popular greens, reds, blues and plums, as well as in pale colors for evening wear.
The chameleon silks, showing three tones over which are satin dots or small designs, are really beautiful.

Illustration.

Thanks are due the McCall Co., makers and designers of fashions, for illustration of handsome waists shown above.

The Genuine Winter Coverings are either in Empire style, or the loose three-quarter coat, the former however edged with fancy braid and tiny buttons, artistic results are often attained.

Then too, the Eton admits of many changes in regard to the blouse or chemissette. The "three-piece" suit is in high esteem just now; a plaited skirt, a fancy waist, and short jacket, all matching in color tone, and it is supposed that by using a very heavy lining, and a wool sweater beneath the waist, that the fancy jacket will be warm enough for winter use.

Other Wood Dress Goods.

seem significant when compared with broadcloth, to which fashion has accorded the first position, due certainly from its beauty of finish and wonderful variety of coloring. The window display, made by Lord & Taylor for a week, has scarcely, if ever been equaled in this city. One window was devoted to the purple shades, from the is more stylish. Folds over the shoulders and across back and front often finished by braid, are a handsome trimming, and another ornamentation is a small white lace shawl collar, studded with black velvet and passementerie buttons. The collar is not unfrequently of velvet, edged by a full ribbon frill. Then again, a stitched band outlines the Empire shape and large metallic buttons are the sole trimming. Placed in threes at each side, six at the center of the back, six under each arm, and the same number in front. Sleeves are large, with broad cuffs, and such is the rage for elbow sleeves, that some few cloaks with allow sleeves are shown.

The jacket with lapped seams, in either black or tan remains standard, as the long cloaks are both heavy and expensive.
