

IN SOCIETY

The Recordings of the Social Set, for the Past Week

Despite the unusual summer heat, the social set has been out in large numbers this week, attending the many parties. Lawn parties are the order of the day, and those given this week have been delightful events. This has been a week of picnics, every day, and some family or Sunday school parties. One of the pleasantest being a river excursion of the Baptist Sunday school down the Willamette. In the afternoon a larger portion of the social set will be transferred to the summer resorts, and the town will be quiet. Already reports are coming from Newport of the many pleasant parties which are going on daily.

Pleasant Reception.

Prominent among the week's social events was the reception given by Mrs. Chas. Bishop and Miss Bertha Kay Wednesday afternoon. The calling hours extended between 2 and 5 o'clock, and over two hundred and fifty ladies called during that time.

The decorations throughout the house were strikingly beautiful. The walls were in gold and green, poppies and carnations being used. The front parlors were in pink and green, baskets of fresh sweet peas and carnations were placed abundantly, and beautiful plants were added to the scheme. Ivy was festooned the doors. The dining room was in white and green, and the sweet being the decorations. The punch room was especially pretty. The brilliant with baskets of bright poppies. Misses Ruth Gabrielson and Helen Pearce presided at the punch bowl.

The hostesses were assisted in receiving by their sister, Mrs. Carl T. Roberts, of Hood River. Little Misses Ruth and Lucille Staley attended the party.

Pleasant Lawn Party.

Mrs. F. E. Slater was hostess at a delightfully arranged lawn or garden party Tuesday afternoon, which was held in the beautiful oak grove adjoining their residence on North Capitol street. Out under these beautiful trees over one hundred ladies gowned in white shirtwaist suits made a beautiful picture. The grove was decorated with Japanese lanterns.

Complimentary to the occasion, Mrs. Slater and Mrs. E. A. Lee of Portland, who have been visiting Mrs. Slater the past week.

The marriage of Miss Nellie Ringo to Mr. Peter Graber, which took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ringo, on North Liberty street, Wednesday, June 11, 1906, at 8:30 o'clock, was a happy event. Mr. Cliffe performed the ceremony in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

The house decorations were beautiful. The front parlor, where the ceremony was held, was in green and white, with sweet peas and asparagus fern, giving out a pretty scheme. The dining room was in green and white, and the asparagus fern being the main adornment. The hall was festooned with garlands of the same kind.

Promptly at the appointed hour, Miss Nina Bushnell played the Bridal March from Lohengrin, which was followed by Misses Ida Stege and Elma Stege, Chas. Roth and Mr. Anderson. The bride stood under a lovely canopy of white tulle in the bay window, which was decorated with a profusion of flowers. The bride wore a dress of white silk mull and carried a large bouquet of white roses. She was attended

They were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents.

The young couple are spending a few days at Newport, after which they will return to this city and leave on a camping trip in the mountains. BOYS DID GOOD WORK.

Fire Department Handicapped by the Pressure Being Off the Mains.

At the time of the fire Thursday evening, when two barns were destroyed, the effective work done by a large number of young men and boys in the vicinity won the admiration of all who saw it. The fire occurred at a time when most of the employees of the Salem woolen mills were at supper, and when the blaze was first discovered they immediately came to the rescue, formed a bucket brigade, and, although water was scarce, managed to keep the second stable from igniting until the fire company got on the scene, and the announcement was made that the water was on.

However, the fire department had the misfortune to hitch to a hydrant that would barely fill the hose, owing to the fact that it is on a small main, and for the further reason that it was during the irrigation hours, and the pressure was greatly reduced as a result, too many people using water for their lawns at the time. Later the engine arrived and water was pumped from the race a block nearer the fire, but it was too late to get results. This experience should emphasize the importance of the new ordinance prohibiting irrigation during a fire, and it should also prevent the placing of hydrants on small mains in the future.

Under the existing conditions safety depends upon the judgment and knowledge of the fire chief, who should be familiar with the conditions of hydrants and also able to estimate the effect of irrigation upon the pressure at the time of a fire. When that officer properly sizes up these conditions no mistake can be made. In the case under consideration there probably little or no time lost by hitching to the weak hydrant, as it was only done in the absence of the engine. Changing from the hydrant to the engine may have caused a slight delay, but no doubt the fire department did its best under the circumstances.

VALLEY RAILROAD BUILDING

SALEM MEN SANGUINE
OVER SEVERAL PRO-POSITIONS

One Capitalist Argues for Electric Line From Salem
to Mill City

The Willamette valley is on the eve of the greatest expansion movement that has ever manifested itself in Oregon. The railroad fever is being rapidly followed by construction, and there are more enterprises being launched than ever before. There are two companies racing to see which will build from Portland to Salem first, and one of them will begin construction at each end of the line. Tilmon Ford returned from a week spent in Portland recently, and he has caught the expansion movement and has a feeling that there will be more things doing and done in Western Oregon in the next ten years than in the past twenty. The condition of things on the Southern Pacific is an indication of the tendency. That company could use a double track from Roseburg to Portland today and has not half engines to handle its freight.

Tilmon Ford is very sanguine that the electric line now being built from Portland up the valley will reach at least half way this year, and he says the United Railways will build to Willamette river, where they cross the Willamette river. He says they have paid $40,000 for right of way on one of the streets in Portland, and seem to have plenty of money to operate with.

Line to Mill City.
Wm. R. Anderson, a retired business man, and something of a capitalist, says the one road for Salem people to pull for is an electric line to Mill City. The Santiam country is naturally tributary to Salem. It is all the way down grade, and reaching all the towns between here and there and passing through a rich country, it would pay from the day it was open.

He has had such a line in mind for many years, and says if he were younger he would build it himself. He says Salem is not interested so much in a line to Silverton, or to Dallas as it is to the Santiam country for the reason that it is all down grade from Mill City, and all kinds of fuel, poles, cordwood, and building material for roads and streets could be run down at almost nothing. There is plenty of water power up there all along the line, and he believes the people would be willing to help build it, and give right of way if the proper kind of men who were not merely speculators and hot air artists took hold of it. He says it is a line that would bring more business to Salem, and that the people up that way for forty miles have wanted an outlet to the capital city for many years. Now to get to that country one has to go to Albany and stay all night, or else drive twenty-five miles to catch the train. For scenery, mountain air, fine water, fishing and hunting the Santiam country is a perpetual summer resort. Anderson says he would help build a line up the Santiam, but would not give a cent to any other proposition.

Goes Back to Washington.

Engineer Loder, of the United States government service, who has been in Salem for some time, superintending the building of a mile of experimental paved road between this city and Silverton, beginning at the state fair grounds, will leave today for Washington. The work has not been completed, and will not be until a quantity of crushed rock can be obtained. Under Mr. Loder's direction, the mile of road has been graded, and everything is in readiness for the coating of crushed rock. The bunkers for the rock are completed on the fair grounds, and all the machinery and tools are on the spot awaiting the material.

As Good as a McCormick

Is a comparison often made. There is always a standard in every class of machinery or other product of man's brain and ingenuity, and the McCormick has always been and always will be the standard.

SOME MORE COMPARISONS

Yesterday we compared the main wheel, the reel, the elevators and several other features with other machines. Here are a few more comparisons for the intending purchaser:

COMPARE

The main gear and their perfect method of securing and maintaining alignment, with cheaper methods that mean trouble and short life for the machine.

COMPARE

The bundle carrier on the McCormick with any machine made. This folds back when it strikes an obstruction, and is heavy enough to carry an immense load without straining, and never burdens the driver, who simply moves his foot to trip it.

COMPARE

The extra long bearing on the McCormick crank shaft with those on other machines.

COMPARE

The raising and lowering device which places the McCormick in advance of any other machine.

COMPARE

The strength and weight of every part, which means that 75 years of experience have shown the McCormick people what to build and how to build it.

Boston, July 14.—The Herald tomorrow will say that Mrs. Leslie Carter the actress, was married to William Payne at Portsmouth, N. H., today. The ceremony was performed, it is said, by Rev. Dr. Emerson Hovey, an Episcopal clergyman, at his home in that city.

Mrs. Carter, Mr. Payne and a party of friends arrived in Portsmouth in automobiles from Boston. The license is said to have been issued in Mrs. Carter's maiden name. The party returned to Boston late in the afternoon.

Mrs. Carter tonight denied that she and Mr. Payne had been married.

Boston, July 14.—The Carter party slipped away and started for New York in automobiles this morning, except Payne, who remained and denied absolutely the marriage. He was shown a license copy and evidence that he had been married a few hours before to Mrs. Leslie Carter. He refused to talk and walked away.
