TEACHER LOVED GIRLS

Unwisely, But Too Well, and in the Wrong Way

Pilot Rock, Or., April 9.—Because James A. Wases of this city, who was recently engaged to teach school in the district just east of Pilot Rock commonly known as the Little Red School House, insisted on making love to the older girls in his school, the directors relieved him of any further service in connection with the school. Although no formal charges have been preferred against him and no action was taken further than his dismissal, a great deal of excitement has been aroused in this neighborhood.

It is alleged that while he was in the act of making love to one of the girls, making goo-goo eyes, etc., and she was smuggling up to him like a sick kitten to a warm brick, that a number of the other pupils arrived on the scene of action and caused them to cease operations.

The matter was at once reported to the board of directors, who presented him with an order of dismissal. This the teacher with amorous proclivities, accepted with the best grace possible and hid himself to other pastures.

It is also reported on good authority that this is the second school that Mr. Wases has lost within a month for the same reason and it is now very doubtful if he ever has a chance to teach another school in Umatilla county.

A few weeks ago he was teaching in District No. 26, which is below Holman, when complaint was made and he was promptly dismissed. It was also rumored that other charges of a more serious nature might have been preferred against him, but he succeeded in having every thing hushed up and kept out of the papers.

charges against him, and if he had made a fight to retain his school, such would probably have been done.

The Deed of a Degenerate.

Brunswick, April 9.—The trial for murder of Charles Brunke, which ended with his conviction and the imposition of a sentence of eight years of simple imprisonment, was one of the most sensational trials held here for many years. Brunke was a bank clerk and shot and killed the beautiful sisters Heare, aged 21 and 22 years, on October of last year.

According to the evidence Brunke is a type of the German degenerate, corrupted by decadent and pessimistic literature, leading to megalomania and contempt of life. The evidence of the accused was remarkable. He said he was an enthusiastic student of Kant, Schopenhauer, Spinoza, Nietzsche and Ibsen. He regarded suicide as allowable, even desirable. He had written three plays, one called "The Eccentric," in which he delineated his own character and career. The prison doctors state that Brunke was sane, but, as the crown prosecutor only demanded nine and a half years imprisonment, he was apparently of the opinion that the prisoner's mind was unbalanced.

Brunke thrilled a packed court by calmly describing his shooting of the sisters as they sat side by side in armchairs, at their instigation and with their full consent. The father of the girls, a merchant, gave his daughters excellent characters, as amiable, quiet, innocent girls. It transpires that the mother of the girls has since committed suicide through grief.

TARIFF MAY BE REVISED

Washington, April 9.—In reply to the challenge of Speaker Cannon to the Democrats to make the tariff the issue in the coming congressional campaign, Representative John Sharp Williams, the minority leader, has accepted the "def" and predicted an early revision of the tariff. He made it plain that the business instability during the enactment of tariff legislation was due to the influence of the special interests and corporations which guide the committees in framing tariff laws and congress in passing them. His remedy is to divorce the government from private business and make the tariff receipts meet the needs of the public. Mr. Williams said:

"The tariff is going to be revised. If the Republican party has sense enough and courage enough to revise it on right lines it will very materially aid them in staying in power. They may not stay even then, because it is felt that there is a check needed upon them in other directions.

Revision Up to Republicans.
"If they do not revise it on other lines some other party will. It is important in the interest of the stability of tariff rates that the proper principle of tariff revision should be recognized and acted upon. The proper principal is the adapting of tariff receipts, like other revenue, to the needs of the public, and not to the needs of trusts and special interests. As long as there is a clash between individuals or industries, each striving for some advantage conferred by tariff laws, there can, in the very nature of things, be no end of tariff agitation.

Divorce Government and Business.
"It is only when business is divorced from government that government will be divorced from business and from constant interference with it. Business will never be divorced from government so long as the business interests of individuals or corporations is the rule whereby committees are guided in framing laws and whereby congress is guided in enacting them.

"The tariff is going to be revised. In case there is no tariff revision at this time, there will be, in my opinion, a Democratic house and there will be a Democratic tariff bill. There will not be an ideal Democratic tariff, based by actual condition surrounding us, cause we must to some extent be guided which will make us swerve to some extent from the ideal, but it will be an approximation to it."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dread disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its own work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. About Railway Franchise.

The Swiss government will not grant a franchise to any public enterprise except with the provision that after a lapse of years the state may purchase the undertaking if it see fit. In this way most of the street car lines in Swiss cities have gone to the municipalities, and those still in private hands will eventually pass into public ownership. I have spoken of the admirable traction system of Zurich. The lines comprise in all twenty-five and a half miles of trackage. The receipts in 1904 were $342,850, on which the city profits were $138,095. Of these profits $19,000 went to a surplus fund for renewals, $10,000 to a sinking fund to meet the purchase bonds, $63,258 to pay the interest on these obligations, and $45,837 was turned into the general funds of the city—"for the common good," as the Zurich people express it. The lines carried, in 1904, 14,597,000 persons—an increase of 1,000,000 over 1903. The total sum paid for damages resulting from accidents to others than employees was $237. To injured workmen on its lines the city paid $2000. No suits were necessary to enforce these claims; they were paid because they were just. No politics entered into the conduct of the road. All the details of its operations, the receipts and expenditures to the last centime were published in pamphlets. Every citizen of Zurich could know as much as the manager about the finances of the lines.—Everybody's Magazine.
