ATTEMPTED MURDER AT GLENDALE

Five Pistol Shots Fired Through Glass Door at H. Nelson and His Sister Mrs. Johnson, Presumably by the Woman's Husband

Glendale, Or., June 30.—A deliberate attempt to murder an entire family was made in this town about 9:30 o'clock last evening. While Mrs. Chas. Johnson, with her infant child brother, Henry Nelson, was sitting by her fireside, five pistol shots were fired at her through the glass front of the door at short range. One of the shots took effect in Nelson's head, making a flesh wound, the other shots embedding themselves in the walls and furniture. Hundreds of people heard the shots and the screams and cries for help which followed. As soon as possible a large number of man-hunters were in pursuit of the man who fired the shots, but up to a late hour no arrests had been made. The viciousness of the attack leaves no doubt that it was a premeditated attempt to kill both. Mrs. Johnson and her brother and Mrs. Johnson's husband is suspected.

Mrs. Johnson and her brother have been living in Eugene for several months. Recently Johnson left his wife, and she removed to Glendale. It is believed that he followed her to this place and fired the shots, though he was not known to be here.

Both Nelson and Mrs. Johnson are highly respected here. Every effort is being made to locate Johnson.

To Fish for Greek Statues.

Genoa, Italy, June 30.—Two specially equipped steamships with a crew of divers have started from here for the Aegean sea, following a contract between the government of Greece and the Genoa Society for the Recovery of Vessels, to hunt for Grecian statues and other works of art which sank with a vessel wrecked near the Island of Cerigotte about 2000 years ago. The valuable sculptures formed part of a load which was on its way to Rome, to be used in beautifying the city. The place of the wreck was recently discovered by accident by a Greek diver, who brought up a statue valued at about $600. It was known for a long time that the ship with its valuable cargo was wrecked in the Aegean sea, but not until recently was the exact spot located. Judging from the sample brought up by the lucky diver it is believed that many valuable treasures of antique art will be recovered.

Bergey Family Reunion.

Pottstown, Pa., June 30.—Several hundred members of the Bergey family were in attendance when the annual reunion of the large family was opened this morning at Saratoga park. There will be another session this afternoon and the rest of the time will be devoted to social intercourse and the enjoyment of the various kinds of entertainments provided for the members of the family. The reunion had originally been set for Lower Salford, near which the cemetery is located, where the founders of the American branch of the family are buried, but the place of the reunion was changed to Pottstown because there was no available place for the reunion at Lower Salford.

Won Husband by Her Voice.

Hatboro, Pa., June 30.—The wedding of Miss Mary Colby of this town and Carroll Harper of Jenkintown, which will take place at the Hatboro Baptist church this afternoon, is the culmination of a charming little romance, which began more than a year ago.

Miss Colby, who is a daughter of the Rev. F. C. Colby, the pastor of the Hatboro Baptist church, has been singing in the church choir for some time. One Sunday morning, while Mr. Harper was attending services, he heard her sing and was so delighted with her voice that he sought an introduction to the young woman. When they met it was a case of love at first sight. The ceremony this afternoon will be performed by the father of the bride, the Rev. F. C. Colby, assisted by the Rev. William Kline, pastor of the Hatboro Methodist Episcopal church.

BEAUTIFUL GREAT EYED COUNTRY GIRL

Evelyn Nesbit, Lured to Her Ruin by Unfair Means, by White, Who Never Ceased to Persecute Her Even After Her Marriage

New York, June 30.—Thaw was restless last night on acount of the heat. He was awake early this morning, and one of the first prisoners up. He read the morning papers, following his usual routine. It is stated this morning that among the intimates of White subpoenaed are prominent business men, financiers and publishers.

It is said by one of these that White was accustomed to cooling $5 and $10 gold pieces on the ice around the champaigne, and then putting them down the girls' necks to see them "wiggle."

Mrs. Thaw visited her husband in prison today. The streets were deserted, and her presence created no particular interest. The announcement was made by the judge to the grand jury that they were to consider the Thaw case responsible for the rumor that the prosecution had unearthed evidence likely to lead to the indictment of at least one other person as accessory before the fact. It is hinted also that criminal conspiracy is charged, or is likely to be charged against a number of persons of stronger minds than Thaw possessed.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw yesterday for thre ehours unfolded to attorneys for her husband, and in order to save his neck, every incident in her stormy life. When the terrible ordeal was ended she was in a state of collapse, and was put under the care of a physician, while her husband stormed because she did not pay her daily visit to the Tombs.

While the nature of her confession is kept secret, it is understood she told of how Stanford White encompassed her ruin through the use of drugs, and that she gave much information relating to the ruin of other girls by White and his coterie of friends, who appear to have made this a specialty.

The central figure in the forthcoming trial of Harry Thaw will not be Thaw, but will be Evelyn Nesbit, his beautiful wife. From all accounts it appears that her worst offense lies in the fact that she has always been wondrously beautiful, and for this reason the especial prey of unscrupulous men.

Contract Used as a Club.

It is expected to be shown that White secured some sort of a contract while she was still his pet, before her marriage to Thaw, and that he was holding this over her, and endeavoring to force her back to the old relations. The girl-wife was trying to lead a decent life, but White and others, who knew of some earlier indiscretions, it is charged, were hounding her to desperation.

Almost at the hour that Harry Thaw killed White another young girl was waiting to go to dinner with him. A girl named Emma Stokes appeared at the Garden 20 minutes after the shooting, and asked for White, saying she had an appointment with him. When informed that he was dead she fainted, and was hastily taken away in an automobile.

White's Friends Are Involved.

Harry Thaw has given much valuable information to Anthony Comstock. It is said he has named three of White's closest friends as companions in the terrible vices for which he was notorious. Persons who have an inkling of the disclosures say New York will get a terrible shaking up as a result of the exposures.

Comstock, in an interview today, said he is rapidly completing the network around many rich and influential members of the smart set, and the horrors that will be exposed will put to shame the most hideous excesses of Rome in the sixth century. He said in part:

"From the information I have already secured, this coterie of men was not only guilty of immorality but of vice in its most hideous form. That this vice exists and is spreading to a degree absolutely appalling among the men of the middle and wealthy classes is quite true. Their hideous vices are destroying society. The influence of an age of luxury, of indolence, of self-indulgence born of vast wealth, may act for the growth of this cancer.

Vices That Shame the Ancients.

"We have reached a condition, compared with which Sodom and Gomorrah and of ancient Rome were almost normal, and heaven alone knows where it will end. I have no hope that Harry Thaw's act in slaying White will have a purifying effect. Moral regeneration was never yet born of a crime."

Men familiar with the sad trials of Evelyn Nesbit, from the time she was lured her, a beautiful, innocent, great-eyed child, from her country home in Pennsylvania, to be thrown into the hideous maelstrom of Gotham vice—the beautiful prey of men versed in every wile, and who did not hesitate to employ any unfair means to destroy young girls—predict that when her story is made public, an overwhelming wave of sympathy will sweep the country in her behalf.

Terror Drove to Confession.

She fought desperately to maintain her respectability. Whatever indiscretions may be charged against her in her earlier years it will be shown that they were accomplished by unfair means. In her right senses, she strove to be decent, and her terror of the possibility of again falling under the baleful domination of the gang of destroyers led her to confess her wrongs to her husband, and in turn led him to destroy the chief of her tormentors.

Thus, as a wronged girl who constantly strove to fight down the past and live aright, in the sickening pool of lust in which she was thrown, the wife of Harry Thaw, and not Harry Thaw himself, will dominate his forthcoming trial for the murder of Stanford White, and the sentiment of the whole country will decide the case.

Kansas City, Kansas Is Dry.

(Four O'Clock Edition.)

Kansas City, Mo., June 30.—Kansas City, Kansas, is dryer is today than it has been in many years. Asisstant Attorney-General Trickett has been warned by letter that the people want a "joint" to run, and that if he does not cease his prosecutions he will meet death, and all his property will be destroyed by arson. Trickett is unmoved. Judge Holt ordered the sheriff to place padlocks on all saloon doors, to enforce the anti-joint law, and see that absolutely no drinks were sold there.
