ON THE OTHER SIDE

If it is a fact that woman suffrage is such a boon to humanity, as the advocates of woman suffrage would have us believe, why have not some of the older Eastern states adopted it? The suffragists have been hammering away at them for forty years. The state of Massachusetts did in 1895 give the women a chance to say by their ballot whether they wanted suffrage or not. What was their answer? There were at that time 575,000 women in that state eligible to vote, and after a most energetic campaign by the suffragists all they could prevail to come out and say that they wanted the right of franchise was 22,304. Not one in every 25. Five hundred and fifty thousand women of that state did not want it.

Why are the four suffrage states of Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and Idaho the worst politically amongst all the states of the Union? Colorado has had suffrage for 13 years, Wyoming for 37 years, Utah for 11 years and Idaho for 10 years.

Does it not seem to the ordinary person of intelligence that if there was any truth in the claims of the suffragists, that in all those years some improvement would be made for the better?

Is it not a well known fact that each of these states has grown steadily worse from the time they adopted woman suffrage?

Is it not also true that in each of these states saloons, gambling houses and brothels are allowed to operate openly?

Is it not true that in each of these states women are worse off legally, politically and every other way than they are in any other state in the Union?

What is the answer? The answer is that the great majority of women do not want to vote. The male relatives of all respectable women do not want to see them mix with the element that they themselves shrink from. The consequence is that all the women voting is done by the ignorant woman and the woman from the brothels. These are easily controlled by the politician who can pay the most for their votes. Therefore the worst political conditions prevail in those states where only the worst element of women can be prevailed upon to attend the polls. Is it any wonder then that the suffrage states have not in any way, shown the advantages that the suffragist advocates try to make us believe are sure to result from the adoption of the franchise to women. This is a lamentable fact. A good woman's every impulse is for the clean and pure, but who can blame her for retreating to the shelter of her home when she finds out the grim, foul and reeking stench of actual contact with the worst of the political element.

Following the Flag.

When our soldiers went to Cuba and the Philippines, health was the most important consideration. Willis T. Morgan, retired commissary sergeant, U. S. A., of Rural Route 1, Concord, N. H., says: "I was two years in Cuba and two years in the Philippines, and being subject to colds, I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which kept me in perfect health. And now, in New Hampshire, we find it the best medicine in the world for coughs, colds, bronchial troubles and all lung diseases. Guaranteed at J. C. Perry's drug store. Price, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free."

Vote for Goddess.

Tomorrow (Saturday) evening's Journal and Sunday morning's Statesman will contain a coupon which if voted before Monday, June 4th at 5 p. m., will count five votes apiece for some young lady, who will be made Goddess of Liberty. It will cost you nothing to vote these coupons and you will help to set the ball rolling. Some lady will grace the Capital City on the Fourth of July as Goddess, and the choice is left to the people. The ballot boxes can be found at either The Spa, The Golden Bell, Fuller & Douglas Zinn's, Patton's book store, or Berghardt's Book Store.

This will be quite an honor for some young lady. The committee have set aside $50 which will be given her to purchase an elaborate costume. So don't forget to cut out the coupons in both papers, and vote for your friends.

COAST COUNTIES ARE SOLIDLY REPUBLICAN

men have been brought all the way from Duluth, on Lake Superior, free to get them to come out and work at their own prices after they got here. Woolen mills are lying idle because wool is too high or is snapped up for eastern factories at fancy prices. The danger to development and industries is not from too high a tariff or too many multi-millionaires, but from Republican policies putting too high a premium on human industries, on the brawn and sinew of the land as Republican policies have always done. Let the man who thinks of voting for such uncertainties as revenue tariffs, revision of tariffs, or partial free trade, think twice—think forward and think backward—before he strikes a blow to change the most favorable labor conditions this world has ever known, to cater to any political clamor of those who seek a change for partisan reasons. It would pay us better to pension every Democratic office-seeker on half pay than to put a single one of their policies into operation, if they would be attended with the customary appalling effect in the way of commercial and industrial paralysis, or the locomotor ataxia of any of the other political aggregations.

The Republican party is not only the party of protection, progress and prosperity, but the party of population. The growth of the United States as shown by the census has always been phenomenal under Republican policies, and the nation has always slackened its vitalities in this direction under Democratic rule. In fact, the Republican party can lay claim to tracing its origin direct to the Garden of Eden, and establishes a connection between the apple crop and the birth rate of our country. The Republican party is the foe of industrial suicide, and our greatest President in modern times has added extinction of race suicide to the policies of Republicanism. His championship of larger families had such a marked effect on the occasion of his visit to Oregon a few years ago, that the birth rate of the city of Portland, which was already high, increased 25 per cent the first year after President Roosevelt honored that city with a visit. But there was no danger of over population in Oregon. He told a story of a young German butcher in New York city, who was engaged to be married to a young woman in Hoboken who was reputed rather fast. A friend told Hans she was not behaving just right and he ought not marry her. Hans was told that she was running with every young man in Hoboken. "Well," said Hans, "Hoboken ain't such a pig place." Col. Hofer advocated rebating the poll taxes and giving a piece of public land to any young man who would marry and go and live on the land and make a home, and knock off a year in commutation of title for every child born on the homestead. He told another story of two German ladies riding on the train with him recently. They were from Wisconsin, and the elder of the two remarked that she had twelve grown up children. The other said nothing, but remarked that she had eight small ones. "Aber das ist ziemlich gut," was the only comment of the older woman. Oregon needed more of that kind of people, and the way to get them is to endorse and uphold Roosevelt policies by supporting the whole Republican ticket and program, including warfare on race suicide. The Republican party is the party of homes and hopefulness, whether it be for the individual man or woman, the county, state or nation. The doubted and the pessimist do not find its ranks or atmosphere congenial and congregate elsewhere.

There is no higher aspiration for an American citizen than to become a public servant in the true sense of the word. The honor of faithfully serving others is one that any man can covet. The Saviour of men said that he came not to be ministered unto but to minister unto others. It is that spirit—the very reverse of the disposition to get honors and swell up and burst hat bands—that should characterize the true servant of the people. In spite of the claims made by the Democrats it was the Republican party of Oregon that enacted the initiative and referendum, that enacted the laws taxing

FOOD OR STIMULANT.

Ask your doctor if when he orders a patient to drink lots of pure milk he advises the addition of a large quantity of whiskey. He'll tell you "no" very emphatically. Yet there are people who, when ordered to get Scott's Emulsion, will accept some wine, cordial or extract of cod liver oil and think it is the same thing or better. If you want and need cod liver oil in its best, purest and most easily digested form, get Scott's Emulsion. If you want whiskey, that's another matter, but don't look for the same results.

the corporations known as the Eddy bill, and taxing insurance companies on their gross earnings and the flat salary law. It is the Republican party that has followed the letter and the spirit of the direct primary law, and that has placed before the people the first ticket that was nominated from constable to United States senator by the direct vote of the people—a ticket made without voice or influence of boss or machine—a ticket made in Oregon, while the Democratic ticket was machine made, by a kind of conference of bosses, suggested to the rank and file instead of the rank and file suggesting nominations to the managers and putting them out of business. Will the people sit down on the first ticket made by themselves and repudiate the very law which they enacted in their sovereign capacity as voters on the first trial of the initiative and referendum? June 4th shall determine, whether the system of naming candidates by the direct vote of the citizens in primary election assembled shall be trampled under foot and cast into the gutter. Those who support this principle should sustain the ticket fairly nominated thereunder on April 20th if they hope to see this reform extended to other states. It is an ideal system that should long ago have been enacted by the legislature. Now that we have it, enacted by the people of Oregon, let us support it from top to bottom. Whatever criticism has fallen from the lips of our worthy Democratic governor, and many of his criticisms have foundation, he has not charged that the Republican party of Oregon has been recreant or wanting in its devotion to and respect for the laws enacted by the people. On that rock the waves of Democratic carping beat in vain. The Republican party of Oregon has been and will continue to be the party of the people.

From the standpoint of service to the people and respecting the voice of the people, the Republican candidate for the United States senate, Jonathan Bourne of Portland, was especially commendable. He was a man whose only crime was his effort to get next to the people. If chosen senator by the people and ratified by the legislature, he would continue that effort. The best men in Oregon had endeared themselves to the people by their efforts to keep close to them. What was the secret of the popularity of men like Mitchell and Hermann? Their everlasting efforts to come in closest touch with the people and their fidelity in answering to their slightest demand. Col Hofer said he had a letter from Mr. Bourne, in his own original handwriting, but would not try to read it. Mr. Bourne, he said, had three peculiar styles of penmanship. One that nobody but his wife could read. One that nobody but himself could read, and one that nobody at all could read. The substance of the letter was that if elected he would employ at least four private secretaries, instead of the ordinary United States senator having one. Mr. Bourne would have one secretary to attend to correspondence in regard to pensions of old soldiers, one to attend to matters in connection with postoffices and postal mail routes, one for correspondence relating to rivers and harbors and other appropriations, and one for his public and political correspondence. He would attempt, if chosen senator for Oregon, to get into touch with and find out what every one of his constituents who had any business with the departments, wanted to have attended to. He would not wait to find out after repeated solicitations from them, but would attempt to put himself immediately in touch with the people who had elected him. That is the modern and progressive spirit

A Pleasant Way to Travel.

The above is the usual verdict of the traveler using the Missouri Pacific railway between the Pacific coast and the east, and we believe that the service and accommodations given merit this statement. From Denver, Colorado Springs and Denver there are two through trains daily to Kansas City and St. Louis, carrying Pullman's latest standard electric-lighted sleeping cars, chair cars and up-to-date dining cars. The same excellent service is operated from Kansas City and St. Louis to Memphis, Little Rock and Hot Springs. If you are going east or south, write for particulars and full information.
