

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER

New York, Aug. 4.—The woman wishes always to be dressed in the best of taste and to be up to date in every way gives a good deal of thought to all those little things that go to make up the ensemble of the dress; the belts, the gloves, the parasols, the handkerchiefs, and the lingerie.

One of the newest things for the season of the summer parasol is a pane embroidered with a monogram in white floss to match the embroidery on the linen dress. A pretty example of this sort was seen in the form of cornflowers in the midst of which was the monogram; but it is well to have the flowers of a color used in the dress or other accessories. There is no end to the work that has been lavished on the handles of these elaborate parasols; one was a beautifully carved piece of ivory, another was topped with a bird's head having jeweled feathers carved out on the handle and afterwards enamelled in the true colors. The girl with a head has not been forgotten for it is the golf stick handle and others of a like nature. The parasols are simply things of beauty and of sorts of artistic work is used in them. As long as they are in harmony with the costume which they are to be worn, they are not likely to go wrong in their decoration.

One of the salient features of the newest belts; and both those of silk and of silk are finished with beads and paillettes, and at the back a deep buckle that holds the belt to its full depth, while the front is much smaller and both that the back and the front are rounded as to fit the figure. There is a new model called the Paquin, which is a very wide and of soft leather which adjusts itself to the figure perfectly. This belt is usually dyed to match the costume; but the unfortunate part of the arrangement is that it must be made to order to be quite correct and all things made to order are extremely expensive as nothing but hand work is used upon them. Belts like the handles of the parasols are works of art; and no carving, metal work, enamelling, or any other form of decorative work may mention is too good for them. The white linen belts are liked for wear with the linen dresses or shirtwaists from the fine to the tailored blouse. In the case of the colored gown a shaped belt is often worn. A preference is shown for the beautiful silk ribbons that are so just now if you watch the markets for sales. All these belts may be made as beautiful as you please, or according to your preference with the needle.

than ever and both these and the slippers that come in white duck and linen are embroidered in many designs done in white floss and finished with a chic linen bow. Of course, it goes without saying by this time, that the white dress requires white shoes and stockings. The latter are growing more elaborate every day, embroidery, lace insets, ribbon work and fancy weaving are all used either separately or together. This elaboration does not apply to white stockings alone, those in other colors are tested in the same manner and one of the fads of the day is to embroider your own stockings, caused, no doubt, by the high price of those in the shops. For the woman whose foot will not allow of the wearing a white shoe there is the new black pump or Oxford tie which also comes in tan but are cut on a new and lower model. The Cuban heel is the favorite for the street, but is fully a half inch higher than formerly, of course, for the house the French heel is liked. The Gibson tie is a general favorite with the modish woman.

Little change is seen in gloves as yet, the great desirability being coolness as seen in the new opera-socks and silk palms that have been worn all the season. Kids are worn only on the most formal occasions just now. For travelling the Biarritz is much liked, which has a loose full wrist and no buttons.

The Bijou hood is the newest head gear wear for motoring. It is a veil, a hood, or a scarf, as you please, which may be changed from one to the other by the manipulation of a few cords. The weight is very little, yet it gives all the warmth needed.

Any woman with a little patience and dainty fingers and a pattern can easily make the new lingerie collars and cuffs that are now so fashionable but so expensive if bought in the shops. The only stitches that are needed are fagoting and a simple little stitch that looks like beading, but most of the work looks like over and over sewing. In one collar little squares are carefully hemmed then basted on a collar pattern, and around each square is sewn lace insertion and brought down in front to form a tab, on the top is run a frill of Valenciennes lace which also goes around the tab in front. After getting everything in place on the collar pattern of paper which should be the exact fit, sew the pieces together as you would in doing point lace. Others again are made with a shaped piece of white linen (or colored linen may be used) around which is a simple point lace pattern and finished with the point lace stitches. Again the centers of some of these collars are beautifully embroidered in blind embroidery before being finished with the lace and stitches.

Corset covers to wear under muslin or lingerie gowns are now made with an immense amount of work upon them. One of these little garments has a fitted back underarm gores which gives it an exact fit, but the front is full. The front is covered with inserts and motifs of Valenciennes lace, while about the neck is a frill of lace. Many of the new corset covers are made with a fitted girdle which helps to give the Princess skirt its nice adjustment. A number of pretty waists are made with full ruffles edged with lace across the bust, which is particularly suited to the full fastened in the back. Blind embroidery is used a great deal upon all underwaists which are fitted close to the figure without any fullness even at the neck. In this way the patterns is the better shown up. A pretty corset cover, with a seam under each arm, was scalloped around the square neck, armholes and down the front, and embroidered in a pattern of clover leaves and eyelet work, and buttonholes for an inch-wide ribbon to run through. A white suit was embroidered in this manner and run with ribbons.

Handkerchiefs have come under the sway of the lace rage and they are most beautifully decorated with frills, insertions, corner motifs, insets, and tiny medallions. One of the summer pastimes for the summer porch will be the making of these beautiful, airy creations which cost small fortunes in the shops. But so many patterns are now sold for their making, that every woman may have a few of them. There should be a half dozen with hemstitched borders and the monogram worked into one corner, others may have a narrow point lace pattern worked around the border, and still others may have little motifs set in the corners.

Another bit of fancy work that can be put to good use is Irish crochet lace which is really one with the old fashioned crochet stitches but with linen thread of that creamy tint that looks so much like the real Irish lace threads. Collars are made in this work and if you have a friend who learned this in her girlhood days, I am sure she will be able to show you some old patterns or invent some new ones. The collars and cuffs are usually made with section or small design sewn to the pattern, and some times fastened on together with coarse point lace stitches, while others are crocheted together. For underwear, linen dresses and aprons the crochet-work lace makes one of the prettiest and daintiest trimmings; but it needs to be done in very fine thread and of linen to make the best effect. A lace done in silk would be a handsome finish to the China silk corset covers now worn under the lawn, batists and organdy waists.

There is not much change in the new blouses. Sleeves still continue puffed to the elbows, or a little below and are worn without or with the deep gauntlet cuff. Nearly every waist except those of the tailored style are fastened down the back; this is to leave the front free for the beautiful embroidery designs and elaborate trimmings that are used upon them. All the sheer materials are most used and next to them the silks. Handkerchief linen leads, for it has been found that no material shows up the pattern so well as this, and on it are used all the different kinds of embroidery, such as blind, Danish cut work, and the new filled-work. But, batiste has been found to adapt itself to the liking for inset-work, and designs made for the new waists with open neck as well as the surplice waists have created a demand for fancy yokes, tuckets and chemisettes, while the short sleeves have made the gauntlet and cuff a necessity. Chemisettes are often made of tucked laws, linen or batiste in combination with rows of lace insertion. A tucked chiffon is also liked where the dress is of silk. Tuckets are made of embroidery batiste, handkerchief linen, baby Irish lace, and also by the patterns made from Valenciennes and all-over embroidery. In making these chemisettes be sure to have them long enough all round so they can be pinned down securely and kept in place, as those that are always bulging up are an eyesore to every one who care for tidiness.

COAL LANDS GRAFT

Thousands of Acres of Coal Lands Have Been Located on by Homestead Entry

Why go to Alaska, Tonopah or Dyke looking for gold when there's plenty of it right here in Baker county and within a stone's throw of the county court house, as you might say, says the Baker City Herald.

Intense excitement was created yesterday when it leaked out that for two weeks past Baker City people had been quietly investigating a well known camp in Mormon Basin some 35 or 40 miles from here and about half way between Durkee and Malheur county. Additional news was received Tuesday on the strength of which eight Baker City people, including Messrs. Platts, Nash and Wagner struck out for the new camp in a hurry in order to get their stakes up on the new ground.

The report is almost as sensational as was the finding of gold in California in 1849.

From the best information obtainable through the supply stores, principally the Basche-Sage Hardware company, it seems that close to King's mine in Mormon basin, which is reached through Durkee and the Rye valley camp, a 50-foot ledge of free-milling gold ore was opened up two or three weeks ago and has since been considerably developed. It is said that the ore averages between $600 and $1000 to the ton and that it is simply a world beater. Men working with a rastra can grind out $100 a day each on easy time. Besides the party that left here yesterday morning other are fitting out for the new camp, which may almost be said to lie in Baker City's dooryard. One thing is certain, the camp is close at home, easily investigated and many properties there already belong to Baker City and Sumpter people. It is possible to put these things together and make a Cripple Creek or Nome City out of this district interested parties are determined to do it.

Of Interest to Sick People.

We have all the sympathy in the world for sick people, and want to treat them in a serious way. There is no humor in pain and affliction, but hard earnest fact. It is impossible for the patient to impress on others the extent of suffering they endure, and their anxiety for relief. To get well or be relieved is their one thought. Any remedy that will bring this about has their everlasting gratitude. We have thousands of letters from people who have had dyspepsia, sick headache and bilious attacks, who tell us how thankful they were for having used Dr. Gunn's Improved Liver Pills. They are sold at all drug stores for 25c per box. Only one for a dose. These pills remove the cause of disease and make the skin clear and healthy looking.

Helping the Mayor.

Mayor Adam, of Buffalo, recently requested his fellow citizens to send in suggestions for the betterment of the Queen City. Here are a few of the replies, says the New York Sun:

"That the city buy and maintain a herd of 1000 goats, because there is no evidence of sickness in a family where a goat is."

"That a law be passed restraining hens to their own premises, because hens use the next door porch for a chicken run, but never lay eggs there."

"That all the city's electric lights be made 'to wink the hour, so that a man need not take his watch out in the winter.'"

"That it be a misdemeanor to leave a gate open, because it is bad luck to close a gate after anybody has left it open."

"That every citizen be compelled to plant a rose before his house to make the air sweet."

"That there be no brass street signs and that mirrors shall not be carted through the streets, because they reflect the sun into weak eyes."

"That there be daily parades in summer to amuse the children."

"That the city supply megaphones to street car conductors, so that deaf passengers may not be carried past their streets."
