SOME UNPOPULAR TYPES OF WOMEN

(By Helen Oldfield.)

There are many sayings accepted as truth and gospel which, in fact, are half truths only. And of these it is that which affirms of men that they do not like clever women, but, as a rule, prefer fools. It depends. If the clever woman is aggressive as to manner, and plain as to looks, while the fool is pretty and appealing, 999 men out of 1000 will give wisdom a wide berth and embrace folly, if they have the chance! Men, like women, are prone to judge by appearances, to think more of the exterior of the casket than the contents thereof.

In point of fact, the women who best succeed with men are those who are clever enough to conceal their cleverness, yet who are never silly enough to become bores, or lack sympathy. He or perhaps she, was both wise and witty who said: "A man likes his wife to be just clever enough to comprehend his cleverness and just stupid enough to admire it."

The day has gone by when the first duty of woman was to "stick to her thimble." The second to echo all her husband's opinions and to have none of her own. Men are growing more and more exacting in the demands they make upon women to be interesting and entertaining. They like to be amused and the woman who fails to amuse them is apt to be regarded as a bore.

"There is a good deal, madam, in modern improvements," is what the artist, Whistler, once said to a great lady, who confided to him her intention to train her daughter to possess just the same accomplishments as she herself did. There is. Men are not half so simple as they used to be, and demand the latest improvements in all things before they find them satisfactory.

A pyrotechnical display of twenty years ago would be regarded as a poor thing now-a-days. Not long since a writer in the London Times stated that "men who used to hold the house of commons tremulous with eagerness to catch each word that fell from their lips, have lived to find their rising the signal for a general enuete." History tells us that the elocution of the great Methodist preacher, Whitfield, was so wonderful that he could melt an audience to tears by his pronunciation of the word Mesopotamia. It may be taken for granted that he would have to say the word many times to any congregation of the present day before he achieved such a result; and the tears, if they came, would mean something more than a mere tribute to eloquence. "Mesopotamia" will not conjure with the present generation; and the young women of the twentieth century who possess intellectual attraction which might have sufficed to make her charming fifty years ago will meet with much disappointment. The girl of the period must increase her stock of attractions just as she requires that her dressmaker shall keep step with the times.

It was Lord Beaconsfield who once remarked to a high and mighty court lady that it was a "hard task to be compelled to pass an hour in the company of a lady whose knowledge of current events ceased at the marriage of Queen Victoria" (something more than twenty years previous). There are other women of the same mental furnishing; women who are not clear Two—Men do not like foolish women who do not know the name of the speaker of the house of representatives nor that of the republican leader of the senate.

Most men will agree with Mrs. Malaprop that it is not at all necessary that in order to be entertaining, a girl shall be a "progeny of learning." It is not usual for young men to present a dictionary to young women whom they admire. And if one did, it is doubtful whether the token of esteem would be acceptable. But it is a fact that many men groan over the fact that girls whom they admire otherwise, betray an ignorance of passing events astonishing in intelligent human beings who live in an era of telegraphs and daily newspapers.

The modern man not only asks that his wife shall be a good housekeeper, as his father and grandfather did, but he demands also that she be companionable. When a man who takes a lively interest in the world's work finds his wife's conversation restricted chiefly to the shortcomings of servants and the petty gossip of the neighborhood, it is scarcely to be wondered at that he spends most of his evenings at the club. One man who seldom appears at that refuge of the bored was asked where he spent his evenings. He replied that he usually spent them at home.

"Don't you find it deadly dull?" "Not at all," he answered, "You see before I married I contemplated the possibility of spending my evenings at home with my wife, and chose her accordingly."

That man was as wise as his wife. There are thousands of women who are charming companions, thousands of young girls intellectually equipped to afford any save the pedantic fool excellent and inspiring comradeship. Nevertheless the number of ignorants is large.

It would be well if the number of women who are asking how to please men would but take a small part of the pains which society leaders lavish in becoming familiar with the affairs of the world.

One bright woman makes a respectable income by visiting society women for an hour each morning to coach them upon the topics of the day, especially upon subjects which they may be required to talk about while filling their social engagements. If they expect to meet artistic people she informs them concerning matters artistic, if literary lights are the order of the day, she crams them accordingly. "A woman dresses suitably to the function she attends," said she, "why should she not embellish her mind with mental graces suited to the company she will meet?"

The society woman recognizes the claim which society makes upon her for amusement, and exerts herself to supply it from one source or another. Why should not the girl who is desirous to shine in her own little corner, who wishes to be entertaining, proceed upon the same plan? She has but to devote one half an hour daily to any good newspaper in order to keep in touch with current events, so that she will be able at least to listen intelligently to the man who wishes to talk to her. She need not trouble herself to form opinions, the average man will be pleased if she allows him to direct her therein; but she will prepare herself to be receptive and responsive, which is all that is needed.

Patent Medicines.

A man that compounds or invents something that is just a little better than the next best thing, is certainly entitled to the best share of the profits to be derived from the sale of the article. So he patents or copyrights to protect his interests. Patented goods are good goods, poor goods are never patented. We have twenty years of trial behind us to give us the assurance that we have the best medicine compounded for the cure of dyspepsia, sick headache, biliousness, indigestion and all stomach disorders. We protect the public as well as ourselves by keeping the formula a secret, as long as we make it we know it is made right and it cures these diseases. Druggists tell us that it is the one medicine that the sale is ever on the increase. To get the best remedy for dyspepsia or indigestion ask the druggists for Dr. Gunn's Improved Liver Pills, price 25c per box; only one for a dose.

To Drain Inland Sea.

Denver, Colo., July 7.—Prof. L. C. Hill, chief of the government reclamation service in Arizona, states that the Southern Pacific railroad will soon begin the task of draining the great inland sea that is now forming in the Yuma basin in Arizona. The undertaking is without parallel in the history of railroading in this or any other country.

The Colorado has broken through its banks in Arizona. The course of the river has been diverted by this break and the whole volume of water, practically, is pouring through the break and settling in the Yuma basin. It has already washed out two miles of the Southern Pacific tracks, besides doing other damage. An area of 330 square miles in extent is covered with water. Brass mattresses will be floated to the gap in the river bank, fastened with piles and weighted with rock. When these dams are built up high enough the water of the river will be turned back into its natural channel.

Twenty Year Battle.

"I was a loser in a twenty-year battle with chronic piles and malignant sores, until I tried Bucklin's Arnica Salve; which turned the tide, by curing both, till not a trace remains," writes A. M. Bruce, of Farmville, Va. Best for old Ulcers, Cuts, Burns and Wounds. 25c at J. C. Perwy's drug store.

Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of The Kind You Have Always Bought In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Study opened here today with a large attendance. The opening reception will be held this afternoon at the parish house of St. John's Episcopal church, and it will be followed by the opening service in the college assembly hall. The conference will last until July 22.

Addresses and sermons will be delivered by prominent members of the clergy and distinguished laymen, including the Rev. D. Randolph H. McKim, president of the house of deputies of the general convention; Bishop A. B. Vinton, of the diocese of Western Massachusetts; Bishop Hall, of Vermont; Bishop Sessums, of Louisiana; Bishop Burgess, of Long Island; Bishop Darlington, of Harrisburg, Pa.; Bishop Knight, of Cuba; the Rev. Dr. William H. Van Allen, of the Church of the Advent, Boston; and the Rev. George R. Van de Water, of St. Andrew's church, New York.

The honorary chairmen are Bishop Vinton and Bishop Darlington. The faculty of the school of missions will comprise the Rev. Dr. Samuel Hart, secretary of the house of bishops; the Rev. Everett P. Smith, educational secretary of the board of missions; the Rev. William Walter Smith, secretary of the Sunday School Federation; the Rev. John T. Kerrin, of St. Luke's church, Jamestown; Samuel R. Colladay, of the Berkeley Divinity School; Miss C. V. R. Delafield, of New York; Miss Edith C. Pelton, of New York, and Miss Lucy C. Sturgis, of Boston.

A Pleasant Way to Travel. The above is the usual verdict of the traveler using the Missouri Pacific railway between the Pacific coast and the east, and we believe that the service and accommodations given merit this statement. From Denver, Colorado Springs and Denver there are two through trains daily to Kansas City and St. Louis, carrying Pullman's latest standard electric-lighted sleeping cars, chair cars and up-to-date dining cars. The same excellent service is operated from Kansas City and St. Louis to Memphis, Little Rock and Hot Springs. If you are going east or south, write for particulars and full information. W. C. M'BRIDE, Gen. Agt., 124 Third St., Portland, Ore.
