CONVICTS BUILD ROADS

Result Will Be Closely Watched to Regulate Their Future Employment

Governor Chamberlain has authorized Superintendent James, of the state prison, to put a crew of men at work at the quarry. Twenty-seven men are working today, and are busy in drilling and blasting rock. The county furnishes two foremen to direct the work, and the convicts are watched by two armed guards. Only men with a good prison record and adapted to that particular work have been picked out to do the work.

The men are taken to their work on the street cars each morning, and returned in the evening. They are fed at the quarry at the noon hour at the county's expense. A large canvas has been stretched over the rock crusher and the part of the quarry where the men are employed, so that the work may be done effectively, notwithstanding the rain. It is thought that by beginning the preparation of the rock early, it will be ready to be placed on the roads at a more convenient and seasonable time than a year ago. The experiment of employing convict labor will be one that will be watched with more than common interest.

Preservance.
W. H. Pigg, who has started an elk ranch at Freshwater, Col., is showing his herd of elk to a party of eastern capitalists.
"I am sure you will succeed in this venture, Pigg," said a broker. "You are a persevering man, and perseverence always brings success."
Mr. Pigg laughed.
"I am persevering," he admitted. "and I believe in perseverence. At the same time I don't rate it as high, sir, as you do. Perseverence without intelligence is nothing. A hen can sit on a china egg, but there will be no result."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

SWEET GLORY QUAYLE

Hall Caine's Greatest Story as Presented at the Footlights

Miss Lillian Lawrence says: "People always interest me, and I am constantly comparing them to flowers. I have heard some people speak of others as resembling animals. I could never see such a resemblance, but invariably think of flowers. My favorite flower is, in winter, the violet, and in summer the rose. I know persons who remind me of both these flowers. Men often make me think of violets. I can't explain just why. It is something about the figure, the face, the expression, almost indescribable."
"I know a lady who suggests a pansy to me. She is modest and quiet, with dark, expressive eyes, and a soft, rich voice. Then there is another who reminds me of a gorgeous sunflower. She is very dark and brilliant in coloring. This success has been duplicated wherever he has appeared.

LUNCH CAME HIGH

Gay Students Swipe Ice Cream and Cake But Dig up $10 for Their Fun

Two dollars to the bad, and the scare of their lives, was the reward that greeted five young preparatory students who were munching piffler ice cream and cake under the cover of night near the University gym Saturday evening. It seems that a party was given at the Bennett home, near Court and Chemeketa streets, that evening, and while the entertainment was in progress the five feet-footed "preps" surreptitiously carried away the ice cream and cake, which had been provided for the guests. When the time for the serving of refreshments came the hostess missed her delicacies, and was considerably put out, but after a little while the college bell rang out the triumphant arrival of the ice cream, and its devotees to the college campus. Among the guests at the party were three college students, who immediately "got next to the trick." They hastened to the athletic field and discovered the culprits, who were told to "dig up ten dollars" or suffer the penalty of the law. There was an immediate affirmative reply, though it took some of the lovers of ice cream several hours to find the needed coin of the realm to make good. The cream was good and the cake fine, but they came high.

Doctors Are Puzzled.
The remarkable recovery of Kenneth McIver of Vanceboro, Me., is the subject of much interest to the medical fraternity and a wide circle of friends. He says of this case: "Owing to severe inflammation of the throat and congestion of the lungs, three doctors gave me up to die, when, as a last resort I was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and I am happy to say it saved my life." Cures the worst coughs, and colds, bronchitis, tonsillitis, weak lungs, hoarseness and is gripe. Guaranteed at J. C. Parry's drug store, Salem, Oregon. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

the poppy, the woman must be dark, of the Spanish type, but with a soft, velvety manner. I know a dear little ingenue who never fails to bring to my mind the dainty forget-me-not. Another thing which never fails to impress me is the names of people I meet. Have you ever remarked how well suited some names are to some persons, and again how ill-fitting they are? Immediately upon hearing the given name of a stranger, I unconsciously picture that person to myself. Sometimes the picture is good; others bad. Can you imagine a tall, stately young woman being called 'Kitty'?"

Miss Lawrence will be seen in our city as "Glory Quayle," in Hall Caine's powerful play, "The Christian," which comes to the Grand Opera House tonight.
In Hall Caine's great play, "The Christian," which to be presented at the Grand Opera House, there is a young actor who is rapidly coming to the fore in the dramatic world of today. He is John Sainpolis, who appears as "John Storm." The Baltimore American says: "The burden of the work falls upon John Sainpolis, who as 'John Storm,' develops his art to the highest possible degree. At the close of the second act he was given an ovation. Five times he was brought to the footlights by a volume of applause." This success has been duplicated wherever he has appeared.

One touch of whiskey makes all breathe akin. . . .

The weather in Portland Sunday was certainly the limit. Benes slipped a cog somewhere in his prognosticating machinery. . . .

Sunday, in Portland, it was snow and slush all day, and that in the Rose City, too. It was preposterous—like-wise nasty. . . .

Calvin Hall, of the Marquam Grand theatre, Portland, has bought the theatre in Baker City. That's one town where "The Christian" wouldn't draw. . . .

It is expected the city council tonight will repeal the ordinance licensing slot machines. It will cost the city a couple of thousand dollars annually, but what t'ell.

An Interesting Lecture.

The citizens living in the neighborhood just west of Chemawa were treated to a lecture last Friday evening, at the M. B. A. hall, delivered by Miss Emma Smith Devon, of Chicago, a national organizer and lecturer for the Woman's Suffrage Association. There was a good audience, and the lecture was a real treat to all those who had the pleasure of hearing her.

The following campaign committee was appointed:
Chemawa—W. P. Campbell, chairman; Mrs. Belle McClellan, secretary; Chas. Wood, treasurer.

M. B. A. neighborhood—W. H. Alteman, chairman; J. Swartz, vice-president; Mrs. Wm. Goodrich, treasurer; Mrs. Frank Hall, secretary.

Cauwassing committee—J. J. Burdette, Miss Alice Swartz, T. E. Hall, Rossie Masop, D. E. Johnson and Mrs. Moson.

The Unvarnished Truth.

"No truer words were ever spoken than these: 'A fool and his money are soon parted,'" said the lecturer.
"Sure thing," piped a voice from the rear of the hall; "we all gave up 50 cent apiece to get in here!"—Yonkers Statesman.
