HIGH CHIMNEY COMING DOWN.
Cracked Flue on Geary Street Power House to Be Repaired.

A force of workmen has begun the task of tearing down the big brick chimney of the Geary-street power-house, which was badly cracked during the recent earthquake. For the purpose of wrecking the cracked brickwork a scaffolding has been erected on the inside of the chimney. People who watched the operations of the workmen on top of the chimney yesterday wondered in what mysterious manner the brickwork was being removed. The explanation, however, is very simple. The building is being torn down precisely as it was built up, by means of an interior scaffolding.

A. D. Shepard, vice-president and secretary of the Geary-street road, said yesterday that a careful examination of the stack showed the walls were cracked half way down from the top. The chimney is 125 feet high. Below the lower point of the crack that encircles the upper half of the chimney the brickwork has been found in perfect shape, and this lower half will be allowed to stand. The Geary-street power plant has been burning oil during the past few years, and, in view of the fact that an oil-burning furnace requires less draft than a coal-burning furnace, it has been decided not to rebuild the chimney to its former height. Mr. Shepard says that as soon as the damaged section of the chimney is removed and the interior scaffolding has been taken down the power plant will be ready to resume operations, the machinery not having suffered any injury during the earthquake.

"I am not prepared to say whether the Geary-street road will resume operations," said Mr. Shepard yesterday, "but I think the road could be put in shape to resume operations in ten days. The slot rails are warped but the conduit, so far as we have been able to discover, is uninjured. The slot could be straightened and the roadbed put in good shape at little expense and trouble. The Geary-street road ran its cable for an hour after the earthquake on April 18th, which shows that it suffered no material damage from the shock. We managed to get one or two cars down town, and these were subsequently burned."—S. F. Chronicle.

Boil Drinking Water.

While the work of enlarging the filtering system is in progress it would be better for all to boil their drinking water.—The progress of the work will be noted in this paper. 5-19-tf.

George Cruikshank.

For my own part, I presently stumbled upon an old manikin of a creature with thin, active legs, and a long, queer visage adorned with sparse whiskers of faded yellow; under his black frock coat he wore a yellow vest, and light, striped pantaloons covered his shrunken shanks. I had never before seen the actual man, and my acquaintance with his portraits had prepared me for a tall and portly gentleman, these likenesses having been heads merely, which are apt to prove misleading in this respect. Nevertheless, no sooner had I set eyes on him than I recognized him; for he had drawn his own portrait at full length a myriad times, and there was no mistaking that big-headed, slim-bodied, elfin type, with its touch of the grotesque, and its preternatural nimbleness. If you have ever studied a certain ancient edition of Grimm's Fairy Tales, you have seen this remarkable individual masquerading in scores of disguises from one illustration to another. In short, he could have been, no other than George Cruikshank; and George Cruikshank, accordingly, he proved to be.

And what a man he was, to be sure! He was born just before the storming of the Tuileries, in 1792; at this date he had been actively at work for full three score years and ten, and was still as industrious as ever. The social, literary, artistic, political, and reform history of the nineteenth century covered the area of his own experience. He had caricatured Napoleon; he had pictured the passions of the Corn-Law agitation; he had dealt tremendous blows at the drink evil; he had brought to the familiar knowledge of innumerable English and American children the fairy tales of the Middle Ages; he had illustrated Dickens and a dozen other authors; he had written books of his own, and had started and edited periodicals;—and behold! here he was, lively and enterprising as ever, skipping to and fro on Mr. Bohn's lawn; and now pausing for a few moments to give me good advice.

SUBURB GROWING RAPIDLY

Berries and Small Fruits Causes North Salem to Look Up

In no part of this city, perhaps, is there being shown more civic improvement and general enterprise than in North Salem, and especially that part of it farthest away from the center of the city. This section of the capital city on the historic old Champeog road, is rolling land, or more properly, lies on a gentle slope and this geologic fact makes it very desirable for the culture of berries and small fruits. The enterprising people who have built homes in this beautiful suburb have not been slow to see the point, and on every small farm and on every lot are some of the finest strawberries, logan berries and cherries that can be found anywhere in this state, which is the home of the berry and the cherry.

That this extensive growing of berries and cherries pays in this particular place at once becomes apparent to the observer when he looks at the well kept homes that are fast becoming more numerous in the suburb.

Building, too, is going on at every point. Houses are freshly painted, new fences are being constructed and new homes are being built.

It is here that the experiment—if it can still be called an experiment—of growing walnuts for commercial use is being very extensively tried. These trees are in their second year and are very thrifty. In the same vicinity walnuts have been set out long enough ago for the product to reach perfection, and the walnuts have proved to be of a splendid quality. There can be scarcely any doubt that the enterprise will be a successful one.

In the meantime Mr. Clark is growing strawberries on a very extensive scale. He has eleven acres in berries this year and the crop is very nearly an average one in quantity, and as to quality, it is up to the standard. Other extensive growers of strawberries in this immediate vicinity are C. W. Chatfield, Mrs. Mabel Keiser and others.

In the center of this prosperous community of small farms and berry fields has grown up a village of commercial interests. Arthur & Korb conduct a blacksmith shop; George B. Jacob has a large wood working factory and carriage shop, and Stapleton & Cummings have a general merchandise store. This firm also is the owner of a big grain, hay and feed warehouse and is doing a very extensive business with the people to the north of the city. It may be remarked, parenthetically, that this old Champeog road runs through as rich a country as any thoroughfare that radiates from the capital. This is one of the things that is making North Salem grow.

When one says that the county poor farm is situated in the heart of this community, the statement sounds paradoxical. The farm is now in a very prosperous condition under the superintendency of George Clymer. The small farm surrounding the almshouse is in a highly cultivated condition and the buildings are in good condition.

Among the new homes that are just at the present time in course of construction is the handsome residence of Frank Webber. W. D. Wheeler is erecting a building for a grocery store and meat shop.

Following the Flag.

When our soldiers went to Cuba and the Philippines, health was the most important consideration. Willis T. Morgan, retired commissary sergeant, U. S. A., of Rural Route 1, Concord, N. H., says: "I was two years in Cuba and two years in the Philippines, and being subject to colds, I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which kept me in perfect health. And now, in New Hampshire, we find it the best medicine in the world for coughs, colds, bronchial troubles and all lung diseases. Guaranteed at J. C. Perry's drug store. Price, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

If—$1,000,000.

If I had a million dollars
You'd never hear me complain;
I'd say that the world was lovely
And whistle a glad refrain:
I'd scoff at the ones who grumble
And comfort the ones who sigh
By telling them of the beauties
Here under the arching sky.

FROM GIRLHOOD TO WOMANHOOD

Mothers Should Watch the Development of Their Daughters—
Interesting Experiences of Misses Borman and Mills.

Every mother possesses information which is of vital interest to her young daughter.

Too often this is never imparted or is withheld until serious harm has resulted to the growing girl through her ignorance of nature's mysterious and wonderful laws and penalties.

Girls' over-sensitiveness and modesty often puzzle their mothers and baffle physicians, as they so often withhold their confidence from their mothers and conceal the symptoms which ought to be told to their physician at this critical period.

When a girl's thoughts become sluggish, with headache, dizziness or a disposition to sleep, pains in back or lower limbs, eyes dim, desire for solitude; when she is a mystery to herself and friends, her mother should come to her aid, and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will at this time prepare the system for the coming change, and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities.

Hundreds of letters from young girls and from mothers, expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for them, have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., at Lynn, Mass.

Miss Mills has written the two following letters to Mrs. Pinkham, which will be read with interest:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— (First Letter.)
"I am but fifteen years of age, am depressed, have dizzy spells, chills, headache and backache, and as I have heard that you can give helpful advice to girls in my condition, I am writing you."—Myrtle Mills, Oquawka, Ill.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— (Second Letter.)
"It is with the feeling of utmost gratitude that I write to you to tell you what your valuable medicine has done for me. When I wrote you in regard to my condition I had consulted several doctors, but they failed to understand my case and I did not receive any benefit from their treatment. I followed your advice, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now healthy and well, and all the distressing symptoms which I had at that time have disappeared."—Myrtle Mills, Oquawka, Ill.

Miss Matilda Borman writes Mrs. Pinkham as follows:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my periods were irregular and painful, and I always had a dreadful headache.
"But since taking the Compound my headaches have entirely left me, my periods are regular, and I am getting strong and well. I am telling all my girl friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Matilda Borman, Farmington, Iowa.

If you know of any young girl who is sick and needs motherly advice, write her to address Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and tell her every detail of her symptoms, and I will keep nothing back. She will receive advice absolutely free, from a source that has no rival in the experience of woman's ills, and it will, if followed, put her on the right road to strong, healthy and happy womanhood.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for the greatest number of cures of female ills of any medicine that the world has ever known. Why don't you try it?

BY EARTHQUAKE AND FIRE

By Charles Eugene Banks and Opie Read

Special :-: Memorial :-: Volume

This edition will be eagerly sought after by millions of Americans who have demonstrated their sympathy in a substantial manner by cheerfully answering the call of the stricken, and giving money, food and clothing with a generosity truly American. Every city, town and village throughout the land is stretching forth its hands to help those in distress. Human hearts are beating today in every hamlet in the world for friends or relatives dead or dying in the ruins.

There never was a time in the history of the world when all eyes were turned to one city, as now they are toward the once great city of San Francisco.

Interest is at fever heat and there is a demand for this book, by all people, that makes it a duty and an honor to be the means of bringing it to them.

This book tells, by pen and picture, the detailed story as gathered by writers on the grounds, of the awful calamity that befell San Francisco and the smaller cities of the Pacific coast, leaving hundreds of thousands homeless and at the mercy of their fellow men; of the loss of life and the destruction of property; the story of the disaster as told by the survivors; fighting fire with dynamite; murder and pillage by ghouls; food and water famine; army guarding survivors under martial law; the rifle and noose the fate of ghouls; burial alive in tombs of fire; a city turned into an inferno of furnaces; hundreds insane; sympathy of nations; relief work of our people; contributions for the suffering from individuals, cities and congress; a nation's sympathy aroused.
