THROUGH M'KENZIE TO COOS

The Guard learns from a reliable source that the railroad proposed by the Willamette Valley Electric Railway Co., to be built up the McKenzie valley to the east of Eugene, and down the Siuslaw, thence to Coos Bay, to the west, is a certainty in the near future, and that the motive power will be steam instead of electricity, as at first announced by the company, which was the first of the several concerns to announce the building of electric railroads in Lane county, and which secured franchises from the county courts of Lane and Benton. It is furthermore learned by the Guard, which has received its information from parties in close touch with the promoters of the enterprise that Gould's Western Pacific is back of this move, and that Eugene will be touched and Lane county bisected by a great transcontinental railroad.

The Willamette Valley Electric Railway Company has maintained an office in Eugene since it first entered the field, over a year ago, and, while many people believed the project had been practically abandoned, the promoters stoutly maintained that time would tell whether or not they meant business, and for the people to wait and see. For two or three months past there has been considerable activity at the company's office here. W. J. Wilsey, one of the promoters, has made frequent trips here, but there has been maintained strict secrecy, and nothing whatever has been given out for publication. The Guard got its tip about the Western Pacific from a person who is a close friend of one or two of the promoters who have made their headquarters here, and the tip seems to be a straight one.

A dispatch from San Francisco a few days ago stated that the Western Pacific would not build into Oregon, but one of the Portland papers discovered a move which disproved the statement, and the Guard is able to add its quota of proof that the great Gould system will enter the Willamette valley via the McKenzie Pass, and make Coos Bay its Oregon terminus.—Eugene Guard.

Celebrating North Carolina Day.

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 22.—In accordance with the proclamation issued by State Superintendent of Schools J. Y. Jowner North Carolina day is celebrated today in all the public schools in the state. By a special act the state legislature has ordered that one day in the year should be designated as North Carolina day and be appropriately celebrated in all the public schools. The celebration consists of musical exercises, singing of patriotic songs, recitations and addresses dealing with the early history of North Carolina. This year the "Upper Cape Fear" is the topic selected for the addresses. Pamphlets containing much of the valuable and interesting history of that historic section, including a study of the Scotch Highlanders and their settlement, the important battle of Moore's creek, brief biographies of some of the greatest men of that section, etc., had been prepared by the state superintendent with great care and been sent to the superintendents of the schools in all parts of the state, to be used as the basis for the addresses to be delivered on the occasion of today's celebration.

With the approval of the state superintendent voluntary collections were made among the school children in all public schools for the purpose of raising a fund with which to defray the cost of a monument in honor of Calvin H. Wiley, the first state superintendent of schools of North Carolina, who organized the public school system of the state. The monument is to be erected in this city, and $250 has already been raised by contributions from the school children. It is expected that sufficient amount will be raised today to insure the erection of the monument.

German Training Ship Arrives.

Galveston, Tex., Dec. 22.—The training ship Stosch, of the German navy, arrived here today and was greeted by the whistles and sirens of the ships in the harbor and a salute from the naval station. The German cruiser Bremen has been here for several weeks and in a few weeks another German ship is expected here, the Grossherzogin Elisabeth, which is a training ship for the merchant marine.

Destructive Blaze.

Here is a bit of warm description that needs passing around:

The second destructive fire in the history of Shaniko occurred on last Sunday evening, when two residences belonging to F. A. Blondin together with the house hold effects went up in smoke. It was about 5 o'clock in the evening when the fire alarm was given and a few minutes later the department was on the scene followed by the entire population of the town, by this time the residence of Mr. Blondin's was almost destroyed and the fire had switched across to his other dwelling on the same lot. The fire fighters immediately began their battle with the mighty blaze in hopes of saving the second building, but owing to an accident in getting ready to begin fighting the fire a strong wind sprang up and by the time the water was in full blast against the burning building it was too late to have effect. The department done effective work when they got into full action, and it was only through the hardest kind of a fight that the dwellings of J. C. Fowlie and Chas. Campbell were saved.

It is not known just how the fire started but, the supposition is that it was from a defective flue.

Mr. Blondin estimates his loss at $3000 to $4000 and says the insurance will not cover one fourth the loss. Mr. Fowlie and Mr. Campbell were probably damaged to the extent of $200, in moving the furniture from their dwelling during the fire.

Tell it Not in Gath.

W. N. Gatens, secretary to the governor, is getting the Christmas spirit without a doubt. His latest scheme is to secure a monster bunch of misletoe, well loaded with berries, and hang it in the top of the dome. Thus each sweet and tender maiden that enters the state house door would be subject to the mystic charm. As the plan met with the hearty approval of the reporters to whom it was suggested, it will probably be carried out at once.

Cauterized the Shack.

In celebration of the fact that they had done their last dissecting work in the old cadaver house, which stood back of the gymnasium, a number of the medical students last night removed all the useful parts of it's equipment, and made a bonfire of the building. The fire department had been notified before hand, but when someone turned in the alarm they made the run, but made no effort to stop the good work of the flames. The fire was kindled at about 9:30, and in less than an hour all that was left of the dead house was a bunch of ashes.

The next dissecting work done by the students will be in the regular dissecting room of the new building, into which they will move soon after the holidays.

The medical students will take notes on their last lecture for this year this afternoon, and the most of them will depart for their homes to spend Christmas under the parental roof.

Crook County Assessment.

The summary of the Crook county assessment roll, filed with the secretary of state this morning, shows the gross value of all property in the county is $3,059,383, or $370,600 greater than last year.

Reformation of a Kind.

"Yes, kind lady, my four years' term expires in two weeks, then when I get out of the pen I am going to reform and start a little cigar store. I kin buy one for $600. Have I friends what'll advance me the money? Naw, I kin steal that much in two nights."
—Lippincott's.

A Good Excuse.

He was one of the happiest "kids" in town. He stood in front of his home and grinned enthusiastically as he saw the others unwillingly wending their way toward school.

"Come on, Harold," shouted several of the boys.

"Not on your life," answered the rejoicing Harold. "No school for me today. I'm going to stay home."

"What's the matter, sick?"

"No."

"Your ma sick?"

"No."

"Well, why?"

"Oh, cause. You see, my grand'ma's come to spend the day with mamma and gran'ma she is awful hard on her in'. Mamma's got a cold on her chest and in her neck, and she can't talk loud enough for gran'ma to hear what she says, so I've got to stay home to tell gran'ma what mamma says. See!"

No Time to Lose.

He was poor but enterprising, and also was rich and homely.

"Will you marry me?" he asked abruptly.

"W-why this is so sudden," she exclaimed. "Give me a little time to—"

"Can't do it," he interrupted. "I need the money."

And so they were married and lived more or less happily ever after.—Chicago News.
