PENZANCE

Given as benefit by University and High School
Pretty girls, stylish costumes and catchy music.

Prices 75c, 50c, 35c. Orchestra 75c. Balcony 35c.
All others 50.

MOST GENTLE PIRATES

Imported From Penzance,
Along With a Bevy of Piratical Girl Heart-Breakers

There is no longer any doubt that the opera, "Pirates of Penzance," which is to be given at the Grand Opera House Friday evening, is to be the best and most successful musical event ever given by local talent in the Capital City. Salem people should take the more pride in it, since it has been managed, conducted and is to be presented by Salem teachers and students.

The whole scheme of the opera is as charming as it can be, while the music is very catchy, and it is safe to say that you will have something else to hum beside "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree" and "Everybody Works at Our House but My Old Dad" if you hear this opera. There will be an orchestra of nine pieces, the members of which have been drilled until they play as one person. There will be any number of pretty girls and stylish costumes, so that the production will be a delight to the eye, as well as to the ear.

The price of admission has been placed within the reach of all, and, as the proceeds are to be divided equally between the pipe organ fund of the University and the piano fund of the high school, the opera house should and will be crowded to the doors.

It will also be one of the swiftest social events of the season, and several of Salem's society leaders, assisted by Mrs. Geo. E. Chamberlain, will act as patronesses.

Mr. Subbub... Tenor
Mrs. Subbub... Soprano
Landlord... Bass
(Enter Landlord, discovers the Subbubs in their cottage.)

Landlord—Come, pay your rent, come, pay your rent.

Mrs. S.—What does he say? What does he say?

Mr. S.—He says our rent is due—oo.

The S. (duet)—He says our rent, he says our rent, he says our rent.

All (trio)—Due—oo—oo—oo—oo.

Mr. S.—No dough have I, I have no dough—oo—oo.

Mrs. S.—No, no, no, dough. We have no dough—oo—oo.

L.—He has no dough—oo, Oh, woe, oh woe!

All (trio)—Oh, woe, no dough—oo. What shall we do—oo—oo?

L.—The rent is due, I say to you. So please come through.

Mrs. S.—Our money flew.

Mr. S.—Alas, too true.

The S. (duet)—It did skidoo. (Crying) Boo—hoo—oo.

L.—Give me the cash or you I'll smash.

Mrs. S. (pleading)—Now, don't be rash.

Mr. S.—Then out I'll dash.

L.—He wants to skip. Give me the slip and Twenty-three.

Mrs. S.—Oh, do not go and leave me so, I'll also flee.

Mr. S.—Then come with me.

All (trio)—Tra-la, tra-la! Tra-la, tra-la! TRA-LA, TRA-LA-HEE-EE!!

L.—But where's my rent, my rent, my rent?

Mrs. S.—It's spent, it's spent, it's spent.

The S. (duet)—We've not one cent.

Let's wait.—John W. Kelley in Evening Telegram.

THREE HUNDRED WILL EAT

Lincoln Banquet by Young Men's Club Assured Success

The Young Men's Republican Club meets tonight at 7:30 at the police court room to perfect a few final arrangements for the Lincoln birthday banquet. Three hundred tickets have been sold, and the Women's Relief Corps will have their hands full carrying out their contract. Many of the leading ladies of the city will be kept busy that evening handing out delicious viands to the Republican braves that will assemble and whet their appetites for the political fray that comes later on. Tickets are sold to any Republican, and many delegations are coming in from the surrounding country to hear the speeches. Judge L. T. Harris, a talented young Republican from our sister city of Eugene, will deliver the only set speech—a formal eulogy of Abraham Lincoln. Of course, all the known candidates for state, congressional and county offices will be there, and will be the entertainers for the occasion. Hal Patton, of the Young Men's Republican Club, will preside. The Steelhammer and Stoudemeyer orchestras has been combined for music during the banquet, and the Salem Military band will welcome the guests at Hotel Willamette. Tickets can be had at The Journal of fee and many other places.

X-RAYS

Turkey may be considered a delicacy, but "good mush is good." At least that's what the Blues say.

An exchange says Pat McArthur may be a candidate for representative. But he doesn't know where to run, whether in Polk where his farm is, or in Multnomah, where he is studying law, or in Lane where his girl is.

The Eugene Register insinuates the Associated Press dispatches are superior to Scripps. Every newspaper man who has tried both always wishes whichever one he gets, that he had taken the other. Neither of them is better than the other—they are each worse.

A dispatch yesterday conveys the gratifying intelligence that a full description of Miss Roosevelt's wardrobe, from stockings to lid, will be given to the public, and from the White House at that. The country is prosperous now, and when it learns all about this wad of lingerie, it should be reasonably happy.

Itch—Ringworm.

E. T. Lucas, Wingo, Ky., writes: April 25, 1902: "For 10 to 12 years I had been afflicted with a malady known as the itch. The itching was most unbearable; I had tried for years to find relief, having tried all remedies I could hear of, besides a number of doctors. I wish to state that one single application of Ballard's Snow Liniment cured me completely and permanently. Since then I have used the liniment on two separate occasions for ringworm and it cured completely. 25c, 50c and $1.00. For sale D. J. Fry, Salem, Oregon.

How Did They Do It?

A pair of little pigs carried in an oil can about two miles, found their way back home after one night's stay in their new quarters. This really occurred here a short time ago, when John Bower bought from the Miller farm these little pigs for Mr. Giesy—Aurora Borealis.

LINCOLN'S CARELESSNESS.

His Hat His Favorite Receptacle for Letter and Papers.

(From Frederick Trevor Hill's "Lincoln the Lawyer" in the February Century.

When Lincoln was postmaster of New Salem he used to tuck the letters inside his hat and deliver them whenever he happened to meet the persons to whom they were addressed. As this is a fair example of his business system, it may really be imagined that the office of Stuart & Lincoln was not a model establishment, where there was a place for everything and everything in its place. And it was not, indeed, as a managing clerk, the junior partner would have been a hopeless failure, and as an attorney, in the technical sense of the term, he would never have distinguished himself. He disliked everything connected with the drudgery of legal routine, hated drawing the declarations and pleas, despised the artificialities and refinements which were even then beginning to creep into the pleadings, and disregarded forms whenever it was possible to do so.

There was nothing mechanical, precise or methodical about the man, and in all those housewifely virtues which characterized the careful, orderly, exact solicitor he was utterly deficient. He never knew where his papers were, and apparently the only attempt he ever made to better the disorder was to write on one of his bundles of papers which littered his desk, "When you can't find it anywhere else look in this." But that was long after the firm of Stuart & Lincoln had dissolved, and even then we find him explaining to a correspondent that he had placed his letter inside an old hat and had thus neglected answering it, which shows he had not wholly outgrown the habit of his postoffice days. Indeed, his hat continued to be his favorite receptacle for papers long as he lived, and he never acquired any sense of order.

Fraud Exposed.

A few counterfeiters have lately been making and trying to sell imitations of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and other medicines thereby defrauding the public. This is to warn you to beware of such people, who seek to profit, through stealing the reputation of remedies which have been successfully curing disease for over 35 years. A sure protection to you is—our name on all Dr. King's or Bucklen's remedies, as all others are mere imitations. H. E. BUCKLEN & CO., Chicago, Ill., and Windsor, Canada.

The Law of Hibernating.

We are likely to follow the books, and speak of hibernating as belonging only to bears, hedgehogs and a few other creatures. But study your barnyard animals, and you will learn better. As soon as the ground ceases to furnish succulent food the cattle stand around the gates of the out-buildings, or nibble slowly at the big stacks. In the middle of the day they separate and stroll leisurely about the big pasture. They move so slowly, however, that you may take an easy photograph of the whole herd. There is but one wideawake creature about the barns. The rooster crows across the frosty morn as the day star begins to pale into the yellow light of a lazy sun; yet the hen finds nothing interesting in the fields, but snugs herself under the lee of some hedge, or spends two-thirds of each day on her roost.

BRYANT & REEDER.

The same law of hibernating covers the vegetable world. The butternut and the ash get tired early in September, and the American elms and soft maples go to sleep a little later. The sugar maples, magnolias and persimmons drop their leaves in early October. The European trees, ashes and maples and elms and oaks, bring along their old European instincts, and stay green till November. Apple trees cannot rest until their fruit is picked; then at once they grow desperately somnolent. It makes one laugh to see their drooping eyelids. Soon the whole vegetable world is hibernating. In the spring it will wake up sometime before the snow is gone. Hyacinths and crocus come crawling up out of the earth bed, rubbing their eyes and not quite wide awake when they first get above ground.

This business of hibernating should be reckoned upon in our study of humanity, and in our methods of education. It is a bad thing to turn night into day, and just as bad to turn winter into summer. There should be a spirit of rest and recuperation through all the winter months, in household and in school. Homely games are now in order—something that will not tax the brain, and will rather foster sleep than prevent it. Our fathers understood this matter when they sat around the big fireplaces, eating apples and nuts, and getting into bed soon after the chickens and the crows.—The Independent.
