Story That Makes Meat Products Have a Dark Brown Taste

Chicago, May 28.—It is said the Neill Reynolds' report on the packing houses consists of notes and affidavits of employes and patrons. He has some allegations, backed by affidavits, it is said, "that lard is made from hogs which die of cholera." The sanitary conditions of the packing houses is revolting, and meat Europeans refuse to eat in America. Oil from hogs dying in transit is used for "sardine oil," lard is made from hogs which die without inspection, and trichinosis hogs are sold in this country. The so-called "potted chicken" is composed of the flesh of bob veal and "leaf lard," exploited for its purity, contains 20 per cent cotton seed oil. One concern has a chemist to perfect a process for deodorizing decayed hams. The meat is doctored with borax and other dangerous chemicals, after having spoiled, and dangerous chemicals are used for "smoked meats."

Many employes suffer from tuberculosis, are unclean, spit on the meat, walk over it, and drag it on the filthy floor.

Rubbly creek, into which the offal was dumped, was skimmed for the grease which flows on it. Animals butchered for Europeans were inspected. Meat in which trichina were disintegrated were sold. Where the germs were found alive in ham the meat was boiled before selling, though not always thoroughly, and the inspection service was inadequate. An attempt was made to observe sanitary measures in the slaughter houses. Canned roast beef was made from porous parts of old cows, so emaciated that they had to be hauled to the slaughter houses. Sausage was made from animals that died, and was treated with chemicals, and preserved in embalming fluid. The Neill and Reynolds report has been handed to the President, who threatens to send it to congress unless Senator Beveridge's rider on the agricultural bill, regarding sanitary conditions at the packing houses is passed.

A BAD TRAIN WRECK

Twelve Killed and Twenty Injured in a Kentucky Smash Up

Louisville, Ky., May 28.—A broken flange on a Louisville & Nashville passenger coach caused a wreck this morning, and probably 12 lives were lost and 20 persons injured. Identification is difficult on account of the mangled bodies. Eight corpses are in the morgue, and the injured are in the hospitals. The coach left the track and crashed into a freight. The coaches were reduced to kindling wood.

Rain Brought Discomfort.

San Francisco, May 28.—After two days' rain, the sun came out this morning and brought cheer to the thousands of tent-dwellers encamped in the parks, and past discomforts were soon forgotten. While the rain brought discomfort, and, in many cases, extreme suffering, the tenters learned how to dig trenches and protect themselves. Another rain will find them prepared. But few cases of illness as a result of the rain are reported. Owing to flooded streets, the car service was greatly impeded, but otherwise the city suffered no ill effect from the two-days' down-pour.

Prisoner Still in California.

San Francisco, May 28.—S. A. D. Pater, wanted in Portland for complicity in the government land frauds, is still in the Alameda county jail. HIGH SCHOOL MATTERS

The school board of directors met in special session Saturday evening at the high school in response to a call issued as follows:

Salem, Or., May 25, 1906.

To W. H. Byrd, Director of School District No. 24, Salem, Or.:

You are hereby notified that pursuant to request signed by W. H. Byrd, A. A. Leo and H. C. Epley, for the calling for such meeting, there will be a special meeting of district school board of district No. 24 in Marion county, Oregon, at the high school building on Saturday evening, May 25, 1906, for the purpose of instructing the chairman of said board to post notices of the annual school election to be held June 18, 1906, for the purpose of electing one director for the term of five years, and for the further purpose of voting on the question of high school, or no high school for said district. A. O. Condit, chairman of district school board No. 24. Attest: G. C. Goodale Jr., clerk.

The meeting was called to order by Director W. H. Byrd. The roll call showed two other directors present, Messrs. Epley and Leo. Later in the session Mr. Goodale was also present. Dr. Byrd explained that there was found a technical defect in complying with the law in the establishment of the high school and that in order to save, legally, diplomas to the graduates it would be necessary to submit the question of high school to be ratified by the people. Salem has a high school in fact, since it has 10 grades, but the coming election is made necessary to comply with the school law.

The following resolution was then offered by Director Leo:

"Be it resolved, that the chairman and clerk be instructed to post notices of the annual school election to be held June 18, 1906, for the purpose of electing one director for the term of five years and for the further purpose of voting on the question of establishing a high school in school district No. 24, in Marion county, Ore. The resolution was passed unanimously. At another meeting the places for voting and the officers will be selected.

This election, the part pertaining to the high school, is a mere formality to cover a technical defect. The high school has come to stay and there is no opposition to it being continued. A. O. Condit's term has expired and the voters will be called upon to elect his successor.

New Christian Church.

The bids for the building of the new Christian church will be opened sometime during the week. The present church building will be torn down, and the bricks will be used for the basement of the new structure. The new edifice will be 80x105 feet and one of the handsomest church buildings in the city. It is to be built on the modern mission style, and the appointments are to be of the most approved sort. The auditorium will be 80x60, with a large gallery overlooking it. Special efforts are being made to have the Sunday school room well adapted to the needs of a room for that particular kind of church work. There will be 14 class rooms, a baptistry, choir room, a pastor's study and several other rooms. The church, when completed, will cost about $11,000. The church itself has already raised $7500, and there will be no trouble in dedicating the new building free of debt.

Open Air Treatment at Chemawa.

Dr. C. P. Fryer, the school physician of the Indian school at Chemawa, has established, in connection with the school's hospital an out-door sanitarium for the care of pupils who are inclined toward tuberculosis. Several tents have been located in the school orchard near the hospital building, and more will be set up as soon as they can be obtained.

The outdoor treatment will be watched closely by the school management, who hope that it will result in great good and in heading off those inclined to contract this dread disease.

Great Floods in Utah.

Salt Lake, Utah, May 28.—The heavy rains in the last 24 hours are causing great damage. There was a washout on the Southern Pacific at Goleonda, Nev., caused by a cloudburst, drowning three Mexican sheep herders. A committee is here from Juab county, Utah, waiting on Salt Lake Route officials, and asking help for the preservation of the Servier river dam. Volunteers all over the country are working at raising the dam. The water is now backed eight miles along the railroad tracks. The best efforts of 250 teams can only keep the dam six inches above the raising waters. Should the dam go out 600 families of Mormon farmers will be swept away. Snow is reported in Southern Utah. All railroads have rock trains out strengthening the weak places.

Great Damage to Fruit Crop.

Sacramento, May 28.—Reports of orchardists from the northern part of the state say the cherry crop not gathered is absolutely destroyed. Late cherries, peaches, plums and strawberries are badly damaged. Hay and grain are down everywhere, and it is feared it will not rise. Four inches of rain is reported in the Sierras, and nearly two inches in this city, accompanied by high winds, which blew the fruit from the trees. The total loss in Northern California will exceed a million.

Washington, May 28.—Presidential nominations of registers of the land offices are: J. M. Burlingame, Clarence, Montana; Frank D. McCole, Helena, Montana; Elmer Esseltin, Billings, Montana; Clarence E. McKerr, Lewistown, Idaho. Receivers of public moneys: C. G. Gorman, Helena, Montana; Chauncey Bever, Billings, Montana; W. A. LOST GIRL FOUND

Sexton's Dog Leads Rescuers to Bessie Bauer's Hiding Place

The Oregonian this morning has the following pitiful story:

Hungry and thirsty, with lacerated feet and hands, and clothing covered with mud and slime, Miss Bessie Bauer, for whom her parents and the police have been searching for five days, was found at 7 o'clock last night through the sagacity of a dog belonging to the sexton of Riverside cemetery. When discovered Miss Bauer was in an almost exhausted condition, and was suffering intensely. She had concealed herself in the vicinity of the cemetery, after her disappearance, and refused to respond to the calls of the rescuers. She admitted to her mother last night that her mind must have been affected, for she knew not what she had been doing.

The sexton noticed several times yesterday the peculiar antics of his dog, but paid little attention. Dr. Tillman, who was passing the cemetery, also noticed the actions of the dumb brute, and requested the sexton to follow the dog. The two, march to the gratification of the animal, followed it to a clump of bushes, where the young woman was found sitting on a log in a half-fainting condition.

Recognized from Pictures.

From published descriptions of Miss Bauer, Dr. Tillman recognized her as the missing girl. He notified the police at once, and Captain Slover sent Detectives Snow and Reising to the cemetery. Before their arrival, Miss Bauer's mother and her brother had been notified, and the brother had gone to bring his sister home.

The detectives missed the ferry, but arrived in time to see the young woman taken in a boat across the river by several men, whose services were volunteered. So exhausted had she become through hunger and thirst that she had to be carried home. She was immediately put to bed and a physician called to attend her.

Febly but clearly Miss Bauer was able to tell her terrible experiences to her mother, who was herself almost overcome at her daughter's return. Miss Bauer stated that her mind was unbalanced when she wandered away from home, and that at different times she had heard searchers calling her name.

"I seemed to know what they wanted," she said, "but it was not in my power to answer. I became frightened at the approach of anyone, and, instead of seeking safety by making known my presence, I ran from them and concealed myself in the bushes."

Slept Amid Tombstones.

Exposed to rains, which drenched her to the skin, and suffering from the cold, Miss Bauer slept in the brush and under logs for five nights with wild beasts, birds and tombstones for her only company. Through contact with briars her clothing was torn and her hands were covered with cuts and scratches, while her feet were a mass of bruises. Her face has become pinched and wan, and her figure, which ordinarily is slight, is now greatly emaciated.

Although her mind was affected during her absence, it is now believed that she will recover her reason, but it will be some time before she regains her strength.

Councilman A. N. Wills, uncle of Miss Bauer, left for Astoria yesterday morning, believing that his niece had gone there.

The young woman who has caused her mother and the police such worry, disappeared from her home last Wednesday morning. She told her mother that she was suffering from a headache and would walk around in the open air in an effort to cure it. She did not return, and at night the police were notified.

They searched all quarters of the city, but could find no trace of her. It was believed for a time that even more serious harm had befallen her.

Governor Chamberlain today issued a requisition on the governor of Washington for the delivery of J. Q. Adams charged with larceny committed at the Imperial hotel in Portland May 2, 1906. He is now at Spokane, Washington. T. G. Carpenter, of Portland, is designated as the agent to return the fugitive from justice.
