Must Stand Trial in California

Deputy Sheriff Minto returned this morning from California, where he located H. E. Farnham, wanted here for defrauding a local hotel keeper, and leaving other unpaid bills in Salem. Farnham has been arrested in San Bernardino, Cal., where he is indicted for obtaining money under false pretenses. He is held for six different charges. He was arrested while going the rounds of the merchants of the city, soliciting business for a San Francisco collecting agency. His game was to obtain $15 as a membership fee under the promise of free collections in the future. The afternoon of his arrest he was accompanied by a pretty little woman who claimed to be his wife. She, however, has since disappeared, and probably carried away the money obtained from the San Bernardino merchants. Farnham wears an Elks' button, and states that he is a member of Reno lodge. Mr. Minto did not go to San Bernardino, but located his victim through the postoffice department of San Francisco.

If Farnham is not found guilty as charged, arrangements have been made for his delivery to the Oregon officers. If found guilty he will first serve his sentence in California, and then he will be brought to the bar of justice in Oregon.

IDAHO MURDER CASES

(Four O'Clock Edition.)

Boise, Idaho, Feb. 21.—Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, in charge of a deputy warden and guards, were taken to Caldwell this morning for arraignment. The train stopped opposite the county jail, and the prisoners were transferred. At 10 o'clock they were brought before Judge Church, where the information was read, charging each with murdering ex-Governor Steunenberg. The prisoners were represented by F. Richardson, of Denver. The latter had no legal authority to appear, not having been admitted to practice in Idaho. The courtesy of appearing was extended at the request of Prosecuting Attorney Van Dusen. Pettibone was the first arraigned, the affidavit read charging him with exploding the bomb by which Frank Steunenberg met his death the night of December 30th. The same charge was then read to Haywood and Moyer; the affidavit directly charging the defendants with the crime of murder. Defendants stood mute, and refused to plead.

Richardson demanded an immediate preliminary hearing. Under the law it must be had within ten days after arraignment. The attorneys agreed that the cases should go over to the 27th. Richardson demanded the prosecution produce the names of witnesses by which proof of charges are to be established, but the court overruled the motion on the ground that the prosecution alleged it had three witnesses who will corroborate the affidavit of the prosecuting attorney. Richardson contended the affidavit was not sufficient, as it charged the individuals with being present at Caldwell and committing a crime when Pettibone had not been in Idaho for 12 years, Haywood for eight years or Moyer since last October, and the complaint did not charge them with conspiracy. The court ordered the prisoners be permitted to have books, but no newspapers, and they may write letters, if inspected by the warden. The defendants, if inspected by the warden, the defendants were committed without bail, pending the preliminary hearing. The party was brought back to the penitentiary at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Boise, Idaho, Feb. 21.—News of the arrest of Heywood, Moyer and others caused the greatest excitement in Silver City and Delamar mining camps. A detective, who has been working there as a miner for the past two weeks, was discovered, and narrowly escaped death at the hands of excited miners. Officers had great difficulty in getting him away.

Denver, Feb. 21.—The Western Federation will expend $100,000, if necessary, to secure the release of Moyer, Heywood, Pettibone, and any other members of its organization who may be arrested in connection with the assassination of Steunenberg or any other crime of which they believe them to be innocent.

Many a lame, weak and aching back is had no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. People are telling the good news of their experience with the Old Quaker Remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

Mrs. L. W. Monech, wife of L. W. Monech, cabinet maker, residing corner Fourth and Main streets, Albany, Oregon, says: "After any ever exertion, or when I contracted a cold, pain seated itself in the seat of my back, causing it to ache severely, and there was a difficulty with the kidney secretions. On such occasions stooping, lifting, twisting or turning was always followed by sharp shooting twinges through the kidneys. When I was badly in need of something to bring relief I read about Doan's Kidney's Pills and procured a box and took them strictly according to directions. They thoroughly relieved me of the last attack, and up to the present time I have not had a trace of symptoms of irritated or inactive kidneys. I will be pleased to allow you to use my name if it will be the means of doing good to others."

Governor Talks of Washington.

Washington's farewell address ought to be read once a year at least before the students of our schools, colleges and universities. It stands without a parallel among state papers," so said Governor Chamberlain in his address before the students of Willamette University this morning.

The speaker then referred to parts of the message and showed how well American statesmen had endeavored to follow the policies set forth by the great American.

Speaking of the stories and anecdotes told of George Washington, Governor Chamberlain stated that they always appeared to him a little mythical, yet they subverted the purpose for which they were intended—to bring out some striking traits in the life and character of America's foremost citizen.

Great as the military record of Washington in his most effective and brilliant services to his country were those he rendered in the realm of statesmanship.

Indomitable courage, truthfulness, persevering effort, determined action—those were the characteristics that made Washington "first in war and first in the hearts of his countrymen." The address was well received.

Portland's Leading "Vud." (Fossil Journal.)

A mountebank preacher named Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher has been making in the lime light of Portland the past few weeks by reason of his being repeatedly attacked from the pit George Shepherd and other Portland councilmen who do not vote city affairs to suit him. The brand of Brougher's venom has been directed at Shepherd, probably because George has been a highly respected citizen of Portland from his youth and is a man of some prominence in the town, and therefore a sharp mark for sensational meddocrism aim at.

No doubt to his assailant's surprise Mr. Shepherd accepted the sage battle thrown down by the monologues of the White Temple vaudeville, oh! but didn't he grill the latter with a beautiful crispy brown. George not in it with the preacher on St. Jones' slang, but in the deft, incisive eloquent use of the queen's English he easily places the so-called divinity in the class that "also ran."

The writer dropped into Rev. J. vaudeville one Sunday night a few weeks ago, thinking that he would hear a sermon. Judge of his surprise when a full fledged orchestra, with snare and bass drum and all the other necessary accoutrements, struck up a lively two-step, which was followed by a catchy waltz. All the stood in the way of a grand ball with the seats, and all that one had to do to bring up the gay ballet girls, lights or Jabour's Oriental fairies was to shut his eyes and listen to the music.

After that the Rev. J. appeared a water tank behind the pulpit, an ostentatiously dipped two white robes girls and a man in the tank. To a this, the spectators were allowed leave their seats and jostle each other for favorable positions, with less decorum than prevails in the ordinary dime show, and in a manner that was simply disgusting in a place of worship.

Then came the sermon, and what sermon it was! Three-fourths jokes (two of which Sam Jones took from the same pulpit a week later showing that they procured their supply by wholesale from the same smith), it was all watery soup with no meat in it whatever. There was a pause every few minutes to the audience to laugh, and the show of it is that there was always a silly fool ready to start the teething whenever the star actor dropped cue. His subject was a matrimony one (he is almost a monomaniac this line) and he treated it after style of a problem play. Before ending his collectors out among the crowd he complained that the previous Sunday evening's collection amounted to only eighteen dollars.

In the forenoon of the same day a small Presbyterian church over the East side, we enjoyed a sermon that was the very antithesis of affair pulled off by Rev. Brougher in the evening. The pastor was an eloquent, cultured man, and his sermon was full of Christian love and by He dwelt upon the human side Christ's character, and brought with striking force and clearness lesson that Christ was tempted the mountain and in the wilderness even as frail humanity is tempted from day to day with the temptations of every day life, thus inspiring fellowship with the sufferings of Redeemer in the hearts of his congregation, and a hope that they triumph over the tempter's snares wiles even as He did. The minister spoke of Paul's glorious life in fight for the right, and quoted Apostle's words, "I have finished course," as showing that real religion was a growth that began at the cradle and ended at the grave, and urged his hearers to keep up the good fight to the very end.

That zealous, scholarly, godly minister gets $1500 a year, while the slang monger gets $4000, and thousands bear the latter while hundreds bear the former, does redound to the credit of Portland church going people; but even a country Jake newspaper man should be surprised at this, for from immemorial a circus has always drawn bigger crowds than a church and at the centennial many more people saw the "Hootche-kootchie" the Trail than heard the lectures sermons by men of national reputation in the Auditorium.
