Weeds for Swine.

One way to get rid of weeds on the farm is to cut or pull them up and feed them to the hogs. Kept in confinement, the animals will seldom fail to relish them, it being a part of their nature to live on green stuff and roots. Any kind of weeds, not poisonous, may be given them, and also garden refuse, such as waste cabbages, lettuce plants, and so on. They have gone to seed, radishes, turnips, culls of beets, carrots, turnips, and the like, including unmarketable potatoes. Even tomato culls, as a rule, are eagerly devoured. And a lot of good it will seem to do the hogs. They certainly will be benefited thereby, and, if any part of the farm is infested with weeds difficult to eradicate, the proper way to get rid of them is to cut them up and feed them to the hogs. Kept there long enough, they will clean out the undesirable vegetation, and at the same time thoroughly pulverize and greatly enrich the soil.—Fred O. Sibley in Agriculturalist.
