AGRICULTURAL LANDS IN FOREST RESERVES MAY NOW BE ENTERED

The following are the material provisions of the act known as the Lacey bill which was signed by the President yesterday and which provides for the entry of agricultural lands within forest reserves:

Section 1 provides that the secretary of agriculture may in his discretion examine and ascertain the location and extent of lands within the permanent or temporary forest reserves, which are chiefly valuable for agriculture and are not needed for public purposes, and may list and describe the same and file the lists with the secretary of the interior with request that the lands be opened to entry in accordance with the homestead laws and this act.

That upon the filing of such lists the secretary of the interior shall declare the lands opened to homestead settlement and entry in tracts not exceeding 100 acres and not more than one mile in length: Provided, that any settler actually occupying lands for agricultural purposes prior to January 1, 1906, shall have preference of entry upon filing within five years after date of making settlement, which required proof of residence and cultivation, a plat and field notes of land entered, made by or under direction of the surveyor general; but no land entered under the provisions of this act shall be patented under the commutation provisions of the homestead laws, but the settlers shall have credit for actual residence upon the land.

Section 2 provides that such actual settlers who have exercised or lost their homestead privilege, but are otherwise competent to enter lands under the homestead laws, are hereby granted an additional homestead right under this act upon complying with all its provisions and in addition paying upon final proof the sum of $2.50 per acre.

Sections 3 and 4 exempt certain lands in the Black Hills reserve from the general provisions of the bill.

Forest Reserve Regulation. Anticipating the enactment of the bill the department of forestry has prepared certain regulations for carrying the same into effect. The main provisions are: That areas known to have been occupied by actual settlers will first be examined that all applications of actual settlers shall be mailed directly to Forester Gifford Pinchot, at Washington, D. C., applications received by the same mail to be treated as received simultaneously; forbids forest service officers from making applications under the act.
