

PUT OIL ON SALEM STREETS

Block on Court Street Being Sprinkled With Crude Petroleum

Sprinkling the Salem streets with oil has actually begun.

Portions of Court street and Liberty streets, in front of the property of Dr. J. H. Brewer was treated to a coating of crude petroleum this morning.

So far, the indications are that it is a success.

The work attracted a great deal of interest and hundreds of citizens passed around that way to watch the men lay the dust and grease the road.

The experiment may solve the problem of Salem's dusty streets, and the success of this morning's effort will lead other property owners to adopt the same methods.

The movement for oiling the streets of the city was given its initial trial this morning. Judge Scott has been interested in the movement for some time, and today he was seconded in his efforts by Dr. Brewer, who sprinkled in front of his property on Court and Liberty streets.

The oil was spread by means of the water sprinkler, and did not spread as it will when a regular sprinkler is constructed for the experiment to be conducted around the court house property tomorrow. The oil was forced directly onto the street by the sprinkler, and then the road was raked so as to spread the oil in better shape. The experiment was made on an area of 30x24 feet on one street 60x30 feet on the other.

Dr. Brewer is of the opinion that the oiling of the streets of the city is the only method to eliminate the dust question. Oiling will prove cheaper in the long run than water sprinkling.

Manager Park, of the Salem Water Company, said: "I am glad that the experiment is being made here. It is a well-nigh impossible task to keep the dust down by sprinkling with water. I believe that oil sprinkling will prove a success in this city."

The cost of the oil delivered here will be about 86 cents per barrel, and on the experiment this morning something like a barrel and half was used, but it was not spread as well as it will be when the sprinkler is properly constructed.

Dr. Brewer has estimated that it would cost about $9 to thoroughly sprinkle the distance of one block, and that an application of three barrels of oil would do the work on the streets adjoining his property. Judge Scott, too, is optimistic over the movement, and is pleased at the interest manifested.

Better Than Water.

Oil is said to be much better than water to lay the dust. Oil will last longer, and it is believed to be cheaper as a dust exterminator. There is a prejudice against using water in this city, for fear the supply for fire fighting will run low, and hence in summer not many of the streets will be sprinkled, unless it is without expense to the property owners. There is a plan to bond the city for oiling all the streets and cutting all the hay on the streets. The use of oil is a great step of progress, and is hailed by crowds of people with great delight.

Sprinkle Streets With Oil.

Marion county will probably try the experiment of sprinkling the streets of Salem with crude petroleum.

The county court will expend the necessary amount to sprinkle the streets around the court house, if a man with a suitable rig can be secured to do the work at a reasonable price.

The county is already paying $19.50 per month for the sprinkling of this block with water, and the court is willing to make the change, and try oil for awhile.

If the trial work is done, and proves to be satisfactory, the arrangement will be made permanent.

The Salem department of the General Electric Company is receiving oil in tank cars, and has agreed to furnish the crude oil used by the county at cost. This will make the cost of the oil very small, and it is generally believed that the experiment will prove a success.

Push Oiled Streets.

Oiled streets is just the thing Salem needs to keep down the dust. It does not cost much, and when once done stays a long time. It is odorless after a few days, and much cleaner than the refuse and mud that comes with flying, nasty dust. It packs the dust against the time the rain comes, and the oil causes the water to run off more easily. In California it is put on hot, and forms a coating like asphaltum. The experience of Gervais and Hubbard are near at hand, and it would pay the Salem city council to take a trip down and see its effect, and neither of these places have covered the ground scientifically, as Salem should.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Capitols Spread Themselves.

The Capitols were victorious in the most exciting game yet played under the auspices of the Capital City Amateur League. Yesterday afternoon's performance raised the baseball stock of the bunch from the state house as no other previous contest ever did. Six to three was the score that gave the Capitols the decisive victory in yesterday's pretty matinee. There were no spectacular plays by either of the teams, but somehow every player was in the game to win, and the contest was decidedly interesting. The Capitols, however, were strengthened by the addition of two of the Woolen Mills best players, Emil Donaldson and Wm. Sheridan. In the fourth inning the Capitols ran in four runs that gave them the victory.

Zwicker caught for the Bookkeepers and Nace pitched. The Capitols' battery consisted of Perkins as catcher and Southwick as pitcher.

The standing of the clubs is as follows:

PRICELESS COLLECTION.

The Enlarged Menageries of the Forepaugh-Sells Circus Without an Equal.

The Great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' Enormous Shows United, and stupendous fire show "Fighting the Flames" which are to exhibit here Wednesday, August 22, illustrate the highest development of two of the greatest amusement enterprises known to circus history, and the ownership of the most successful circus managers in the world today, have produced this result.

Twelve acres of space are necessary for the numerous tents, and the canvas under which the circus program proper takes place, will comfortably accommodate twelve thousand people.

In this huge area, besides the great stretches of rising seats for the multitude, are a forest of aerial "fixings" for the daring work of trapeze performers, two great stages for the variety of gymnastics and vaudeville sensations imported from European capitals; three rings for the nerve-quickening specialties of circus riding, and a quarter of a mile racing track for the hippodrome features of ancient glory.

The menagerie annex offers the most complete and valuable wild animal collection ever offered for public inspection. It is a veritable library on natural history, affording a wonderful opportunity for inspecting at close range the rarest of wild animal nature.

Huge dens, tanks, pens and cages are grouped in classes for convenience and helpful study of the individual and general characteristics of this priceless collection.

The End of the World

A Pleasant Way to Travel.

The above is the usual verdict of the traveler using the Missouri Pacific railway between the Pacific coast and the East, and we believe that the service and accommodations given merit this statement. From Denver, Colorado Springs and Denver there are two through trains daily to Kansas City and St. Louis, carrying Pullman's latest standard electric-lighted sleeping cars, chair cars and up-to-date dining cars. The same excellent service is operated from Kansas City and St. Louis to Memphis, Little Rock and Hot Springs. If you are going East or South, write for particulars and full information.

Birdsell Clover Hullers

This is a record year in the sale of clover hullers in this territory, and to the enormous increase in the acreage of clover, and to the rapid yield.

There is still a fine unoccupied territory east of Salem, and some enterprising man who has an engine already can by making a comparatively small additional investment, get mighty big returns, and this after his first threshing is over with.

THE BIRDSSELL HULLER

The RASP HULLING cylinder and concaves which rub the clover and tear it into shreds, thus releasing all the seed, while other hullers endeavor to extract the seed by beating in a spike cylinder. The Birdsell is the only one that really gets all the seed, and when the huller once gets a Birdsell to hull for him he has no use for any other huller, for they cost too much in lost seed. Call and investigate. We make immediate delivery on the No. 1 Birdsell hullers.
