Letter Moving Day

It is the time when the office boy feels his importance, by being called upon to assume the weight of the past year's correspondence. He is in luck if his employer is conversant with the Globe-Wernicke filing device, transfer cases and indexes, for then his job is a comparatively easy one. We invite your attention to our office display during the month of January as we have made a special effort to have a full line of these goods, thereby saving you any annoyance from delays in delivery. Globe-Wernicke goods are always carried in stock because there is a constant demand for them, but now is your opportunity to make a selection.

SOCIAL EVENTS

The first day of the New Year, 1906, was fittingly celebrated by a large number of Salem's people. Most of the business houses were closed and family dinners were in order. Several young people started out the New Year by entering into matrimonial ties. The charity ball last evening was a fitting reception to the opening of the social season of '06.

New Year's Dinner.

A New Year's dinner was held at the old U. V. U. hall by the ladies of the G. A. R., where they had a large and enthusiastic audience, and the ladies spread before the comrades and their friends on of the finest dinners ever given at the hall. The W. R. C. ladies are noted for their dinners. After the spread, a voluntary offering was made of $15 to go toward the cemetery monument fund.

Kelley-Johnson Wedding.

A pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. Johnson, 797 Fifteenth street, December 31, 1905, when their second daughter, Lydia J., became the wife of Vernon F. Kelley, in the presence of the families.

At 5 o'clock the sweet strains of the bridal song, "Oh, Promise Me" was sung by Miss Edna Savage, at the close of which Mrs. Cliffe played Lohegrin's wedding march and the bridal party entered and stood beneath a beautiful arch made of small ivy, in bloom, and ferns. The background was of potted plants, while directly over the young couple was a large lover's knot of cream ribbon. Rev. Cliffe, pastor of the First Baptist church, performed the simple but impressive ring service. During the ceremony, the instrumental solo "Oh, Promise Me," was softly rendered on the piano. During the congratulations Mendelssohn's wedding march was played, after which the bridal party and guests retired to the dining room, where a dainty luncheon of several courses was served. The table was very pretty, white streamers, interwoven with smilax, being suspended from the center of the room to the four corners of the table. Golden candle sticks with white carnation shades lighted the room. The center piece was white carnations. The entire decorations throughout the house were confined to white carnations, smilax and ferns.

The bride was gowned in cream tulle, richly trimmed, while the bridesmaid, Miss Elizabeth Johnson, sister of the bride, wore a pretty dress of silk organdy of cream and blue. The groom was attended by Ray Lang, of Portland.

The bride was raised in the Capital City, where she has many admirers among Salem's best people, who appreciate her excellent qualities, while the groom, though from the East less than a year ago, has a large circle of friends. They are both trusted employees at the hospital for the insane, at which place they will continue to work.

Boeschen-Saloman.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized last evening at the spacious residence of General W. H. Odell, on East State street, when Miss Mary Saloman became the bride of Arthur C. Boeschen. The large parlors, which had been appropriately decorated in green and red, were well filled with guests when the bridal party entered, as the sweet strains of "Lohegrin" were rendered by Prof. Roberts, who presided at the piano. The bride was given away by General Odell, while the groom was unattended. As the couple took their place under a large wedding hall, suspended from an arch, backed with palms and ferns, the music ceased while President Coleman.

of Willamette University, pronounced the solemn words which made them man and wife. The beautiful ring ceremony of the Methodist church, of which both the contracting parties are members, was used, and in this the little Misses Fanie Saloman and Ada Coleman, as flower girls, and Odell Savage as ring bearer, played a pretty part. As the ceremony was concluded one of the little girls rang the bell and another pulled a ribbon which showed the couple with chrysanthemum petals. As soon as they were introduced as Mr. and Mrs. Boeschen by President Coleman, Prof. Roberts struck up the lively strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, which was continued while the bride and groom received the congratulations and best wishes of their many friends.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white mousseline silk, trimmed with insertion and lace. The groom wore the conventional black.

The decoration were in green and red, with green as the predominating color. After the congratulations had been given, and the many costly presents had been viewed, the guests repaired to the dining room, where a sumptuous wedding banquet was served. The favors were little silken bags of rice, encircled by a small horse shoe, bearing the name of the guest.

The bride is the oldest daughter of Mrs. Naomi Saloman, of Prineville, and has been a student in the College of Oratory at the University for the past three years, where she took a prominent part in all the social and other student enterprises. The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Boeschen, and has spent almost his entire life in the Capital City. At present he is bookkeeper for the Salem book bindery.

Mr. and Mrs. Boeschen left on the late train last night for the south on a short wedding trip, and will be at home at 156 Fourteenth street, after January 10th.

The invited guests were President Coleman and wife, M. H. Savage and wife, Prof. W. C. Hawley and wife, General W. H. Odell and wife, C. A. Park and wife, Mrs. Crabtree, Mrs. Conn, the Misses Olive Biddell, Gussie and Ivy Booth, Bertha Hewitt, Gladys Wood, Birdie Morris and Messrs. Brown, Alvin Nace, M. Ward, McKinney and Edgar Aycock.

Charity Ball.

The armory hall was the scene of a pleasant event last evening, when about 100 of Salem's society people "tripped the light fantastic." Among the guests were a large number of out-of-town people, and the affair was an enjoyable one indeed. Governor and Mrs. George Chamberlain led the grand march. McElroy's orchestra rendered delightful music throughout the evening. The ball was given under the auspices of the Salem Library Board, for the benefit of the public library, and was quite a success.

Entertained at Dinner.

Mrs. T. M. McHugh and sister, Miss Davis, entertained at dinner Saturday evening in honor of their brother, Guy, who spent the holidays here. Covers were laid for 16.

Week-End Party at Jefferson.

A jolly crowd of young people spent the end of the past holiday week at Jefferson. Among them were the Misses Louise Cooper, Pauline Davis, Mary Nolan, Mary Daanerman, of Corvallis; Emma Sox, of Albany; Messrs. Roy Bishop, Clifford Brown, Gordon Moore, of Salem; Julie and Kenneth Cooper, of Corvallis, and Sam Damon, of Independence. As they were all friends of the Stewers, Miss Helen and her brothers, Karl and Fred, did much of the entertaining for them. Friday they formed an interesting party at the football game between the Albany Athletic Club and the Jefferson Club. That evening they all attended the dancing party given at the Jefferson hall. They were also entertained at the beautiful Stewer home.

At the High School.

With appropriate exercises the new high school building was fittingly dedicated last evening, and today the halls are resounding to the footfalls of many children and with the sound of their voices.

The assembly hall, which is one of the finest in the Northwest, was crowded to the "guards" last night, and the addresses and other parts of the program were enjoyed by all. One number which was not scheduled to take place caused some little diversion and no end of excitement for a few minutes. The members of the senior class had manufactured a very pretty "old pennant" and placed it in the center of "old glory," which was draped across the back of the stage. The members of the junior class evidently thought the seniors were getting all the honor that was coming, by having seats in the platform, without having the additional pleasure of having their banners where all could see, while the colors of the lower classmen were conspicuous by their absence, so during a lull in the proceedings they made a grand rush for the stage. They succeeded in snatching the hated rag from its place of honor on the wall, but before they could make their escape, the senior boys were down upon them and rescued their banner from disgrace.

This incident served to call forth some severe criticism from the speakers, but otherwise everything went according to program, old friendships and acquaintances of students of "y olden days" were renewed, and everything was as merry as a marriage bell.

Funeral Notice.

The funeral services of the late Wm. N. Bennett, who departed this life on Sunday, December 31, 1905, will be held at the residence of his daughter Mrs. Henry B. Thielson, corner of Capital and Court streets, of this city, Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Friends cordially invited. Services at the cemetery private.

FACTS ON MARRIAGE.

Was Not Solemnized As a Religious Rite Until A. D. 1198.

The historical facts concerning marriage as an institution are probably only vaguely known to the majority of people, most of whom would doubtless be surprised that the institution as we know it today, is less than 800 years old. Histories of the marriage ceremony show that it was not solemnized in church as a religious rite until the time of Pope Innocent III, A. D. 1198, and was not considered a sacrament until 1442.—Harper's Weekly.

Sickening, Shivering Fits.

Of ague and malaria can be relieved and cured with Electric Bitters. It is a pure, tonic medicine, of especial benefit in malaria, for it exerts a curative influence on the disease, bringing it entirely out of the system. It is much to be preferred to quinine, being none of this drug's bad after effects. E. S. Munday, of Houston, Texas, writes: "My brother was low with malarial fever and jaundice until he took Electric Bitters, which saved his life." At J. C. Perry's store; price 50c, guaranteed.

AGAINST COLLEGE TRAINING

The present educational systems were attacked by Rev. B. A. Paddock, president of the Idaho industrial institute, in an address delivered before the co-operative class at the First Congregational church Sunday, December 31st. The speaker declared the average college graduate is a complete failure when called on to make his living by manual labor, and the whole educational system tends to create a feeling of caste. He urged as a remedy that students be required to devote at least half of the day to learning a trade.

"I believe the social disorders which are prevalent in this country today arise from the fact that our system of education is all wrong," he said. "We are training one faculty only and sacrificing the others. The remedy is to be found in a half-time school, where the student will be kept half a day at his books and taught some trade during the other half. The half-time school system would arouse a wholesome feeling of respect for fellow workers and would tend to break down feeling of caste."

"Many prominent employers have told me the poorest recommendation a young man can bring them is his college diploma. The fault lies in the fact that too much attention is paid to theory, while practical work, the thing most needed in the battle with the world, is almost entirely overlooked. Give the boy an education, but give him also the means of applying that education."

A Coast Candidate.

Judge C. A. Schilbrude, of Marshfield, is in the field for nomination for governor of Oregon, and of Mr. Schilbrude the Coast Mail says: "The name of Judge C. A. Schilbrude has been for many years familiar to the people of Oregon. He came to the state about 30 years ago, when quite a young man, and has become thoroughly identified with all Oregon's interests. He has always been prominent in the councils of the Republican party, and on several occasions wielded a large influence in shaping the state ticket, and the policy of the party. By birth Judge Schilbrude is a Kentuckian, and by profession he is a lawyer. In 1894 he was elected to the Oregon legislature from our adjoining county (Douglas) and made a splendid record for ability, influence and economy. In 1898 he was appointed by President McKinley United States commissioner and probate judge for Alaska, and served in that capacity until December 1, 1901, when he resigned and returned to Oregon, and about two years ago located at Marshfield, this county, where he now resides, and is engaged in the practice of law."—Gardner Gazette.

The Mother of Counties.

The Dalles Chronicle gives a brief history of the oldest county in the state, Wasco, which is copied in the Journal today. The article overlooks the fact that in territorial days all Eastern Washington was included in Wasco. The county was so big that a man sentenced to the county jail for six months from Fort Hall never got there. The constable in charge of him traveled horse back for three months, and not having reached the county seat, he remarked to the prisoner: "Well, Bill, your time is half out, and our horses are getting tired, the sentence will expire before we get home, so we might as well start back."

Another story is told of an arrest made on a warrant issued by Judge Gates, at The Dalles, which was served so far east, the sheriff took the man on to New York, and brought him home by way of the Isthmus.

His Choice.

A traveling salesman arrived at home about 3 o'clock in the morning to discover that his wife and given birth to triplets. He was delighted almost beyond control of himself. "My," he said, "I must go right in and wake up Docley." Docley was his next door neighbor and a dog fancier. He pulled Docley out of bed, got him to hurry on his clothes, brought him in about half awake, and stood him before the triplets. "Aren't they dandies?" he asked. Docley gazed at them in a semi-awakened state and, still rubbing the sleep from his eyes, replied: "Yes, they're all right. I think if I were you I would keep that one in the middle."—Punch.

A Grim Tragedy.

Finally she took Dr. King's new Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, which cured her, and today she is well and strong." It kills the germs of all diseases. One dose relieves.
