as "a species of treason, against whom, and in what way, nobody seemed to know."

Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio has just recently received a message from the people of "his state which pretty clearly indicates that they do know, and if the signs of the times indicate anything, Mr. Foraker is in a fair way to be the recipient of a similar notice.

Another characteristic performance was the suppression in the senate committee, of the Payne Philippine tariff bill, not even allowing it to come to a vote in the senate, when it passed the house by a vote of 358 to 71. If any one thing is proven by such action of this senate cabal, it is the fact that they are, as it relates to the Payne bill, absolutely dominated by the sugar, tobacco and rice trusts. Thus, by securing the Forakers, Gallingers, Aldriches, Plattis, Depewes, Gormans, etc., in control of such committees as are likely to have trust interests referred to them the trust interests are truly "in the saddle," and public appeals count for nothing. It is only the controlling influence of such men that makes the proposed ship subsidy a possibility, and except for the fact that they have a president who is honest, patriotic and capable, the temporal interests of 80,000,000 citizens of this country would be almost without hope.

With the clearer understanding of these issues being acquired by the people, and the course being pursued by our chief executive, there is hope that the time is not far distant when the average trust-debauched United States senator will find it "to his interest" to "sit up and take notice," and that the professional "stand-patter" will also discover the fact that there is some merit in intrinsic justice. The absolute certainty of this extermination of trust-owned senators' invariable opposition to every measure tending to curb the rapacity of their owners and masters and their total indifference to the tolling millions who ask no gratuities, but are pleading for the privilege to live is something most truly alarming, and constitute a source of danger to our form of government more portentous than that before which patriots trembled during the darkest days of our great Civil war. A climax is not difficult of discernment on the not far distant horizon. Eighty millions of people will not forever continue to implore, plead and pray to a corrupt cabal of trust hirelings for a just consideration of their unquestionable rights as citizens of this great republic.

Trusts must be rendered subservient to law, or our government in its present form can not continue to exist.

The Property Called Health.

Runs down or improves, just depends on how it is cared for. It is the most valuable property we have, and should receive the most consideration. It helps you in business, helps you get on, and helps you hold them, and always makes happiness. Property like this, at the first indication of being out of repair, should be looked after and a remedy applied at once. There are any number of signs that show repairs are needed. Bilious spells, indigestion, dyspepsia, belching, dizziness, sick headaches, sallow complexion, pimples and liver spots on the face, a drowsy feeling after meals, sour stomach, etc. These symptoms all show loss of health. Druggists will sell you for 25c a box of Dr. Gunn's Improved Liver Pills, a cure cure for all of these diseases.

bring secret forces to bear with a merciless power, to spread wreck and ruin on all who presume to object to being devoured, digested and assimilated within their all-pervading financial grasp.

Judge Gildersleeve has recently given testimony as to the right of Mr. Rogers, Rockefeller, etc., to hold law in contempt, and spurn all courts of justice. Judge Hamphrey more recently gave an illustration of the too frequent complaisance of the courts, where "large interests" are involved, and explains the senatorial anxiety to strip the rate and rebate commission of any effective power, by amending the bill so as to give greater scope and jurisdiction to the courts, where, by corporate influence and legal subterfuge it would remain forever, thereby effectually defeating all attempts at remedial legislation. There are estimates based on what seems sound logic, facts and figures, which prove that in fifty years a half-dozen men of the type of Rockefeller and Rogers will literally own the United States, and in due time, the earth, and "sit astride our little world." With or without subsidies, unless the methods of these modern world robbers are put in restraint, every decent, honest person will, in the near future, receive notice to get off the earth.

In fact, with the vessels now owned by the shipping trust, and the added power afforded by the proposed subsidy, would not the "Morgan combine" reach out for everything afloat? This subsidy is a standing invitation for a shipping trust as deadly and ruinous in its effects on our commerce with the nations, as are the present existing domestic trusts to individual interests in our home, commercial, productive and agricultural affairs. That the proposed subsidy would be promptly utilized for the accomplishment of just such purpose, no candid and intelligent observer of past events can for a moment question. It is not so much the proposed disposition of one hundred and sixty millions, worse than thrown away, nor the fact that a debauched senate is the instrument through which the tolling millions are to be thus robbed and plundered, as it is in the evident purpose of these despoilers of human interests to place the measureless curse of industrial slavery over all the oceans, as they have over the earth, and thereby make complete the temporal curse of the human race. Such results are inevitable, or the study of the history of recent trust exploitations is a foolish waste of time.

I cannot but feel that the United States senate, composed of intelligent citizens of this free republic, who are oath-bound as it relates to conserving the interests of our common country, and who will solemnly dole out their long-drawn hypocritical speeches in pretended defense of this self-evident villainy, ought to be branded with eternal infamy. The Hon. Senator Foraker, in his speech in the senate on the 1st inst. in opposition to the Hepburn bill, the purpose of which is principally to put a stop to the rebate system on the part of the railroads, was much grieved to find a sentiment in the lower house and among the people which regarded opposition to the bill inducement to them to use their capital for the furtherance of their own interests? There can be no brand of brazen impudence equalling the proposition. Our government has been in one way and another nursing and coddling just such progeny as this, until the brats have outgrown pretty much all parental authority, and give great promise of ultimately disrupting the paternal household. Being above and superior to the law, they are consistent in not often appealing to it, but, with the aid of pastmasters in intrigue, they atorial gang, has labored without cessation for years for the consummation of this stupendous swindle and outrage on the American people, and the bill, it is reported to have passed the senate in the early part of March, possibly in a somewhat modified form, is but an entering wedge, nevertheless whereby the original steal will ultimately be accomplished. What use would we have for steel if the agricultural, mining and other labor interest should cease production, and what would be thought of the sanity of a national law maker who would offer a bill to appropriate and equitably distribute eight millions of dollars annually for the promotion of agricultural mining and other producing interests without which these shipping syndicates and trusts would have little use for any ships whatever? There is certainly no interests of greater moment to us all than the success of the mighty host of producers, and no class who labor so constantly on so small a margin of profit. If we are visited with times of financial depression, what do we do but helplessly wait until the farmers "raise good crops," and thereby lift us out of our financial "slough of despond?"

The Gallingers tell us, in explanation of their graft, that the American ship owner is compelled to pay so much higher wages to American seamen than foreign ship owners, that they are fast becoming destitute, and the little gratuity they ask is indispensable to the maintenance of our national prestige and pride. If it suited their purpose better, they would in the next sentence be telling us that, as a matter of fact pretty much all American ships were manned by foreigners, to our eternal disgrace. Suppose their statement to be true, is it not equally true that there is a corresponding increase in the wages of every employe of the agriculturalist, miner, and all other forms of production? All will agree also that the farmer works longer hours, lives more economically, makes less profit, and is infinitely more essential to the general prosperity of all than the "capitalist" who for present purposes assume the role of mendicants in order to perpetrate this enormous graft.

Can this measure be viewed in any other light than that of requiring the producers of this nation to dig these millions out of the ground and pass it up to these capitalists as a gift, as an

THE SHIP SUBSIDY GRAFT

A Correspondent Says "Trusts Must Be Made Subservient to Law"

The proposed ship subsidy bill, embodying as it does, all the self-evident earmarks, dips and angles of a most stupendous steal, naturally attracts and fascinates the average national law-maker of the upper house. The original bill called for only $5,000,000 annually, running for a period of twenty years, aggregating the modest sum of $100,000,000. This sum looks almost startling to the disinterested observer, especially when he calls to mind that no one wants such an expenditure for such purpose except certain transcendental "guys" who go to make up the membership of our American "house of lords," and a shipping trust which has more money than it knows what to do with, and is desirous of putting Mr. Rockefeller in the shade as a capitalist and trust magnate.

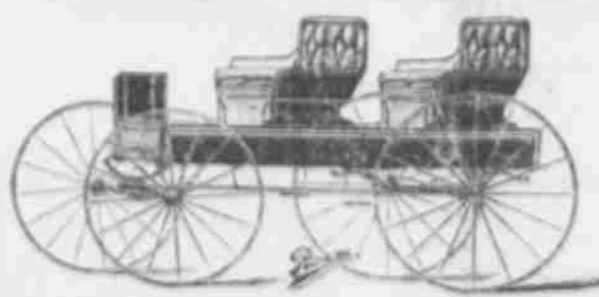

Mr. Gallinger (I had almost said) the most larcenist of the whole bundle seen

THE BANK HABIT.

Possibly you who read this have never kept a bank account. If not, let us suggest that you try the experiment. You will find it helpful in many ways. Aside from the fact that your money will be safe from theft and fire, such a habit tends to thrift, economy, discipline, and a general understanding of business principles, all of which are essential to success. It also affords a convenient method for the payment of bills; and, as the checks are always preserved and returned to you, they serve as receipts for the amounts paid.
