John C. Fremont, the first nominee of the Republican party for president, and often called "The Pathfinder," lies in an unmarked grave in Rockland cemetery, a short distance from Nyack, N. Y. General Fremon died in this city in 1890. Shortly after his death the plot in which he now lies was purchased with the intention of erecting upon the site a suitable monument to the man who was a pioneer in the exploration of the west and who rendered distinguished services in the Mexican war.

A short time after the general's death a John C. Fremont association was formed and incorporated with the object of providing a monument and memorial. The design fo the monument was prepared and, it is believed, adopted by the association. With the excep tion of a bunch of flowers on Memorial day, however, the last resting place of the old warrior and statesman is neglected. Around the grave of General Fremont are the graves of several distinguished men, including Commander Gorrings, who brought to this country 'Cleopatra's Needle,' now standing in Central Park, New York, and Dr. Skene, a famous Brooklyn surgeon,

Weekly Financial Review.

New York, April 27 .- The market has been alternately weak and strong throughout the past week. The trend seems still to be downward and sales on strong spots have grown quite profitable. The Consolidated Gas dividend was cut to a 4 per cent basis and pre ceding the dividend meeting the stock reached the lowest price in several years. As a general proposition in Wall street stocks decline when good news comes out and advance when the announcement of unfavorable developments is made, Whether directors of a company are justified in using information beforehand to the detriment of other stockholders is an unsettled ethical question. At any rate such is the practice of Wall street and the result is the seeming paradox of stocks advancing on bad news and vice versa. It would seem, therefore, that the chances of an advance in Consolidated Gas were fairly good and that it is a rensonable safe purchase around the present level.

The bond market during the week was generally at recessions and under the influence of selling pressure suppos ed to be for the account of insurance companies. Japanese issues were soft and speculative issues such as Colorado Industrials, Brooklyn Rapid Transit 4's, Erie Convertibles, etc., reflected quite closely the stock movements. Steel second 5's were in good demand and Southern Pacific has been one of the strongest stocks on the list all through the recent weakness. The stock has not had a strong specuative movement and seems to have been left pretty much to look after itself. Throughout the general list the buying in spots has been fairly good. Large blocks of securities came out on the declines, and this was particularly true of the Hill stocks. On the other hand there are a good many bargain hunters in the street picking up standard railroad divident payers on breaks. These conditions make for a trading maket. The short account is large, but at present is very powerful. Bullish confidence is by no means enthusiastic. We can scarcely see room for a genuine bullcampaign this spring. At present the outcome seems to favor a trading market with the tendency slowly but stead ily downward .- J. S. Bache & Co.
