WHOLE EMPIRE IN A TURMOIL

Situation in Russia Grows More Alarming as the Hours Pass By---Much Bloodshed Everywhere

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—In a clash this morning at the Setrosch railway station, between the police and the strikers, eight policemen were killed.

The strikers are armed with quick firing guns, and are patrolling the street.

A mutiny at Nini occurred today. The mutineers demanded the release of two prisoners and threatened to kill the officers. The trouble was averted for a time by the release of the prisoners.

As today is a holiday, it is difficult to ascertain how far into the empire the strike extends.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—The general strike seemed to be growing at a rapid pace. A large number of employees of the factories have joined the forces of the strikers. Several skirmishes have taken place between the troops and police on one side, and the strikers on the other, but very few were killed or seriously wounded. Many, however, were hurt.

Libau, Aug. 4.—In the holdup this morning eight railroad men were injured while defending the train. Constable General VonRupnesky, of Braunsberg, and a German named Grunmann were also hurt.

Moscow, Aug. 4.—A bomb exploded at a Kasan railway station today and killed two men.

At Warsaw this morning a plan to liberate all the political prisoners was betrayed to the authorities, and was frustrated. Many arrests followed.

A train was held up near Libau and $40,000 in government money was taken.

Donets, Aug. 4.—This morning 6000 strikers obilized in front of the palace of the governor-general and demanded the release of the prisoners. The demand was refused and the dragoons charged on the mob and injured several hundred.

Warsaw, Aug. 4.—Thirty workmen were killed and many injured by the explosion of a bomb at the Rjassan railway terminus. The bomb was in the possession of the workmen. It was intended for the soldiers. The troops dominate the town and field guns are being rushed in. Seventeen army corps are disposed about the city, as though an active campaign was in progress.

The Attempt Failed

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—The attempt to organize a railroad strike in this city has failed, and the city is quiet at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. One hundred and seventy of the mutineers have been placed on trial, charged with the recent outbreak in this city.

Failed in Helsingfors.
Helsingfors, Aug. 4.—The general strike in this city came to an end this morning, and so far has been a complete failure. The commander of the red guards has resigned on account of the criticism that his policy has been subjected to. His successor has very little influence.

California Woman May Yet Obtain New Trial

(Four O'clock Edition.)

Stockton, Cal., Aug. 4.—The sentencing of Mrs. LeDoux was again continued this morning until Tuesday, to give the defense more time to get affidavits. This morning the defense presented a score of affidavits of prominent citizens, stating that the reputation of Charles Murphy for telling the truth is good.

Murphy was a witness for the defense, and he swore that he discussed the LeDoux case with a juror during the trial, and that the juror said the woman would hang. Witnesses for the prosecution made affidavits that Murphy is untruthful.

POOR HAVE RIGHTS.

Millionaires Want to Fence Up the Sea.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 4.—The residents of Oyster Bay have instituted a war against the millionaire resorters who have built fences clear down to the water edge, to prevent people from passing along the shore. The courts have decided that the residents are right. The right goes back to the royal mandate of King George III., of England, who decided that the people of Oyster Bay and their heirs forever shall enjoy shore rights. The fences have been torn down, and an order has been obtained from court restraining the rich men from rebuilding them.

(Four O'clock Edition.)

Albany, Or., Aug. 4.—Again the view of the mountain ranges is obstructed by a blanket of smoke. The fire up the North Santiam river, in the Cascade forest reserve, is about burned out.

Interesting Reminders of Other Centuries Found on the Jamestown Exposition Grounds.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 4.—Many strange Indian relics of bygone days, which have been unearthed on the grounds of the Jamestown exposition, near Norfolk, Virginia, tell interesting tales of customs in vogue among the Indians of three centuries ago, and some of the old records handed down from the first settlers, add zest to Indian traditions and Indian habits and customs.

It is now known that the Indians who once occupied the present site of the Jamestown exposition, to be held in 1907, carefully embalmed their kings and chieftains, much as the Egyptians did. The work was done scientifically, and the bodies thus embalmed were preserved in an excellent condition for centuries being dried so skillfully as to look like the mummies of ancient Egypt. It is expected that some of these mummified kings of the early Virginia tribes will be placed on exhibition at the exposition, together with many other relics which have been dug up and added to the collection of Indian curios.

Another interesting exhibit at the exposition will be a display of tobacco, of which these old Virginia tribes were so fond. It is said that when tobacco was the medium of exchange in the ancient colony of Virginia it was a common thing for an Indian to trade off his wife for a few twists of tobacco. Pretty young squaws were worth more than ugly ones; hence there was no regular market price for Indian wives.

The prominence which attaches to tobacco in the early settlement of Virginia determined the Virginia state commissioners to have as part of the Virginia exhibit at the Jamestown exposition the finest tobacco exhibit ever arranged for an exposition. A tobacco palace, artistically decorated with tobacco tapestry, pictures, curtains and ornaments of every description, will constitute one of the unique features of the exposition.
