AN ALASKAN AUTOMOBILE

"The object which the inventor (Charles E. S. Burch of Minneapolis) has had in view is the revolutionizing of the means of winter transportation in Alaska, where he is heavily interested in mining properties difficult to develop because of their inaccessibility. At present, in certain parts of Alaska, freight transportation during the winter is accomplished entirely by dog teams and sleds, and in consequence the charges are from $100 to $150 per ton. It is the inventor's plan to use in place of dog teams his 'ice locomotive' drawing a train of sleds, and in this way reduce the expense of freighting to a minimum. It is hoped that the invention will prove a boon to winter commerce in Alaska, and, should it succeed, will doubtless be received with enthusiasm by the thousands in that frozen country, who in winter are practically shut out from the civilized world.

"The ice locomotive is propelled by steam engines, but instead of resting on wheels or runner is supported by four great steel spirals, one at each corner of the body, in the places usually occupied by wheels or runners of ordinary vehicles. The spirals lie with their vertical axes horizontal, and are of opposite pitch. The edges of the blades are fashioned like skate blades in order that they may grip the ice well. Each of the spirals is directly connected to a separate steam engine and consequently the spirals may be operated independently, this method giving unusual control over the car. It can be driven forward, backward, sideways, or at any oblique angle desired, and it can even be made to spin around like a top."

"The model now at Lake Calhoun, Mr. Lusk's, a writer in the Scientific American, tells us is 22 feet long, weighs 4 1/2 tons, has engines of 47 horse power and steel screws 27 inches in diameter. The greater the diameter of the spirals the greater will be the ability of the ice locomotive to travel over rough surfaces and to surmount obstacles. A machine of this type now building in Canada will have spirals six feet in height. The automobile is steered by compressed air operating two semi-circular steel disks at each end of the body. The disks work in unison and are weighted in order to better grip the ice. To quote further:

"The body of the bottom is made water tight so that in the event of the machine breaking through the ice it will float upon the surface of the water. It that case it would be possible easily to propel the machine, for the spiral method of navigation, as is well known, operates successfully.

"The Lake Calhoun machine, which is unfinished and rough in appearance, was constructed to make an estimated speed of nine miles an hour, but on its trial trip it traveled easily at the rate of eighteen miles an hour. Obstacles and rough places were passed with surprising ease. A toboggan slide course of ice and snow several feet above the level of the lake ice was surmounted without difficulty while traveling at full speed. The inventor intends to use alcohol boilers in the machines constructed for practical service in Alaska, thus avoiding the danger of the freezing of the boilers, and, furthermore, considerably reducing the size of the latter. He plans to have a condenser to condense the alcoholic steam and to use it over again. Wood, coal, or oil may be used for fuel under the boilers."

STATEMENT NUMBER ONE GAINING

Indications Are That Legislature Will Be Overwhelmingly

For Electing the Choice of the People to the U. S. Senate in Oregon

Hon. S. A. Lowell, of Pendleton, opens the United States senatorial campaign at Salem Grand Opera House Friday evening of this week. Other candidates will be present. Judge Lowell will campaign the whole state for the nomination, and is one of Oregon's greatest orators.

Statement No. 1 Leads.

The Portland Journal prints a list of legislative candidates who have filed their declarations in each county so far, and shows how they stand on statement No. 1. The showing is summarized as follows:

"Legislative candidates all over Oregon are recognizing the determination of the people to have a voice in the election of the next United States senator. Of 173 candidates who have thus far filed their petitions, 101 have subscribed to statement No. 1 of the direct primary law, thereby pledging themselves to vote for the people's choice for senator, irrespective of party or their personal preferences; 45 are on the fence, giving no intimation as to the course they will pursue, and 29 have subscribed to some modified form of statement No. 1, the qualification usually being that they will vote only for a candidate of their own party.

"These figures include both Republicans and Democrats, and are as complete as it has been possible to make them from data at hand. Republican candidates outnumber the Democrats by nearly seven to one. In some counties every legislative candidate, whether Republican or Democrat, has subscribed to statement No. 1, plainly showing the strength of the popular demand for recognition of the people's choice for senator as expressed in the June election. Strong as this demand is in Multnomah county, it appears to be even stronger in other parts of the state."

The Portland Journal prints the following about Marion county candidates:

Marion—Statement No. 1, James M. MacCowan (R.), Jerome Jones (R.), W. M. Cherrington (R.), Jerome D. Simmons (R.), Oliver Biers (R.), S. A. Hughes (R.), E. Hofer (R.), Frank Davey (R.), Aug. Hucklestein (D.); modified, W. A. Taylor (R.), H. D. Mount (R.), L. R. Stinson (R.); no statement, J. H. Settlemier (R.), J. W. McKinney (R.), L. Reynolds (R.).

Candidates for senator and their attitude: Marion—Statement No. 1, E. M. Croisan (R.), T. B. Kay (R.); modified, John S. Richie (R.); no statement, J. N. Smith (R.), Alex. LaFollette and W. H. Hobson are also Republican candidates, but information as to their views is not at hand.

The above list is not complete and is not correct, so far as Marion county is concerned. A complete list will be found below:

Following is the correct text of this pledge in the primary law:

Statement No. 1.

"I further state to the people of Oregon, as well as to the people of my legislative district, that, during my term of office, I will always vote for that candidate for United States senator in congress who has received the highest number of the people's votes for that position at the general election next preceding the election of a senator in congress, without regard to my individual preference."

This is the assurance the law provides candidates for the legislature may give the people; or they may refuse to give this assurance. The candidate's attitude is of official record when he files his petition, over his signature.

Fulton Favors Direct Election.

It has been known for some time that Senator Fulton intended to go before the people for re-nomination and re-election under the primary law in 1908.

A Washington special to the Portland Journal gives Senator Fulton's views as follows:

Senator Fulton expressed himself in favor of the popular election of United States senators, and stated that were his term expiring and he had to stand for re-election, he would take his chances before the people, and retire if not re-nominated. The senator stated he was not prepared to discuss his attitude in reference to statement No. 1 of the Oregon direct primary law, which is such an issue in the senator's state this year. He opposes the idea of one party electing a member of another to the senate, even though by will of the people.

Senator Fulton said:

"I have always favored the election of United States senators by the direct vote of the people.

"Were I a candidate for re-election I would submit my claims to the people under the direct primary law, and failing to secure the approval of the people by a majority vote I would retire from the contest.

"I am not, however, prepared to discuss statement No. 1. I have not a copy of that declaration with me, and have given it no critical examination.

"I cannot assume, however, that it was the intention of the people in voting for the law that a Republican legislature would under any circumstances elect a Democratic senator, or vice versa."

Another Good Republican.

G. J. Farley, of Wasco county, has filed for representative and takes statement No. 1. He has been Republican county chairman, was mayor of The Dalles and superintendent of the portage railroad, constructing it for less than the appropriation. He is an intelligent business man.

Following shows filings of all Marion county candidates for legislative offices, with reference to their attitude on election of United States senators by direct vote of the people:

Words on ballot: "Republican United States senator whose record will stand the microscope."

J. H. Settlemier, Woodburn, R., no pledge at first. Has since filing put on: "Will vote for people's choice for United States senator; he being a true blue Republican."

Mark S. Skiff, Salem, R., states: "I believe that a Republican candidate for United States Senator should be nominated and elected in the same manner as any other office is filled." Puts on ballot: "United States Senator should be nominated and elected by the people."
