Inherited Disease—Eyes Affected—Weak, Could Hardly Walk—Life of Suffering.

Still Another Great Cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla

The following letter is from Mr. Geo. A. Zirkle, School Teacher in Mt. Horeb, Tenn., well-known all through that county, where he was born and has always lived.

"Mt. Horeb, Tenn., Jan. 10, 1906.
"C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

"I have suffered all my life, until lately, from inherited scrofula. When a mere babe I had a scrofulous sore back of my ear. At 21 I had 13 scrofulous lumps on my neck. At 37 the disease assumed a new and tantalizing form. My eyes were affected so that I could not read after sunset, and when I closed them it was difficult to reopen them. There was always intolerable itching all over my body. Then a tumor on my neck changed to the front of my neck, suppurated and was followed by others, until six had formed and broken. I became so weak I could scarcely walk, and could hardly attend to my teaching. All the medicine I tried failed to help until I began the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla. In less than three months the sores healed, a troublesome catarrhal taint disappeared and the scrofulous habit steadily grew less apparent. Today I am in the best of health, weigh more than ever in my life. Do you wonder that I believe in Hood's Sarsaparilla? I can do no less than recommend it everywhere and every day."

SPECIAL.—To meet the wishes of those who prefer medicine in tablet form, we are now putting up Hood's Sarsaparilla in chocolate-coated tablets as well as in the usual liquid form. By reducing Hood's Sarsaparilla to a solid extract, we have retained in the tablets the curative properties of every medicinal ingredient. Sold by druggists or sent by mail, 100 doses one dollar. C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

American Apples in England.

Consul Stephens writes from Plymouth that England is importing on an average a little over 150,000 bushels of apples per week. They come from the United States and Canada. Those from Oregon bring the highest prices. The best qualities bring $3.85 a box; ordinary samples $2.90. These are good prices, considering that a box contains only a bushel. The California apples are selling at $2.45 a box for best and $1.95 for ordinary grade. The United States fruit is put up in barrels of about 140 pounds. The best range in value from $5.30 to $6.78 a barrel; ordinary from $4.35 to $4.86. Nova Scotian apples sell from $6.08 to $6.78 a barrel. Ordinary Canadian apples, from various sources, bring from $4.60 to $5.82 a barrel. In these lines the Wagners are the cheapest and the russets the dearest. Some of the latter sell for $6.78 a barrel.

Consul Worman of Three Rivers, Quebec, writes, on the strength of the report of the Canadian agent at Melbourne, that the rapid development of the orchards in Australasia, especially those of Tasmania, has brought to the English fruit markets a strong competitor to American and Canadian apples. It was assumed by the English trade that some 700,000 cases would be exported from Hobart during March and April, but cold weather and very heavy rains have turned a promising crop into a failing one, so that not half a crop will be harvested. The Canadian agent at Melbourne reports that the export will not exceed 380,000 to 400,000 cases as a maximum. The export of apples from the states of Victoria and South Australia have never yet assumed anything like the formidable proportions of Tasmania. The same weather conditions have prevailed throughout those states, and the fruit crop is at least a month late. It is now almost a certainty, writes the agent, that the limited production of apples this season from Australia will not have the slightest influence in the lowering of prices in England, and then add that late Nova Scotian and other Canadian apples should obtain somewhat higher prices in England during April and May next, owing to the curtailment of shipments usually placed upon the British market at that season of the year. When it is generally known in London that the imports from Tasmania will be about 50 per cent less than usual the immediate effect will be to harden prices.

Those Mystic Signs.

A story is told of the most conspicuous joiner in a thriving western city noted for its many lodge members. Indeed, it is said that everybody belongs to at least one lodge and nearly everybody to two or three. Recently a new family came to town and located just across the street from the past master of all the organizations. One day a week later he caught the 5 year old son of the neighbor as the lad was passing, and with a few preliminary remarks led up to:

"Say, my boy, is your father a Mason?"

"No sir," was the sharp reply.

"Probably, then, he is an Old Fellow?"

"Knights of Pythias? Woodman? Workman? Pyramid? Forester? Macabee?"

The boy shook his head.

"Isn't your father a member of any lodge?" demanded the questioner in a puzzled tone.

"Not a one," replied the boy.

"Then why on earth does he make all those signs when he comes out in the front yard every morning?"

"Oh, that ain't lodge," cheerfully explained the lad. "Pa's got the St. Vitus dance."—C. M. Harger in the Atlantic.

Dog and Woodchuck.

"Abe" Trott, a well known character of Peak Island, Me., was on his way to the woods to cut down some trees, carrying an ax on his shoulder and a small terrier dog was following at his heels. They espied a woodchuck to which the dog gave chase, and drove him into a stone wall, where action commenced at once. "Abe's" sympathies being with the dog, he decided to take a hand and help him. So, putting himself in position, with the ax above the dog, he waited for an extraction of the chuck. Soon an opportunity offered, and "Abe" struck, but at the same time the woodchuck gathered himself up and pulled the dog in far enough for him to receive the blow, and the dog was killed.

For years afterward, in relating the story, "Abe" would always add: "And that dog don't know to this day but what the woodchuck killed him."—Boston Herald.

Is Disease a Crime?

Not very long ago, a popular magazine published an editorial article in which the writer asserted, in substance, that all disease should be regarded as criminal. Certain it is, that much of the sickness and suffering of mankind is due to the violation of certain of Nature's laws. But to say that all sickness should be regarded as criminal, must appeal to every reasonable individual as radically wrong.

It would be harsh, unsympathetic, cruel, yes criminal, to condemn the poor, weak, over-worked housewife who sinks under the heavy load of household cares and burdens, and suffers from weaknesses, various displacements of pelvic organs and other derangements peculiar to her sex.

Frequent bearing of children, with its exacting demands upon the system, coupled with the care, worry and labor of rearing a large family, is often the cause of weaknesses, derangements and debility which are aggravated by the many household cares, and the hard, and never-ending work which the mother is called upon to perform. Dr. Pierce, the maker of that world-famed remedy for woman's peculiar weaknesses and ills—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—says that one of the greatest obstacles to the cure of this class of maladies is the fact that the poor, over-worked housewife can not get the needed rest from her many household cares and labor to enable her to secure from the use of his "Prescription" its full benefits. It is a matter of frequent experience, he says, in his extensive practice in these cases, to meet with those who, in their treatment, fail by reason of the patient's inability to abstain from hard work long enough to be cured. With those suffering from prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion of the uterus, or other displacement of the womanly organs, it is very necessary that, in addition to taking his "Favorite Prescription" they abstain from being very much, or for long periods, on their feet. All heavy lifting or straining of any kind should also be avoided. As much outdoor air as possible, with moderate, light exercise is also very important. Let the patient observe these rules and the "Favorite Prescription" will do the rest.

What the Turbine May Do.

Consul Harris writes from Chemnitz that, while the advent of the steam turbine has not revolutionized the machine industry in Germany, it has created unsettled conditions and much speculation as to what the trend of things will be during the next few years. It is thought that experience will show that steam turbines are especially adapted for use in ocean vessels. The element of uncertainty lies in the possibility of syndicates being formed by capitalists for the purpose of manufacturing turbines on a large scale to the detriment of small machine manufacturers. If the number of small plants decrease, large numbers of workmen will be thrown out of employment, with only factory work as a possible recourse. The system of concentrating labor in large manufacturing plants may do very well in America, where labor has always been more or less scarce, but in Germany, where labor is plentiful, some outlet must always be found for manual labor.

FIRST TRIAL OF THE DIRECT PRIMARY.

The law has been sustained by the people who participated in it, and the vote cast at the primary was the largest in the history of the state.

While there are many disappointments, the number of candidates for nomination was so large that the disappointment will be distributed, AND NO ONE IN PARTICULAR WILL BE HURT VERY MUCH.

The present indications are that a good, clean, strong ticket will be nominated that all Republicans and a great many others can support.

The lesson of the primary is that the people can discriminate, and the people can choose, and if there has not been sufficient weeding out of bosses and grafts in April, there will be more in June.

For the first trial the law has worked admirably. The vote in the country was fully as large as in the city, and THE TICKET WILL BE AS WELL DISTRIBUTED AS COULD BE EXPECTED UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES.

The Journal will be found supporting the Republican nominees in Marion county, and the ticket generally, as the choice of the people for any office is good enough for the paper of the people.

first primary are to be publicly thanked and congratulated, and they will never regret their time and labor.

The bill to abolish free passes in Oregon—the one without an enacting clause—should be carefully examined by the voters.

On the face of it the bill looks plausible. But will the subject matter bear investigation? It will never stand law tests without an enacting clause.

Of course, leaving off the enacting clause was a mistake. But it is fatal to the bill if it is ever litigated. Then what is the use of adopting it?

If the bill proposed to reduce passenger fares, while at the same time abolishing passes, there would be some sense in the bill. But to merely increase the earnings of the railroads and steamboat companies, and not benefit anyone, is a shaky proposition.

We shall give this bill more attention, and for the present reserve our judgment. But it should interest voters, whether it is worth while to enact a defective law that benefits nobody.

PROUD OF HIS SUPPORT.

The editor of this paper has always been a champion of the direct nominating system and of direct election of senators.

He wrote a book on the direct primary and circulated a thousand copies at his own expense before some later champions of those principles thought of enacting these principles into laws. Not expecting to get the nomination the editor became a candidate for representative in order to take a full hand in the first direct primary campaign.

He has received a great deal of loyal support from farmers and laboring men and business men, which came without his ever making any personal request for support from any individual voter.

All this unsolicited support gives him great pride and confidence in the principles which he represented in this nominating campaign. Voters who sustained those principles will never have cause to regret it.

The whole direct nominating campaign shows that principles are emphasized more than men, that ideas are more looked to than personality—and that it is principles that men are voting for.

For the unsolicited votes at the primary, be they many or be they few, this editor is profoundly grateful and will try not to disappoint the voters.

THE SURVEYING SCANDAL.

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction on the South Commercial street improvement, over the way the grades were established.

It is the first improvement of this kind undertaken in the city, and it is to be regretted that there was any mistake made.

It seems that the grades were set in part at the expense of the street railway company—that they were paying an alderman for it.

A committee is at work making an investigation, and until their report is in it will be well to suspend judgment. But if the sidewalk lines are not right, if the grades are uncertain, if the curb lines are wrong, if the street is marred in any way, there should be some one held responsible.

One thing is certain, the people over there have not been treated right by the city engineering department if it
