X-RAYS

Anyway, the Portland gas is strong enough to kill a man if he takes too much of it.

The way to save Castle Rock is to let its owners understand the public has rights that no individual can destroy, and that when Castle Rock goes down, its owners—go up. This is not anarchy, but decency.

The law only allows a person to catch 125 trout in one day. Salem sent a goodly delegation to the trout streams yesterday, but none of them violated the law, or overstepped the bounds. Five little ones was the record, though one man claims to have caught 17.

Air, water and light belong to every man, and so do the beauties of nature. No man, and no combination of men has any more right to destroy Niagara Falls, Castle Rock or Multnomah Falls than they would have to shut off the sunlight or blot out the stars, if they had the power. Some things belong to all the people of all the world.

It is safe to say that under ordinary conditions and under ordinary police administrations 90 per cent of the fallen women in our cities are compelled to register and to vote at least once for the candidates favored by the police or sheriff's officers.

So much in answer to the question, "What and how many women vote," How they vote is a different matter.

Vicious women vote as the dominant "boss," aided by the police, or as the police acting on their own account, compel them to vote.

Foreign born women—the Slavs and Italians, Greeks and Russians—like the foreign born men, vote for the most part in the manner the superintendent of the railroad, mining, or manufacturing corporation, or his foreman or their agents, or the subsidized priest or padrone, tell them they must vote.

The "new women" vote for those who favor their pet theories.

Now, what are the general results?

We have seen that the presence of women as voters has not improved the order and decorum at polling places.

We have also seen that extension of the suffrage to women has, in the long run, merely tended to double the number of possible, not of actual voters.

Among the very highest classes, judged by standards of property, intelligence and morality, and among the very lowest, we have added 75 to 85 per cent to the number who formerly exercised the franchise. But among the great middle classes, in these respects, a very much larger proportion of the woman than of the men do not vote.

It would, indeed, appear that the average character of the actual voting body has either remained unchanged or has been slightly lowered as regards actual political intelligence and discrimination.

Woman's suffrage seems to have neither a preventive, an alleviator, nor a cure for any of our political ills.

Indeed, it would seem that the woman's suffragists in general tacitly admit that there have been no practical reforms or other important or positive results in Colorado, because they who urged the adoption of their experiment for reasons of justice and expediency now in the great majority of cases praise its operation on grounds of justice only.

Voting, they say, is one of woman's natural rights, from the exercise of which tyrannical man long prevented her. They ask, "Would you in justice refuse the intelligent and refined women of your family the franchise you give so freely to illiterate and miserable, often criminal, foreigners and negroes?" They assume that one approves of allowing the men of all these classes to vote without restriction, and they forget that these illiterates, foreigners, and negroes have women in their families. That all the women even of Colorado do not regard voting as among their "natural rights" is shown by the flat manner in which such a large proportion of the others look upon voting as an unpleasant, irksome and unsought duty.

Mr. Lewis, the author of this article, was for several years correspondent for the Denver News at Pueblo, and has been secretary of the Rocky Mountain Harvard club. His personal standing and his familiarity with political conditions in Colorado are spoken of in high terms in letters received by

Reasons Why The Racycle

PUSHES ONE-FOURTH EASIER THAN OTHER WHEELS. BEARINGS IN LINE WITH CENTER OF CRANKS. SPROCKET WITH SET OF BEARINGS ON EACH SIDE. DUST-PROOF CRANK BEARINGS. MAGAZINED OILED CRANK BEARINGS. BI-PLANE SPROCKETS. BI-PLANE SPROCKETS.

THAT'S GOING SOME

There's no dodging the force of this argument—no getting around it—it's there—not idle theory, but actual, provable fact. Doesn't it strike you right in your sense spot?

Good as all former models have been, the 1906 Racycle has improvements that make it almost as far ahead of former Racycles as the Racycle has been ahead of other bicycles.
