WHAT 'THE JUNGLE' HAS DONE

Upton Sinclair, Aged 27, Is the Leading Literary Star of the World.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat has published the following graphic description of Upton Sinclair and his book, 'The Jungle,' which started the packing house investigation:

A new star of the first magnitude has risen into the literary heavens. Upton Sinclair occupies a commanding position. An audience of 80,000,000 people hangs upon his words. No other literary reputation has ever been made so quickly in America and no writer of the present day is his peer in power and influence.

All this is because of the marvelous success of 'The Jungle. Although but 27 years of age, this youth, unaided, 'broke' and working with his pen alone, has done more to destroy 'the greatest trust in the world' than the United States government was able to accomplish. He has cost the beef trust millions. He has destroyed its foreign markets. He has temporarily deprived it of much of its American market. He has made Abnour, Swift and Nelson Morris tremble in their boots.

'The Jungle' has turned the stomachs of the nation. It has reformed the stockyards. It has ameliorated the condition of hundreds of thousands of poor human beings employed in the shambles, and it has probably saved the lives of thousands of others who might have been sent to their graves by diseased meats.

Upton Sinclair did not write 'The Jungle' in order to reform the stockyards. He is not much concerned about the fate of the beef trust. Poisoned meat and 'downers,' and puffed cans and formaldehyde only interest him incidentally. He is a Socialist. In that lies his explanation of his conduct and the menace of his power. He menaces the status quo.

He did not stumble upon the stockyards scandal and write it up in order to expose the beef trust. He was assigned to the work as a professional writer and as a convinced and zealous Socialist, by a Kansas Socialist editor, to whom the beef trust was merely one of the many trusts forming a part of 'the capitalist system.' The 'Jungle' was only the first of these revolting exposures which Upton Sinclair will make. He is animated by the ardor of the convert and the zeal of the proselyte. He combines the persecuting ardor of Cromwell with the literary power of a Zola.

Patent Medicines.

A man that compounds or invents something that is just a little better than the next best thing, is certainly entitled to the best share of the profits to be derived from the sale of the article. So he patents or copyrights to protect his interests. Patented goods are good goods, poor goods are never patented. We have twenty years of trial behind us to give us the assurance that we have the best medicine compounded for the cure of dyspepsia, sick headache, biliousness, indigestion and all stomach disorders. We protect the public as well as ourselves by keeping the formula a secret, as long as we make it we know it is made right and it cures these diseases. Druggists tell us that it is the one medicine that the sale is ever on the increase. To get the best remedy for dyspepsia or indigestion ask the druggists for Dr. Gunn's Improved Liver Pills, price 25c per box; only one for a dose.

His Mood.

A member of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin tells of some amusing replies made by a pupil undergoing an examination in English. The candidate had been instructed to write out examples of the indicative, the subjunctive, the potential and the exclamatory moods. His effort resulted as follows:

'I am endeavoring to pass an English examination. If I answer twenty questions I shall pass. If I answer twelve questions I may pass. God help me!'—Harper's Weekly.

TURNER ITEMS.

Andrew Baker, ora genial confectionery proprietor, has moved to Stayton to engage in the same business there.

Hon. W. H. Hobson of Stayton took the northbound train this evening.

J. F. Fabel of Salem and his mother spent a few days at the home of G. B. Cornelius.

Hallie Thomas came home from Portland to spend this summer. Hallie was re-elected to the same position she had held in the Portland schools.

C. P. Connelius and Dr. Clayton Ransom drove to Salem this afternoon.

Lucile McQuinn came up from Portland today. Lucile graduated with first honors from the Portland High school June 26.

Grandma Day is visiting in Turner.

Our accommodating postmaster, Mr. Frank Robertson, enjoys his new quarters, which gives him more room and he finds his new office much cooler on warm days.

The camp meeting folks have all gone home and Turner is once more quiet. The sermons were rich in thought and productive in good. Rev. Albyn Esson of Silverton presided at its close, and through him many were given an opportunity to express themselves in regard to the benefits derived from the convention. It was a real 'love feast,' and many were inspired and encouraged. Many plans were laid for the future growth of the church and spiritually and financially the convention was a success.

The funeral of the late Ernest Matthias was well attended by his friends. Ernest had not been feeling very well, but his condition was not known by his brother Ed or by his father or mother until his arrival home a few days before he bade them all a last good-bye. Ernest was so thoughtful of his loved ones, that he did not make his condition known to them, and they were not prepared for this blow, which caused such deep sorrow in their home. In the early spring they were called to give up a son, and now to give up Ernest makes their grief very deep. Ernest fell a victim to that deadly eye trouble (conjunctivitis) and that of his late brother with beautiful flowers. The family have the sympathy of this entire community.

Twenty Year Battle.

'I was a loser in a twenty-year battle with chronic piles and malignant sores, until I tried Bucklin's Arnica Salve; which turned the tide, by curing both, till not a trace remains,' writes A. M. Bruce, of Farmville, Va. Best for old Ulcers, Cuts, Burns and Wounds. 25c at J. C. Perry's drug store.

WHEATRAISERS' WOES.

Trying to Get Even With Buyers—Dry Versus Moist Grain.

It may be poor consolation to eastern wheatraisers, who have little troubles of their own, to learn of some of the woes of brother graingrowers on the Pacific slope, says a San Francisco dispatch.

They have long sought to thwart the smartness of grain buyers who seemed to have the art of combining and controlling the market down to a nicety that some men would call a science. While it is very evident that combines have existed among buyers, it is quite another thing to put a finger on the guilty ones.

Years ago the farmers of Sacramento valley, in California, gave up trying to break up the combines by resort to the law. But they make an arrangement that at first they were sure would work out a solution of the difficulty. They organized farmers' warehouse companies and put up storage buildings at the railroad stations to hold their wheat until they could dispose of it at the top of the market. Here they were again thwarted.

The season of harvest is followed by several months of excessive dryness, and the grain in storage dries and shrinks with the advance of the season. Then the shrewd buyers come and buy the wheat, usually paying a satisfactory price. But the grain is sold by weight, and what they purchase is practically devoid of all moisture. It is shipped to San Francisco and there held in storage close to the waters of the bay until by absorption of the moisture it has recovered its original weight. Then it is sold at a good profit and goes to the mill or abroad as the condition of the market may dictate.

The farmers of the state of Washington are at the present time wrestling with an alleged combine of grain buyers, but the attorney general of the state says there is no way of reaching these in this combine except through the federal statute. The state laws are ineffective.

If the wage never strike for eight hours a whole lot of them will go to working overtime without pay.
