AMBITIOUS SCHOOL GIRLS

She hurries home from school, is never late, takes a few minutes of outdoor play because some one has prescribed it, runs home, curls up, and studies hard till the evening meal. This meal she engulfs in the shortest possible time, slips off her chair and is at her book again. She is the conscientious pupil. She studies till some one insists on her going to bed. * * * This audience can easily imagine several physiological functions impaired by worry and haste and some daily needs possibly postponed till Saturday and Sunday. They will wonder whether the dweller in crowded districts may, in such strenuous life, snatch a few hours of tranquil daily recreation in outdoor sunlight. They may wonder how the nerves in this strenuous existence are to be daily completely nourished and rested. Alas! They are neither rested nor nourished. They fall daily further into arrears. They may drag on until early spring accounting. In March is the feast of St. Vitus.

It is well to reflect on the critical physiological changes which our little student is undergoing between 8 and 13 years of age. She is manufacturing rapidly new cells, she is building great additions in bone, muscle and glands, she is developing, training and disciplining her cerebrospinal and sympathetic systems. She is changing her milk teeth for tearers and grinders, preparing for heartier food. She is further developing a new function, passing from infant life to maturity; experiencing a change of such critical magnitude that all nature appeals to the generous impulses of human protectors to lighten her burdens, to safeguard the best interests of the budding woman and future mother.

Do not put the subject away with the thought that the story of the overworked and under-nourished growing girl belongs only to a big city, to the tenements and to ignorance. Would it were limited to them, for they are most teachable and quick to reform. If you look to your choicest families you will often find them getting up late, that breakfast is late, that the father rubs his swollen eyes and scolds between his morning paper and his coffee because of this disagreeable rush and haste. His last night's nerves are disturbed by his child's early morning start. You will agree with me that in many of your most intelligent families the child's life and duties are not the first consideration of the mother or father. The girl begins her first strenuous life in unsympathetic surroundings, gets up a high degree of momentum in the midst of inertia. Only in Wall street will nerves again be found so thoroughly a-tangle. If this be the case with our best families how much more is it true of the crowded tenement—Professor William B. Northrup, M. D., of the New York university.

X-RAYS

When you see a man roll up his shirt sleeves to rest, you can bet your last nickel spring is here.

Detective Burns says he alone was to blame for Pater's escape. Now, then, Mr. Heney, 'fess up.

Judge Lowell has lost his motto, but then the less a man or horse has to carry in a race, the better.

George H. Williams, of Portland, celebrated his 83d birthday this week. George is now old enough to understand politics, and refuse the nomination for mayor of Portland.

Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau at Washington, says that before long the weather bureau will issue forecasts for a whole month. This will permit the common people to do their own guessing.

The senate certainly touched the public pulse when it voted $100,000 for the repair and care of the old frigate "Constitution." It is a good deal of money, but the old girl is welcome to it.

The Albany Democrat mentions the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Pollock recently visited Joaquin Miller, in California. The lady says that Mr. Miller "had on boots a coat made of deer skin and a cap." Rather an unique costume for reception day, but as the Democrat says so—so it must be.

More than a score of women in New York have filed charges against a man who posed as a physician, and promised to send the stork to their homes. For his advice they paid $1 each visit. This would indicate that race suicide has not so strong a hold on Americans as the alarmists would have us believe.

In Minneapolis.
"How old is the child?" asked the visitor.
"Six months," responded the proud mother.
"And has he, ah, published anything yet?"—Minneapolis Tribune.

Adulteration of Electricity.

It is a well known saying that electricity is one supply which cannot be adulterated; that the user gets only the simon pure article, though perhaps sometimes his supply is not quite as regular as he could wish. In a recent paper read before the Manchester section of the Institution of Electrical Engineers of Great Britain, M. B. Field admitted the general correctness of this statement, but he said that in a general way adulteration of the current did take place, at least from the generating station's point of view. Leakage currents—that is to say, currents which are sent out from the station, but do no useful work—might be considered as adulterations to the useful current. With alternating current systems the so called wattless component of the current may be looked upon in the same way, and, under certain conditions, cross or idle currents may be set up which cause a loss of power and poor regulation at the station but produce no useful results.

Affirmative Already Has It.

Arrangements have been completed between the Pendleton high school and the Salem high school for a debate, to take place in this city March 12th. The subject is "Resolved, That the Monroe doctrine should be made permanent in our foreign policy."

A Good Appointment.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Portland woolen mills, held Tuesday, Clarence Bishop, of this city, was appointed superintendent.

A Scientific Wonder.

The cures that stand to its credit make Bucklen's Arnica Salve a scientific wonder. It cured E. B. Mulford, lecturer for the Patrons of Husbandry, Waynesboro, Pa., of a distressing case of piles. It heals the worst burns, sores, boils, ulcers, cuts, wounds, chilblains, and salt rheum. Only 25c at J. C. Perry's drug store.
