

When Cheeks are Pale

A woman's physical condition shows quickly in her face. Pale cheeks, colorless lips, biliousness, sick headache and lassitude indicate conditions that need to be promptly remedied. Every woman is subject to the weaknesses of her sex, but prudence should lead her to strengthen the system at those times when Nature needs assistance. A little forethought will save much distress and prevent painful complications. Taken as needed.

Cobwebs in the Land Office.
"Mr. Hegardt is to be congratulated. First, for his independence in declining to wait for months and perhaps years for an appointment which he received it, would have brought only nominal returns, and second, because a man of his energy and industry can easily make other pursuits more profitable and pleasant than the official game proves to be in this state. In declining to appoint Mr. Hegardt, Secretary Hitchcock has named down an excellent man, and will be fortunate if he secures a better one for the place. If the Hitchcock policy is carried out, a California man will probably be sent up to Roseburg to take charge of the land office. Oregon's irrigation money is to be spent in California, and the system might as well be continued to take in federal offices; so that our southern neighbor could get a little more money out of the state."—Oregonian.

SPIRITS SHOWED THEM

Granddad Comes Back to Show Grandson a Rich Gold Mine

A dispatch from Wenatchee, Wash., dated November 24, says: Bringing a bottle filled with almost pure gold, taken from a lode hidden in mountain fastnesses not far from here, W. E. Bartlett and M. C. Black, both well known business men, are back after a perilous trip to the Cascades. Theirs, however, was labor richly rewarded, though the story is so interwoven with spiritualism and romance that it is well nigh incredible. Bartlett is the grandson of D. E. Ingels, a miner of the early 50's in these parts, who was murdered in the hills by his partner. The Bartlett family are spiritualists, and Bartlett declares his dead grandfather, through a Portland medium, sent word to him to find a lost mine and he would be independent for life.

Direction from the Dead.
Bartlett, who is the proprietor of the Pacific House here, swears positively that he received specific directions from the spirit of his grandfather how to proceed to the lost mine. Moreover, he was told to select M. C. Black, a second hand dealer here, to accompany him. The men will not tell of the location of their find, but say it cannot be reached save by making an extremely dangerous trip and one filled with hardship, especially at this time of the year, when the mountains are firmly in winter's icy grasp. In the spring they will return and develop their find.

In a rough and mountainous section, they say, they found a gray quartz ledge, literally filled with precious metal. Small pieces were broken off, pounded up in a frying pan which they had with them, and the gold piked out by the men's fingers and placed in a bottle. Should the ledge prove as rich as the samples a man could make a mortar and gold pan and in a week's time take out enough of the gold to make him wealthy. The country where the ledge is located is wild and precipitous, and during the stay of the men the snow was falling heavily, and they remained only long enough to satisfy themselves of the location of the ledge.

Bring Back the Gold.
As evidence of their find they have the little bottle of gold dust, which has already been view by dozens of people and tests have been made by O. O. Johnson, which prove that the mineral is genuine.
But the find is not so marvelous as the manner in which it was made—and the tale runs like a fairy story.
D. E. Ingels, the grandfather of Mr. Bartlett, was a pioneer prospector. He was one of the hardy forty-niners of California, and in company with eight others, drifted into this section in 1856.

Alone he made a find in the mountains adjacent to Wenatchee which he considered the greatest discovery of his life. In making the trip into the

Sick Headache

When your head aches, there is a storm in the nervous system, centering in the brain. This irritation produces pain in the head, and the turbulent nerve current sent to the stomach causes nausea, vomiting. This is sick headache, and is dangerous, as frequent and prolonged attacks weaken the brain, resulting in loss of memory, inflammation, epilepsy, fits, dizziness, etc. Allay this stormy, irritated, aching condition by taking Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They stop the pain by soothing, strengthening and relieving the tension upon the nerves—not by paralyzing them, as do most headache remedies. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do not contain opium, morphine, chloral, cocaine or similar drugs.

"Sick headache is hereditary in my family. My father suffered a great deal, and for many years I have had very severe attacks of headache. I took Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and they relieved me almost immediately. Since then I take them when I feel the spell coming on and it stops it at once."

WANT AND NEED.

There's a big difference between what a baby wants and what he needs. Deny him the one, give him the other. Most babies need Scott's Emulsion—it's the right thing for a baby. It contains a lot of strength-building qualities that their food may not contain. After a while they get to want it. Why? Because it makes them comfortable. Those dimples and round cheeks mean health and ease. Scott's Emulsion makes children easy; keeps them so, too.

mountains he was murdered by a companion named Jack Knot, and the body lies buried two and one-half miles up the east side of the Columbia river from Wenatchee. To the members of his family he had confided the great secret, and this secret has been kept as an heirloom ever since.

The members of the Bartlett family are spiritualists and last summer the dead grandfather, through a Portland medium, revealed the whereabouts of the find to the grandson. Minute directions as to the location was given, and final disposition as to the profits of the find were made. M. C. Black was selected by the spirit of the grandfather to accompany his grandson on the search. Mr. Black consented to go, and the journey proved to be a perilous one, but so minute had been the directions given that the rich find was made with but little search.

Will Investigate School Problem.

Rome, Nov. 28.—The positive announcement has been made in Vatican circles that the pope will soon send to the United States a high dignitary of the church to investigate all matters affecting the church in America and to visit all the principal Catholic institutions of the country. The working of the parochial schools will form a special object of inquiry on the part of the papal envoy, as information has reached the Vatican that, notwithstanding the large number of parochial schools established of late in nearly every parish, thousands of Catholic children are still to be found attending the public schools. This, it has been reported here, is particularly the case in New York with the children of Italian parents, of whom more than 25,000 are enrolled in the public schools. The plan suggested some time ago by Bishop Conroy of Los Angeles, at the time rector of the Catholic university at Washington, to convert some of the Catholic colleges at present existing in the United States into regular high schools, is also to be looked into. This plan has recently received much encouragement from several American bishops, who regret the fact that thousands of Catholic children, after ending the course of studies in the parochial schools, are obliged to attend the public schools because no educational institutions have been provided exclusively for Catholics, except in a few isolated cases. It is now proposed that many of the colleges, even those kept by the religious orders, shall change their curriculum so as to conform strictly to the course of studies as followed in the public high schools of the country.

Art Exhibition Opens.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 28.—The first big art loan exhibition under the auspices of the Atlanta Art association opens here today in the gallery on Whitehall street, to remain open until December 12. The exhibition is under the direction of Theodore Cooley, who has been fortunate enough to bring together a large number of the best pictures scattered through the great art centers of this country. During the exhibition there will be a number of lectures on art subjects by prominent artist lecturers and critics. It is hoped that this exhibition will lead to the establishment of a permanent academy of fine arts in this city. The exhibition will be formally opened this evening and a large and brilliant attendance is expected.

ATLANTA HAS BIG PLANS

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 28.—The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has great plans for the future and today, at the annual meeting and biennial election of officers in the afternoon and at the great banquet in the evening the first direct steps will be taken toward carrying out these ambitious plans. The project which will be launched will be taken up first in the annual meeting, at which the officers for the coming year will be elected. The two-year terms of the following officers will expire: President R. F. Maddox, First Vice President Sam D. Jones, Second Vice President Wylie Pope, Treasurer Joseph T. Orms, Directors Louis Newelt, R. L. Forsman, and Harvey L. Anderson. While no actual rule exists against the president holding more than one term, it has become a precedent to select a new head every two years. President Maddox has been a forceful and able president and there are many who would favor his re-election, but it is believed that the established custom will be adhered to. The banquet promises to be a big affair. Between 300 and 400 prominent Southern men, among them the governors of 15 Southern states, have been invited to attend, and most of them are expected to come. One of the principal guests will be Hon. David Francis, the former governor of Missouri, and head of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. The exposition plan will be fully discussed at the banquet, and it is hoped that such enthusiasm for the project will be aroused on that occasion that it will take some tangible form in the near future.
