HEARST ATTACKS DEMOCRATS

Presumably for the Purpose of Climbing Over Them to the Presidency

(Washington Star.) Democratic politicians in congress are intensely stirred over the tactics of Mr. William H. Hearst in pursuing his campaign for his own political aggrandizement. Very bitter feeling has been aroused, and factional spirit runs high. Mr. Hearst's supporters are as earnest in defending him as the opposition faction is in making charges. A fine old row is in progress, and will probably be ventilated in debate before long.

THEY KNOW NO BOSS

Night Watchmen Run a Six-Day-go-as-you-Please and Report, Where?

"The 'eathen in 'is blindness bows down to wood and stone; 'E don't obey no orders, Unless they is 'is own." Night Policemen Longcor and Busiek have evidently been taking lessons from Rudyard Kiplag's "Eathen," for if they have asked instructions from any one or sought advice from any source, since their election to their present jobs by the city council in January, their political bosses and mentors have been the parties consulted.

Neither of these two blue-coated guardians of the city's peace and dignity have ever made a report, either written or verbal, to the city marshal or to the recorder. Neither have they put in an appearance in the recorder's court since their election, except one time, and then they were sent for by Recorder Moore. Once, however, regularly each month they appear before the city recorder, and that momentous occasion is the time they draw their monthly stipend, Recorder Moore never has had to send for them on the occasion of these monthly visits.

It is generally conceded that the discord in the police force is a lamentable and regrettable fact. This is especially true on account of the small force the chief has to depend upon for aid in preserving peace and order. Under the present conditions, Chief Cornelius might as well be acting alone, for neither of his assistants have ever made a report to him or asked him for instructions. Neither do they report to the city recorder's court.

A case occurred on the Fourth of July. Late at night Policeman Longcor arrested a man and looked him up with a charge on the book against him of "drunk and indecent." Longcor never came to the man's trial, neither did he leave any message or written report as to what the prisoner had done. The prisoner, whose name was Sorenson, was in a bad condition. Two of his teeth were knocked out, and he was badly beaten up in other ways. Sorenson said he was not drunk, but that he had been attacked and beaten by a saloon man in the city without provocation. Recorder Moore was compelled to dismiss the rather ambiguous charge against him, because Longcor failed and refused to come around and testify. Chief Cornelius could get no facts about the case, because Longcor is a law unto himself.

The story of the appointment of these night policemen is well known to those on the inside of affairs. Chief Cornelius was indiscreet enough to look with disfavor on the senatorial aspirations of a Marion county politician, who desired to organize the Salem fire and police departments into a political machine for his own political glory. Failing in this, it seems that he obtained a sufficient number of councilmen to act with him to have these political appointments made, not to assist the town marshal in his duties, but to harass the officer in every possible manner.

The night men evidently take instructions from men who are more or less mixed up in politics, and they also seem to owe some allegiance to the Salem Statesman, which is their chief apologist. It is considered likely that Chief Cornelius will make a full report of the actions and conduct of his assistants to the mayor and city council. Nothing will probably be accomplished by this, except that during the silly season of dog days the chief will have what little amusement he can get out of placing the lawmakers of Salem on record. Possibly Policemen Longcor and Busiek may be induced to tell the name of the gentlemen to whom they look for orders. They ought probably not to bear the blame, as they are Democratic policemen, elected by Republican aidmen, and, with the latter, are playing the hand of their political bosses to a finish.

They Know.

(Youth's Companion.) She was a particularly fervent specimen of kindergarten teacher, and counted as a privilege her opportunity to do a little summer work in the slums. Her first lesson, she resolved, should combine the love of our dumb friends with a suggestion for the true observation of things. She began with an engaging but earnest smile. "Now, children, I want you to tell me what kind of clothes the kitty wears!" Dead silence. "Why, children, don't you know what kind of clothes the kitty wears?" The enthusiastic young woman had not anticipated such unresponsiveness, but nothing daunted by the blank faces before her, she went back to the beginning and tried the gentle art of instilling the right answer into the minds of her pupils by the method of elimination. "Well my dears, does the kitty wear feathers?" she asked. Then a small boy in the front row leaned forward and inquired earnestly, but with a touch of contempt in his voice: "Say, teacher, ain't you never seen a cat?"

Entertaining Sister's Bean.

While the swain was waiting in the parlor for his memorata, that lady's younger sister ventured into the room to entertain the caller. "Sister 'll be down soon, Mr. Swilling," she said. "Say, can you tell me when a door is not a door?" The young man looked surprised at the ancient conundrum. "That's a chestnut," he said. "A door is not a door when it is a jar or a jam." "That's right," said the young sister, gleefully. "Now here's another: What makes more noise than a pig under?" "Little girl," interrupted the young man somewhat testily, "Why are you asking me to guess those old gags?" "Why, to entertain you till sister comes in. Isn't that the way Belle talks to you when she's here?" "What makes you think so?" asked the young man. "She told me that you had proposed several times, but that she was going to keep you guessing every time you called."—New York Herald.

MILITIA SHOOT CLOSES

"It has been the finest tournament in the history of the Oregon National Guard," so say the officers in charge of the state rifle tournament at "Camp Willamette," which broke up yesterday. As nearly as possible the meet was conducted after the style of the big national shoot at Sea Girt, New Jersey. The fifteen men who received medals yesterday, with others to be selected, will compose a squad of 24 who will be given a week's tryout on the range for the purpose of selecting the team that will represent Oregon in the national shoot at Sea Girt. While the camp has disbanded, several of the officers will remain to enjoy the pleasures of camp life. Sunday Battery A, light artillery, will arrive in Salem, and will pitch camp on the range grounds. The manoeuvres will undoubtedly draw a large crowd of visitors.

At all times while the contest was on the camp was in perfect order, and the soldier boys enjoyed the three-days' session heartily. Charles Ruge, who owns the grounds upon which the range is located, speaks well of the members of the militia, and was not at all annoyed by pranks or other incidents. The range, too, proved all that has been expected of it, and is one of the finest in the Northwest. The medals were awarded as follows: A. A. Schwartz, of Portland, gold medal for the highest score in the individual match, with the aggregate score of 269, and also a silver medal for the highest score in the skirmish fire, with 84 to his credit. G. G. Haucks, of Eugene, silver medal as second in the skirmish fire with 78; A. J. Royle, of Portland, silver medal on aggregate score, and also his highest aggregate in the slow firing. Bronze medals to Ralph L. White, of Salem; B. Beard, of Portland; H. C. Maxwell, of Eugene; V. S. Howard, of Portland, and A. W. Bennett of Woodburn. B. F. Shields of Roseburg, state gold medal, and a silver medal for the highest score, 48 in the rapid fire.

STOMACH PAINS AND SPLITTING HEADACHES DAY AND NIGHT

Nothing Helped Her Until Patient Tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

They Brought Relief and Cure Where Ordinary Medicines Seemed Only to Make Her Worse.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a remedy which has been before the American people for a generation, is still accomplishing wonderful results as evidenced by the following interview with Mrs. Rachael Gardner, of Wilkes, Kansas: "It was very strange," she says, "I never could tell what caused it, and neither could anybody else. For a long time I had bad spells with my stomach. The pain would commence about my heart and was so deadly agonizing that I would have to retreat alone. Sometimes it would last several hours and I would have to take laudanum to stop it. Besides this I had a headache almost constantly, day and night, that nearly crazed me, as you see I suffered a great deal. And when I think of the agony I endured it still makes me shudder. "Doctors," did you say, "The medicine made me sicker. I couldn't take it and I kept growing worse until a friend advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I did. I began to feel better and was soon wholly converted to this wonderful medicine. It did me more good than I had ever hoped for. I kept on with the pills and now I recommend them to all who suffer."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured severe cases of indigestion, bloodlessness, influenza, headaches, backache, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, nervousness and spinal weakness. The genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are guaranteed to be free from opiates or any harmful drugs and cannot injure the most delicate system. ### Not a Variety of Poultry.

The famous shanghaiing case of Smith, the Portland sailor boarding house keeper, is up for consideration of the supreme court. It will be remembered that when Smith was convicted of abduction in the district court of Multnomah county, it was generally believed that the disreputable shanghaiing days were over, and the unsavory matter had passed into history. Smith took an appeal to the supreme court, and the case was argued yesterday afternoon by Judge Marshall Pipes, attorney for the appellant.
