MURDER DONE AT FOSTER

A dispatch from Pendleton Monday says:

Two men and two horses are dead as the result of the mysterious burning of a boxcar in a freight train on the line of the O. R. & N. near Foster, in this county this morning at about 7 o'clock. One man was probably a tramp and is thought to have been murdered by a companion, while the other was mistaken for the murderer and shot by a member of the sheriff's posse.

The car that was burned was loaded with household goods and two horses, and left Fort Riley, Kan., May 6 for Port Townsend, Wash. It was in charge of Private William Wilson of the Twenty-fifth battery. The contents of the car were for Colonel S. W. Taylor at Fort Townsend.

According to the statement of Wilson while he was carrying one of the horses he was kicked in the breast by the animal, and when he came to himself the car was on fire. He managed to get to the animals out, but both were killed. He climbed over the cars to the caboose, where he notified the trainmen. The train was cut in two and the burning car run onto the siding at Foster.

In spite of the fact that Wilson says he was alone in the car, the charred remains of a man were found in one end, while another man in citizen's clothes jumped out and ran across the country. Around the body of the dead man was found a great quantity of books and papers.

The officers of this city were notified at once, and Deputy Sheriff Blakely and Coroner Henderson left for the scene on a passing freight train. The soldier was captured and taken into custody at Umatilla, while a posse of three men started after the other man.

Late in the afternoon the posse came upon a man near Pine City who answered to the description of the fugitive. Three times he was commanded to halt, and when, at the third command, he reached for his hip pocket as if to draw a gun, Otis McCarthy of Echo, a member of the posse, fired with his shotgun. The charge of double-B broke the suspects and entered his side, mortally wounding him.

Thinking they had the right man, the posse started with him on the return to Echo, where the inquest was being held. They arrived there about 11 o'clock tonight, but their victim had expired on the way. Before dying he gave the name of John Connelly, but no other information concerning him could be obtained, as he was too weak to talk, and there were no papers of any kind on his person. When the body reached Echo persons who say the man jump from the train positively declared the dead man was not the right one.

The officers are convinced that foul play was committed in the car before it was burned, but at 13 o'clock the coroner's jury had not brought in a verdict. The soldier is being held, while Deputy Sheriff Blakely and his posse are once more scouring the country for the other man. Wilson still insists that there was no one else in the car, thought it has been proven that there were at least two more.

Germany Not a Good Market.

Washington, May 16.—The United States consul at Cassel, writing in response to an inquiry on the possible demand for motor boats in Germany, says: "It would seem that Germany should be a good market for motor boats on account of the many navigable rivers, but boating has never become a popular Teutonic amusement. Mannheim, which is situated at the junction of the Rhine and Neckar, boasts of only one or two motor boats. The same undeveloped taste exists in regard to automobiles. With superior highways and picturesque drives, automobiles are not used for pleasure. Naturally, a people who have not cared to drive for recreation have not cared to use the automobile, and German factories are selling their machines largely in England and other countries, finding the home market a very limited one, restricted almost altogether to the sporting class."

A Positive Necessity.

Having to lay upon my bed for 14 days from a severely bruised leg, I only found relief when I used a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment. I can cheerfully recommend it as the best medicine for bruises ever sent to the afflicted. It has now become a positive necessity upon myself."
