

IN SOCIETY

The Recordings of the Social Set, for the Past Week

The past week has not been distinguished by many important events in the Salem society. A number of social affairs have kept those who were not sought refuge and recuperation at some of the resorts in the nearby mountains or sea shore, that have drawn so many away from the city and bustle of summer-time in the city. No formal affairs have been given, the tendency has been to get away from that, and picnics and parties hold full sway.

A few are coming back from the summer places, many complaining that Newport is too cold, but the city is socially very quiet, and from the beginning of the autumn season there will probably be a greater dearth of entertaining, as many people who have not yet left, will tie themselves to the hills or seashore, and recuperate for the busy round of gayeties which are sure to come this winter. Many society ladies have predicted that never before will Salem be so quiet as during the coming winter as the legislature will bring many distinguished people to our city, and a result will add materially to the social element.

At the Maples.

The Maples' enjoyable at all times, was the scene of unusual activities Thursday evening, when members of "Camp Maplene" were a "lamb chop" party. It was a happy informal affair, and a crowd of Salem people went over in launch and spent the evening with them. The camp is composed of A. Eaton and daughters, Misses Elsie and Harriett, and Miss Louise. After lamb chops were served over the coals, a big bon fire built and the remainder of the evening was spent in telling stories. Among those going over from town were Misses Beulah Myers, Mary and Editha Eckerlen, Bessie and Ella. Marie Hofer Bertha Eckerlen, Oliver Myers, Elmer Eddings, Editha Cross, Hal Patton and Col. E. Sider.

QUESTIONS OF DEPORTMENT NOT EASILY SOLVED

We are charged—and perhaps chargeable—in the present age of business with too little regard for the small details of deportment in the business relations. Woman's position in the field of the workers has given rise to much of this in the past. But having quieted complaint in this quarter, rather than asking the question for all time, other general question comes again. Are the amenities of social contact sufficiently preserved in the domain of business in its general deportment?

Unquestionably the answer is, No. At the same time the matter of this deportment on a comprehensive general scale involves so many incidents and individual factors in business and community relations that in all probability man never will be able to solve the question of the matter.

Deportment in its last analysis is a question of artificial disguise, of artificial etiquette in its fullest sense, its place in all human relations is one with the proposed universal language of Volapuk, which has been suggested and partly developed and executed as a conglomerate of languages which should serve any purpose whose spoken and written words should be incorporated in it. The distinct languages had been merged into it, the proposition was that any one speaking any one of the languages at once could make himself understood in written and spoken speech by any one or all representatives of the other nine languages.

But however coldly Volapuk was received and let die of inanition, the question in its broad lines is preserved as a limited common ground for all the civilized great nations. International diplomacy has done much to make and preserve this economic factor. Today a representative from ten nations, having no common word in common, might meet at a table without one giving offense to another in table manners. Why should a single nation within itself present its own impossible problems of deportment in business and community relations?

Deportment is etiquette in all its

Welch-Sprague Wedding.
A wedding of interest to Salemites was that of Mr. A. Welch, formerly manager of the Citizen's Light and Traction company of this city, but now a resident of Portland, to Miss Harriett B. Sprague, which took place Wednesday evening, in Portland. The bride is a popular young woman of that city and all who know Mr. Welch will attest to his many fine qualities and business ability.

They have gone to British Columbia for a ten days trip, after which they will return to Portland to reside.

Will Study in Berlin.

Two Salem girls will have European advantages in music this coming season. They are the two daughters of Superintendent J. F. Calbreath of this city, the Misses Helen and Evelene Calbreath. They are now arranging to leave soon for Berlin, where Miss Helen will take two years' course in instrumental music, and Miss Evelene will take violin music.

Both the young ladies are talented. Miss Calbreath has been dean of the college of music of the Willamette university for the past two years. She is a graduate of the Conservatory of Music at Nashville, Tenn., in 1899.

Miss Evelene graduated from the college of music this year.

Afternoon Party.

Miss Nellie Thielens entertained a few of her girl friends at a little informal party Thursday afternoon. Five Hundred and croquet were the amusements of the time. Those present were the Misses Mildred Bagley, Anna Pentland of The Dalles, Veda Cross, Marie Hofer, Elizabeth Halley, Genevieve Halley and Mrs. Fred Thielens.

Vacation at St. Paul's.

St. Paul's church will be closed, except for Sunday school, for the remainder of August. The Rev. Barr G. Lee and Mrs. Lee left this morning for Newport and Seal Rocks, where they will spend their vacation.

MRS. O. D. ROBINSON.
Every Woman in America Is Interested in This Woman's Experience.

HER HEALTH DESTROYED BY PELVIC CATARRH.

"Peruna has prolonged my life and made a new woman of me."—Mrs. O. D. Robinson.

Mrs. O. D. Robinson, 43 St. Felix St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I have taken Peruna and it did me more good than all my two years' treatment by special physicians."

"I can really say that I feel like another person. No more swollen feet and limbs. No more bloating of the abdomen. No more shortness of breath. No more stiff and sore joints. You have no idea what your treatment has done for me. It has prolonged my life and made a new woman of me."

"O, such a blessing I have received through your kindness, Doctor, and the assistance of the medicine which you so kindly prescribed."

"I am able to work since I began your treatment, but before I was not able to help myself, much less do any work. All praise is due to Dr. Hartman and his treatment."

places; that Marshall Field's department store is another.

The truth is that a senseless, empty sham etiquette is behind the hat removed in the public elevator anywhere. Given five or ten men in such an elevator, ready for the ascent, what right has any one of these men to remark the appearance of any woman by the removal of his hat? He kept it on when he overtook her in the entrance door and passed her, perhaps rudely; he will put the hat on again when he steps into the corridor of his particular floor, where a score of women may need to be crowded aside in order that he shall pass; in any public conveyance moving laterally—even to the omnibus which may have brought him and ten women to the entrance of the building—the hat never will be removed. But in the elevator in these certain prescribed buildings he will take off his derby or straw hat and stand crowded to the point of crushing merely because one possibly embarrassed woman is in the car!

Originally the act of removing the hat was one of servility or of profound obeisance. There is no act of civilized man expressive of so much—or so little—as the uncovering of the head. But as between this much and this little of uncovering, there is a wide field of possibility in community deportment.

In business and community relations in general the office of the hat is not well adapted to the needs of the American citizen. If a woman be the private secretary in the outer office, it is a question if even tipping the hat as a preface to a question from the male caller is in good taste. There are offices—as in the reception room for a suite of physician's offices—where removal of the hat generally is accepted by the waiting layman. But in these offices, in scores of city buildings, the uncovered layman may pick out most of the waiting physician callers merely in the boorish refusal of the professional to remove his hat!

What is business and community etiquette? Define it in even general details and we shall be able to mark the boor or the ignorant. But until this consistent law is framed in written English only a real gentility may find itself capable of consistent expression at all times and in all circumstances.

Fractured His Hip.

L. A. Byrd, a well-known citizen, 84 years old, was sitting in a chair on his lawn on Union street yesterday afternoon, and rose up to change his position, when he stumbled and fell to the ground. The fall broke his left hip. Owing to the advanced age of Mr. Byrd little hopes are entertained of his recovery. Mr. Byrd is the father of Dr. W. H. Byrd.

Construction Engine Arrives.

An engine purchased by the Willamette Valley Traction Company, to be used in the work of construction of the new road from this city to Portland, arrived in Salem yesterday afternoon, and was put to work this morning. Two ballasting wagons were also received here yesterday, and the pile driver is in operation at the site of the bridge over Mill creek. A number of teams were added to the work during the week, and Contractor Tiffany says there is no doubt that the line will be completed by the stipulated time, and that cars will be running to Chemsaw by the opening of the state fair.

Caught Under Derrick.

James Alderman, while working in the hay field at the Donohue place, in Polk county, five miles north of Salem, yesterday afternoon, was caught under a falling hay stacking derrick and sustained serious injuries. Several ribs were fractured, and it is feared that he is injured internally. He was removed to the Salem Hospital.

Her Little Mouth.

"Still dreaming of Miss Pechia, eh?" inquired Miss Knox.

"Yaas," replied Cholly Kallow. "Aw! that wosy mouth of hers. It fills my mind to the exclusion of all else."

"What a delicate compliment! But, is it really so small as all that?"

"A fool and his money are soon parted," remarked the man who comments on things. "That's right," replied Senator Badger. "But we have the satisfaction of knowing that a new one is born every minute." Milwaukee Sentinel.

SAFE AND BETTER

Never send money by mail. A bank draft is always safer; it is also better in other ways. We sell the drafts; they are good throughout the United States and Canada.
