THE BANK HABIT.

Possibly you who read this have never kept a bank account. If not, let us suggest that you try the experiment. You will find it helpful in many ways. Aside from the fact that your money will be safe from theft and fire, such a habit tends to thrift, economy, discipline, and a general understanding of business principles, all of which are essential to success. It also affords a convenient method for the payment of bills; and, as the checks are always preserved and returned to you, they serve as receipts for the amounts paid.

A GOOD PLAY TONIGHT

Booth Tarkington's Most Charming Story Brought to Life

"Beaucaire," one of the few plays to see which is to wish to see it again, will be on review at the Grand Opera House tonight, under the most favorable circumstances. The title role will be played by the man who has made the drama famous—Creston Clarke—and his supporting company will be almost identical with that which assisted him last season. "Beaucaire" is a mingling of romance and realism, a play abounding in sentiment and chivalry, and rich in human nature and manhood. Moreover, it has much of that elusive but effective quality which, for want of a better name, is called "atmosphere"—that is, it transports the spectators to the scene and the age whereof the events are supposed to occur and makes them seem living realistic instead of mere mummery and make-believe. Credit for this must be divided equally between Mr. Clarke and Booth Tarkington, from whose entrancing story, "Monsieur Beaucaire," the play is taken. Mr. Tarkington sketched the characters, surroundings and incidents, and Mr. Clarke clothed them with the garments of life and actuality. No happier union of ideas is known to current stage than this of Mr. Clarke's and Mr. Tarkington's. "Beaucaire" pleases equally the eye, the intellect and the senses, being scenically luxurious, bright in wit, and throbbing with poetic imagination. Another opportunity to see it will probably not be vouchsafed as a new play is being written for Mr. Clarke by a prominent American dramatist, and it will serve as vehicle for his tour next season. This assures Mr. Clarke an overflowing audience here as no theater-goer will wish to miss this last chance to enjoy one of the most notable productions of the decade.

you pay "sided apt to suppose" him or loaned.

Judge Ryan's record as a public officer proves him a man of business ability, well fitted to perform every duty required of the state treasurer.

Being neither officer, stockholder or agent or employee of any banking institution, he is under no obligation to any corporation, and stands squarely on the following platform: That the funds of the state belong to the PEOPLE, and should not be USED for the BENEFIT of any BANK or MONEY LENDING INSTITUTION; that MONIES of the state DEPOSITED in BANKING INSTITUTIONS should draw INTEREST, which should be PAID INTO the state treasury. That the state treasurer should be PROHIBITED from speculating or using the state funds for his personal benefit, receiving for his services only the salary allowed by law; that it be made unlawful for the state treasurer to have any interest, either directly or indirectly in any BANK in which any of the moneys of the state are deposited or loaned.
