MY WIFE'S FAMILY . FRIDAY

A Musical Farce Brimfull of Laughter and a Basket-full of Catchy Music

A musical treat is in store for the local lovers of good and wholesome entertainment, for Manager Meredith has announced that he has secured for one of his attractions, the rollicking three-act musical farce comedy, "My Wife's Family," the Stephens & Linton musical comedy hit of this and last season. The comedy is full of ginger, snap and action so essential to a musical show. There is nothing serious about it, although there is a consistent plot and a well-told story; it is replete with brilliant repartee and unlimited laughable situations. There is the usual abundance of bright and up-to-date vaudeville specialties introduced, and entertaining and original musical numbers that are sure to be whistled and sung by street urchins, a positive sign of popularity. "My Wife's Family" met with instantaneous success last year and return dates were played by request in many cities. It struck fairly the keynote of popular taste and is sure to duplicate its original favor, for the authors, Hal Stephens and Harry Linton, have added many new comedy lines as well as new songs and dance numbers galore.

The large cast includes well known comedians, pretty girls, who know how to sing and dance, any number of high class specialties, while the production is correct in every detail as to costuming, scenic and stage effects. "My Wife's Family" will be seen at the Grand opera house Friday, March 23.

A Scientific Wonder.

The cures that stand to its credit make Bucklen's Arnica Salve a scientific wonder. It cured E. R. Mulford, lecturer for the Patrons of Husbandry, Waynesboro, Pa., of a distressing case of piles, it heals the worst burns, sores, boils, ulcers, cuts, wounds, chilblains, and salt rheum. Only 25c at J. C. Perry's drug store.

Geo. F. Rodgers Filed.

Geo. F. Rodgers, of Salem, for Republican nomination for representative, filed his notice of candidacy Tuesday. He says: "I am for the election of a good, able, clean Republican for the United States senate, whose character will bear the closest scrutiny. If Republican nominate such a man and he is elected I will vote for him first, last and all the time, so long as there is a possibility of his election. I do not believe in equivocating."

GAVE WIFE TO SON

John Ruskin's Immolation Finds its Counterpart at Last

A dispatch from Chicago says: Judge McEwen has decided to grant a divorce to 56-year-old Watson H. Twitchell, the prototype of John Ruskin, who out of love for his boy and his young, rosy-cheeked bride of three months, thus paves the way for the ultimate marriage of Mrs. Bertha Twitchell and his 24-year-old son.

Called to the bar of Judge McEwen's court to choose between her aged husband and her stepson, the young woman blushing admitted her affection for "Edward," and said she was anxious to have her marriage annulled. The court thereupon said he would award the elder Twitchell the decree for which he had applied.

"Perhaps I am to blame," said Mr. Twitchell. "Possibly Oslar is right. My hands are calloused with labor, my face is gnarled with the contact of years. I am 56 years old, but I feel 30. Perhaps I ought to have known that I could not look 30; I didn't realize it."

"But your son, who knew you loved this woman—do you excuse his perfidy in the matter. Does not the thought of this complication disgust you?" Mr. Twitchell was asked.

"I scarcely know how to describe my feelings," he answered. "I feel here is a chance for the great American novelist. What would you? I love my son. Why, I love him to the point of exclusion. I love the lady who was my wife. But there are few dreams that don't lead to an abrupt awakening. I am wide awake now. It was not to be. The lady has changed her mind. I am not trying to explain why."

John Ruskin's pathetic self-immolation has found its counterpart at last.

School News

Business College.

Paul Newmyer, a former student of the Business College, has taken a position as agent for the Southern Pacific Company at Chemawa. Mr. Newmyer's home is near Salem, and he has a brother and sister in the high school.

Emma Nerod has gone to work for the Union Title Abstract Company.

Prudence Goodhue has taken a position as stenographer in a Portland firm. Both Miss Nerod and Miss Goodhue were students of the high school before entering Business College.

W. O. Holcomb has returned to his home in Richmond, Baker county, Oregon. He will finish his course next fall.

Mary A. Davidson and Dora Anderson, of Salem; Clifford Jones, of Macleay, and Wayne Hotckett, of Southern Oregon, are recent students to enter the school.

The enrollment is gradually growing a little less, as the time of the year is here when the students begin to get out to work.

High School.

The Rambler baseball boys are going to have a basket social in the school building next Friday evening, to raise funds for the team.

The American history class was favored with a paper on "James K. Polk," by Bessie Harding yesterday.

The botany class also heard the reading of two papers, one on "Transpiration," by Lelah Bell, the other on "Chlorophyll," by Edith Bellinger. The class is making some original examinations of buds now. Each member is required to dissect and make drawings, which are to be brought to class. An experiment is also being conducted, consisting of raising plants by water culture. The seeds are germinated artificially, and made to grow by keeping in the water, the elements that the plant requires. In this way a crop of peas has been successfully raised, and the students have been able to watch the growth of both stem and root.

Mr. Mariette gave some instructions to the students Tuesday evening, as follows: Any students who have grievances of any sort against the teachers can best make them known by attending the faculty meeting, which are held usually once every week, and are requested to do so. He also mentioned that many of the pupils can be more careful about their persons and appearance. Many are too careless about walking, sitting in their seats, the care of Ordered to Penitentiary.

Reolvis Walling, a young man of 20, who completely upset the town of Irriagon, in Morrow county, was ordered committed to the penitentiary for one year by Judge Frazer yesterday. Walling was sentenced November last on a larceny charge, and was paroled during good behavior. He was given work at Irriagon, and he associated with a woman of bad repute, broke up the social dances and lodges and caused trouble generally. Walling was once a vaudeville performer, and considers himself a ladies' man. When he was paroled he was instructed by Judge Frazer to live as near as possible a perfect life until his term of parole expired.

Judge Frazer yesterday investigated the case, and decided that the charges against Walling of misconduct were true.

No mention is made of Walling having run Bennett, of Rabbitville fame, out of town, but the pencil-pusher has, nevertheless, sold the Irrigator, and made his exit.
