

CHERRIES HAVE A SEANCE

Fruitmen and Others Offer Prizes for Best Exhibit of Standard Varieties

There is a movement on foot for the promotion and encouragement of the cherry industry in this country. A large cherry exhibit has been planned to be held here in July, when prizes will be offered for the best display of cherries. Some interest has already been taken by the fruit growers of Salem and vicinity, and it is now believed that the exhibit will be a decided success. An attempt will be made this week to arouse interest in the display among the farmers and fruit growers of this vicinity. This gathering will be held under the auspices of the State Horticultural Society, and Prof. E. R. Lake, of the State Agricultural College, and secretary of the State Horticultural Society, will be present. The fruit inspectors and commissioners of the various districts will also be in attendance, and will speak on the cherry industry in their respective localities. The Marion County Horticultural Society and the Marion County Fruit Growers' Association are actively at work perfecting plans for the meeting, and providing for the premiums that will be offered. There will be first and second prizes for ten-pound commercial pack, for the Lambert, Bing and Royal Ann varieties. A first and second prize will also be given for the "best assortment of named varieties on plates," and the Oregon Nursery has offered a first and second prize for "unusually seedling of merit."

Growing Aches and Pains

Mrs. Jessie Sumner, Burdwood, Tex., writes April 15, 1906: "I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment in my family for three years. I would not be without it in the house. I have used it on my little girl for growing pains and aches in her knees. It cured her right away. I have also used it for frost bitten feet, with good success. It is the best liniment I ever used." 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by D. J. Fry's drug store.

SAYS BAR IS GROWING DEEPER

Jetty Contractor Kern Declares Engineering Problem Is Near Solution.

"When the government survey, just started, has been completed there is no doubt that it will show a greater depth of water on the Columbia river here than when the last soundings were taken," says Don Kern, of the Columbia Contract Company, which is supplying a good part of the material being used for building the jetty. "Gradually the bar has been increasing in depth since the breakwater was pushed out into the sea."

After the jetty has been given an additional length of one mile and a half Mr. Kern declares that the bar will be scoured out to a depth of close to 40 feet at the low water stage. He explains that there is a high promontory on the north side of the mouth of the river, beyond which it will be necessary to construct the jetty before the best results will be shown.

"Just off the mouth of the river," he continued, "there are strong currents running in both directions parallel with the shore. At present this projection of land, which extends seaward, catches all of the drifting sand carried by the lateral currents and causes the mouth of the river to shoal. When the jetty has been built beyond that point of land the sand will be carried out to sea. The bar problem will then be solved."

He estimated that it will cost about $1,500,000 to extend the jetty to the point which would be the means of deepening the bar to the 40-foot mark. With an appropriation of that amount on hand he declares the project could easily be pushed to completion in a couple of seasons. So far as dredging is concerned he does not believe that would prove of any advantage.

"Until a sufficient appropriation can be secured," concluded the contractor, "I think that the completion of the existing jetty will bring about a material addition to the depth of the water on the bar. This matter was demonstrated by the last survey, and it will also be shown by the soundings now being taken."

Exposure

To cold draughts of air, to keen and cutting winds, sudden changes of the temperature, scanty clothing, undue exposure of the throat and neck after public speaking and singing, bring on croup and colds.

Ballard's Horehound Syrup is the best cure. Mrs. A. Barr, Houston, Tex., writes, Jan. 1, 1905: "One bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup cured me of a very bad cough. It is very pleasant to take." Sold by D. J. Fry.

LEBANON DOCTOR FINED

Fails to Report Smallpox in His Own Family.

The Oregon State Board of Health, through its secretary, Dr. Robert C. Yarney, resorted to the enforcement of its laws by active personal interference at Lebanon a few days ago, the case being the failure of a physician at that town to report smallpox cases in his own family. An epidemic of this disease has existed at Lebanon to a greater or less extent for several months, the infection originally coming from Portland. It scattered broadcast throughout the town, and all efforts of the state board of health and of the city authorities seemed ineffectual in putting a stop to the spread of the contagion.

When it became known that there were two cases in the family of Dr. W. H. Booth, one of the prominent physicians of Lebanon, and that he had not reported them, the situation reached an acute stage, and the authorities decided to take active measures to prosecuting such dereliction of duty. Accordingly the city attorney, Mr. Garwood, was instructed by the city council to bring suit against Dr. Booth in order that the exact nature of the disease might be determined, and also to ally the excitement which was reaching an intense stage in the town.

The State Board of Health, taking the matter in hand, had a quieting effect on the situation, and a meeting was called by Dr. Yarney, at which the county health officer, Dr. Davis, of Albany; the city physician of Lebanon, Dr. Laird, and City Attorney Garwood were present, and after thoroughly examining Dr. Booth, and contrasting the situation, the latter agreed to plead guilty of neglect of duty and was fined $50 by the recorder.

This is the first instance in which the State Board of Health has been compelled to take active measures in enforcing any of its regulations, but the situation at Lebanon demanded active interference.

A Positive Testimony.

Having to lay upon my bed for 14 days from a severely bruised leg, I only found relief when I used a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment. I can cheerfully recommend it as the best medicine for bruises ever sent to the afflicted. It has now become a positive necessity upon myself."

TO GET PUTER'S MONEY

Left in Such a Hurry He Could Not Get His Coin From the Banks

When Stephen A. D. Puter made his sensational escape from Secret Service Agent Burns in Boston two months ago he was forced to leave behind him thousands of dollars of his ill-gotten gains, and within 24 hours the money was attached by wealthy creditors, who had been the victims of his swindles. Burns learned that Puter had placed a large sum in a Boston safety deposit vault, and his first act after the escape of the prisoner was to wire to some of the latter's victims, instructing them to give him power of attorney to attach the funds. They lost no time in sending the desired authority, and when the safety deposit company opened for business the following morning Burns was on hand with the attachments. Stripped of the fruits of his frauds, Puter dropped out of sight. For two months he eluded his pursuers, only to run into their hands at last at San Francisco.

The story of how Puter was separated from his stolen funds, now published for the first time, is one of the most interesting features of his desperate effort to escape the penalty of his crimes. He had amassed a large sum of money in his operations in forged school land certificates, and the bulk of his plunder had been "cached" in a Boston safety deposit box.

Revealed Large Sum.

Puter's swindling operations within the last year are known to have netted him a very large sum. He and his confederates, of whom Horace G. McKinley was chief, are known to have secured about $150,000 from wealthy Eastern timber men and capitalists by means of bogus school land certificates. How much of this money stuck to Puter's fingers, and how much he had to give up to his confederates, no one knows, but Puter undoubtedly appropriated the lion's share. McKinley was the chief instrument in swindling Henry A. Salzer, of La Crosse, Wisconsin, who was misled to the tune of $30,000, and in this instance McKinley may have taken the bulk of the money. In another instance a brother of Puter's is known to have received about $60,000, and was arrested in Chicago for disorderly conduct, with most of the money on his person.

But Steve Puter, the originator of the scheme of counterfeiting the school land certificates, and the moving spirit in the game, undoubtedly realized more than any of his associates from the frauds. How much he had left when he reached Boston is not known, nor has any information been obtainable as to the exact sum that lies in the vaults of the safety deposit company. For the attachments are still pending, and the money has not yet been delivered to Puter's victims.

San Francisco, May 24.—S. A. D. Puter, who was arrested at Alameda last Saturday on the charge of defrauding the government of lands in Oregon, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hancock this morning and waived examination. His bail was fixed at $10,000. An officer leaves for Oregon with Puter late today. When asked in regard to the story that Secret Service Agent Burns succeeded in securing a large sum of money from him in Boston, he absolutely denied he has surrendered a cent to Burns, or any one else. Puter is now a prisoner of the United States marshal, and is confined in a cell in the federal building. He refused to talk beyond making the denial.

Next Sunday at Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. Sunday Club will listen to an address by Rev. Edgar H. Price, the new minister of the Congregational church next Sunday. All men are welcome at these meetings. Next Sunday it is expected there will be music by a male quartet, as well as a soprano solo.

Reform.

(Puck).

The bill was in danger, and the general counsel of the corporation, which it was designed to enrich hastily, called in his legislative agent.

"All the reform element are against us," he said anxiously. "How are we going to beat down such a formidable opposition?"

"Don't try to beat 'em down. Pay 'em what they ask," said the legislative agent, who, in his day, had seen a number of quackeries of the public conscience.

FORMER PRESIDENT CLEVELAND

Heads Advisory Committee of Jamestown Exposition

Before he accepted the chairmanship of the advisory committee of the Jamestown exposition, former President Grover Cleveland had devoted time and thought to the enterprise which had his hearty commendation. To Mr. Hugh Gordon Miller, New York commissioner of the exposition, Mr. Cleveland said that nothing ought "to interfere with the success of the exposition planned for the celebration of the first white settlement upon the domain now embraced within the limits of the country we proudly call the United States."

"We have fittingly celebrated the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America. The 500th anniversary of the settlement of Jamestown is hardly less worthy of commemoration. A great nation cannot bring to mind its small beginnings and its stupendous growth through such a celebration as the Jamestown Exposition company contemplates without stirring in the hearts of its people their best patriotism and the sincerest devotion to the principles which have made this nation great. And such patriotism and work devotion so completely underlies American institutions that their soundness and strength are absolutely necessary to our strength and perpetuity."

"I hope, therefore, that nothing will be lacking to make the exposition successful, as an agency for the stimulation of our national pride and the increase of our faith in free institutions."

President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton university, Colonel Henry Watterson, Cardinal Gibbons and the other members of the committee which Mr. Cleveland heads are heartily in accord with the former President in his enthusiasm for the success of the exposition. Colonel Watterson said: "There is nothing that I can do either personally or as an editor that I will not gladly do to advance its interests. I do not think I need elaborate the many claims which so obvious an undertaking has upon the country. It seems to me that intelligent people everywhere will concur in the opinion that old Jamestown must be duly celebrated."

The managers of the Ter-Centennial celebration believe that much practical good will be accomplished by this committee, which is composed of one hundred representative Americans of the highest standing.

ALL ABOUT THE CALIFORNIA EARTHQUAKE

The Journal Gives its Readers a Special Volume with Full Details of the Great Disaster and Fully Illustrated

It is not often that a daily newspaper can secure a premium that has proven as popular as the book we advertise in today's issue. It will repay every one to read every word of the advertisement. The Journal was offered this book by the publishers and accepted their offer without seeing a sample, because previous dealings had proven them to be reliable, and that their books were all that was claimed for them.

The sample copy arrived in due time and it proved to be a much more desirable book than we had anticipated. It is well printed on heavy book paper from new plates, and the half tone illustrations are exceedingly good. The binding is in cloth, of a golden yellow color. In the center of the front cover is a miniature photographic reproduction showing the business section of San Francisco on fire.

This book was written by Opie Read and Chas. Eugene Banks, two well known authors, and the facts related have been very carefully compiled.

Not only does the book, in its 464 pages, tell of the San Francisco disaster, but it also tells the story of the recent devastating eruption of Mount Vesuvius in Italy. It also gives a brief but vivid historical sketch of the great earthquakes, volcanic eruptions and floods of the last 1900 years.

The book is written in the literary style and is worthy of any library. We cannot say highly of it, and are included in reader of it will be more than a copy of it will be more than a copy of it.

The book is not for sale at the Journal, but is given to any reader who is willing to pay the postage and get the book for six months, or by one for two years and still more to pay postage, and we will be copy of the book at your own office, or if on a rural delivery the book will be delivered to you.

The writer has seen several Francisco earthquakes books by catagraphs, and not one of equal merit either of instruction to the splendid book of the Journal. And the only one for this book is the 25c postage for postage.

The Journal gives you the best acknowledgment of your time paying for your subscription to Journal in advance. We pay the postage on the book. It is now in advance, it is necessary up, and then pay $10 in advance. Every home in Maine should have this book.
