To Build Swimming Pool.

The Y. M. C. A. committee which has charge of the swimming pool will probably begin work next Monday. The pool will be 50x15 feet, and will be built in such a manner as to give 5 1/2 feet of water at one end and three feet at the other. G. A. Forbes, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., is enthusiastic over the project, and says that the swimming pool will be the finest thing that the city has ever seen for the amusement and entertainment of boys.

ON TRIAL FOR KILLING CREFFIELD

O. V. Hurt Tells the Revolting Story of Holy Rollers and Their Naked Orgies

By repeating his story of Holy Rollism in the form of a statement that he had made to young Mitchell, prior to the killing, Mr. Hurt was permitted under Judge Frater's ruling, to testify concerning Creffield and Creffield's pernicious teachings.

Mr. Hurt is a man of about 55 years, stockily built, intelligent and kindly of appearance. He spoke in a hesitating manner and had to be frequently prompted to proceed in laying bare his family misfortunes. Several times he had to stop speaking and fight for self-control.

What He Told Mitchell.

After stating in response to a question, that he was the father of Maud Hurt-Creffield, the dead man's widow, he said:

"I met the defendant, Mr. Mitchell, in Portland the last week in March. I told him Creffield was out of prison and described to him the effects of his power over the women folks.

"I told him that Creffield used to get his followers to lie on the floor and roll about praying and shouting. He would keep telling them that God would smite them unless they did as he said. He claimed to be the Savior. I have known Creffield to keep them rolling about on the floor in this manner for from 12 to 24 hours at one time. His power over his followers, who were nearly all women, was something wonderful. They did whatever he said. They were dead to all human sympathy. They left their children, their husbands and their parents' go unheeded for and without a kind thought or word.

Obedyed Him Like Children.

"Creffield would say, for example, as I told young Mitchell, 'Esther Mitchell, you do this, and she would do it. He would tell my wife or daughter to do a thing, and it would be done as he said.

"When they got together for religious services, all would lie on the floor. Creffield would walk about among them and sometimes he would roll about, too. While lying this way they were supposed to receive messages from God. Creffield would keep telling them to pray and shout with all their might or God would smite them.

"These things happened mostly at my home, while I was away, prior to the time Creffield was sent to the penitentiary.

"Esther Mitchell came to me one day and said she had received an inspiration from God that he would smite me unless I made my peace with Him. She warned me not to attempt to go to town that day, as I had been in the habit of doing.

"When I talked the matter over with George Mitchell I told him they were all in a religious frenzy, and that all of them had been driven crazy by Creffield. I told him that my wife, Mrs. O. V. Hurt, my son, Frank, and my daughter, May Hurt, had all been sent to the asylum as a result of their associations with Creffield. I told him that his sister, Esther, had been taken from my home, where she had been staying, to the Boys' and Girls Aid Society at Portland, because of her mental state. I told him that his sister was completely 'off' on account of this religion.

"At one time, as Creffield's power grew, they offered a sacrifice of two dogs and a cat. I heard there had been talk of offering up a little girl as a sacrifice. Creffield made them turn the pictures of their homes to the wall, saying such things partook of vanity and of the world. About this time the sheriff of Lane county came to my home and took Creffield away to be examined as to his sanity. They did not send him to an asylum, and he came back.

Tell of the Naked Orgies.

"It finally came to such a pass that Creffield made the women burn all their clothes as a sacrifice and wear nothing but thin wrappers. These garments even would be dispersed with during the rolling services. My wife and daughter and Mitchell's sisters submitted to these teachings. They refused to sit in chairs. They would not eat in my presence, and those who had children would neglect them. My wife neglected her little girl.

"That man, gentleman of the jury, ruined my life. He ruined my home and my family. I told Mitchell the man ruined his sisters.

"Under Creffield's influence my little daughter gave so she would have nothing to do with me. She would not talk with me or come near me. I had her removed to the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society. After she had been there for a few days she grew tired of it. She sent for me, and said she was ready to come back to my home. When she came home I learned from her lips all that had been going on.

Little Girl Confesses All.

"Out in our yard, as I held her on my knee, she told me the story. She asked me not to be harsh with my wife, her mother, because she had been among the last to bend to Creffield's will. When he gave her a command that I will not repeat, my wife refused to obey, my little girl told me. Then Creffield drove my wife to do his bidding. He told her if she refused he would drive her out of the church, and that God would smite her. Then she submitted."

BIGGER DEMAND FOR BEER

The three days' hot wave has swamped the Salem brewery with bibulous business. Carload orders are rushed out day and night, and the big Gambrinus plant is running to its fullest capacity. The dry counties are producing their expected quota of express and mail order business. Stages are loaded going in all directions. Forbidding the use of booze increases the demand for milder drinks, and beer is the most popular drink in hot times like these. The demand will compel the Salem brewery to increase its capacity.
