Irish-American Athletic Games

New York, Feb. 3.—One of the most attractive athletic cards ever presented to local followers of track and field sports will be offered this evening at the Irish-American Athletic club games in Madison Square garden. Aside from the regular list of handicap events there will be four relay races. One will be for mixed school boys, another for Church Athletic League and Y. M. C. A. teams, and two others, an inter-city and inter-collegiate, both scratch and at one mile. Still another feature will be a ten mile run, for which about 30 contestants are entered.

The complete list of events is as follows: 60 yards, 200 yards, 1000 yards and one mile runs; pole vault, throwing 56 pound weight, putting 28 pound weight, and 300 yard 28 hurdles, all handicaps; 600 yard run for novices and the relay races.

The prizes are unusually valuable this year, including a gold splitting watch for first prize in the ten mile run, a gold watch for the second and a gold signet ring for the third in the same event; also a special prize consisting of a diamond studded gold medal donated by Justice Victor J. Dowling and a long list of other regular and special prizes of considerable value.

Teams from Philadelphia, Boston and several other cities will compete in the inter-city races and in the one-mile run there will be a duel between Sheppard, the Irish-American miler, and Jim Sullivan. Among the prominent field athletes who will take part in the weight throwing and putting contests will be Flanagan, Sheldon, Mitchell, the Sheidans, Burke, Horan, and others.

A special attraction will be a game of Gaelic football between Leatrim and Tipperary Gaelic football teams. The match promises to be highly interesting and will undoubtedly attract considerable attention.

JACOB VOGT

More Field Work for the Army.
Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The army is receiving with considerable satisfaction the announcement that the President has determined on more field work for the troops. General Leonard Wood impressed on the President when he was in Washington last summer the necessity of doing something special in military training under actual field conditions, just as the navy works at sea. It is realized by the military authorities that the army is composed for the most part of men who have had no experience in the field. The soldiers who are hardened by marches and camping have been retired or have failed to re-enlist. It is presumably out of the question to have elaborate manoeuvres frequently, owing to their great expense, not only in the item of damage to property by the operations of troops, but by the cost of travel of the regular army and militia. The secretary of war and the President are in favor of having joint manoeuvres in the present year, but there are signs of opposition to the plan in congress, and it is likely that the department will abandon the effort to obtain funds for such an association of the regulars and the national guard. One general officer whose recommendations have much weight with the President is in favor of having a change of stations throughout the army once in 12 months the change to be made by marching rather than by the use of railroads. It was found that in the nearly 1000 mile march between stations of the Sixth battery, field artillery, that the transfer was effected without much difficulty or many privations. Of course there were discomforts, especially as the command encountered bad weather, but the expense of the transfer was practically nothing above the regular cost of maintenance, while the gain in practical work was of great value to the hitherto inexperienced men.

There will be some of these marches in the coming year and infantry, cavalry and light artillery commands will be sent into the field periodically for three days at a time, using the new 3-foot food packet and the emergency ration. In these three day tours of field duty there will be at least two camps, so that the men may become accustomed to taking care of themselves at night and preparing their food away from the garrison.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions or odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in the stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

HOWARD ENTERS PRISON

Convicted of Murdering Goebel—He Fights Six Years For Liberty

Starts a Life Sentence.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 2.—John Howard, convicted of the murder of William Goebel, arrived at the Frankfort penitentiary today to spend the rest of his life there, unless some unexpected turn of fortune liberates him. He is one of the most interesting characters that ever crossed the threshold of the penitentiary, and his arrival caused considerable stir among the people of this city and the prison officials in particular.

After spending nearly six years in jail, standing three trials and fighting his case through the supreme court, Howard was defeated in his struggle for liberty and the supreme court confirmed the judgment of the Kentucky courts.

Howard never lost his nerve for a single moment. He was as cheerful on his way to the penitentiary as upon his arrival as he was on the first day of his arrest and said that he was confident that he would eventually be vindicated and liberated.

In many cases Howard is the most picturesque figure of the Goebel murder cases. The commonwealth represented him as the typical mountain feud fighter and dead shot who went to Frankfort to kill Goebel in return for a pardon for having killed George Baker in a feud. Personally Howard does not fill the idea of such a person at all. He would never have been taken for a desperate man from the mountains. He is handsome and of distinguished appearance, of the physique and unusually graceful with easy manners. He looks like a man of fine intellect and a student indeed, he has been a student for five years, as during his imprisonment he has devoted his time to perfecting himself in the law.

Howard was born in Clay county 40 years ago. His father was a school teacher. Howard lived in the mountains all his life and early became an expert shot, like all Kentucky mountaineers. He was first a deputy sheriff of Clay county, then school teacher, lawyer, general storekeeper and government revenue service and finally assessor of Clay county, which he held when he became involved in the Goebel trial.

Howard is a victim of a Kentucky feud, whatever were the circumstances of the killing of Goebel. He was in Frankfort the day Goebel was shot, trying to procure a pardon for killing George Baker from W. S. Taylor, then governor of Kentucky. The prosecution has maintained that he was to get the pardon for killing Goebel. Howard has maintained that in this seeming connection he was the victim of circumstances.

The Baker-Howard feud broke out in 1897. The Bakers one day ambushed Jim Howard's father and two brothers, killing the brothers and separately wounding the father. Jim Howard, as soon as he heard of it, mounted his horse and rode to the scene. He claims the Bakers tried to ambush him and that he escaped by using his horse as a shield. In the encounter he shot George Baker to death.

Howard was indicted for the murder of Goebel in April, 1900. He was then in Clay county, where he might have remained indefinitely, as the mountaineers are Republicans and would have afforded him protection against an army. But in the month of May Howard went to Frankfort and surrendered. His first trial resulted in a sentence of death, his second of life imprisonment, both being reversed. The third verdict was life imprisonment and was sustained by the supreme court.
