GREAT CROWD ADMIRE THE FINE EXHIBIT

The Live Stock Showing the Best Ever Seen in the State, and Farm and Orchard Products Unequaled.

The greatest state fair in Oregon's history is now on. The rain Friday night put the roads in fine condition, and this was evidenced Sunday, by the crowd that visited the grounds. Early in the day the stream of humanity set fair-wards, and in the afternoon, automobiles and buggies, hacks, wagons and vehicles of every kind and degree were carrying their loads of live freight to the grounds. In the morning the streetcars were loaded, and in the afternoon those who did not get standing room before the cars left State street, unless they were "broke to lead," just stood at the crossings and received the haha of the wild young fry on the rear platform. Yet everybody, that is most everybody, was good natured, realizing that it was not expected by the company that the crowd of visitors would be on hand before Monday morning. The sound of the hammer, the swish of the saw, and busy people everywhere made one forget that it was Sunday, and the crowd almost made one believe the fair had really begun. "Beauty Lane," as the road from the gate to the platform might well be named, was thronged with the

BURIED ALIVE IN THE MUD

Tiflis, Russia, Sept. 10.—This city was overwhelmed by an avalanche of mud washed down from the mountain today. The township of Kwarell was practically obliterated, and about 250 were buried alive.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 10.—Three hundred lives were lost according to a late dispatch in the floods in the Kwarell district.

CITY OF TOPEKA STRIKES

San Francisco, Sept. 10.—The Pacific Coast Steamship Company's steamer City of Topeka, bound from Eureka to San Francisco, struck on the rocks at Point Arena early yesterday morning in a fog. Just before the accident the captain saw Point Arena light, and ordered the helm put over. The steamer struck a glancing blow, but succeeded in getting into open water, and headed for this port at full speed, with her pumps all going. She arrived shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The passengers were asleep at the time of the accident, and none of them knew that the steamer had struck until at the wharf. The steamer will be placed in the drydock today.

Opening the Packers' Trial.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 10.—The trial of the five packing corporations of this city, charged with violating the inter-state commerce regulations by securing rebates from the railroad companies, was opened this morning before Judge Humphreys. The court room was filled to overflowing with curious spectators, many of them lawyers. District Attorney Morrison, assisted by several prominent attorneys, represented the state, while the packers were represented by an imposing array of the best legal talent in the city. Several of the packers, who had cut short their summer trips for that purpose, were present in the court room, but they were not called upon to testify. The preliminaries of the trial will probably consume several days.

OUTRAGE JEWISH WOMEN

Brutal Russian Soldiers' Revel in Carnival of Crime

Warsaw, Poland, Sept. 10.—It is estimated today that at least 50 soldiers and 300 civilians, mostly Jews, have been killed in the last two days in the rioting at Siedlie, which still continues. Troopers captured and outraged hundreds of young Jewish women. There is a hegin of semitic people from this district fearing the reprisals of the troops will spread to this city. Orders have been received from St. Petersburg to suppress the terrorists at all costs.

Higgins Looks for Help.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Roosevelt and Higgins are in consultation today. The governor hopes to secure the President's endorsement for re-election. Paul Morton was here and took lunch with Higgins and the President. Theodore, Jr., arrived home this morning.

Looks Like Persecution.

Boise, Idaho, Sept. 10.—Steve Adams released on habeas corpus and rearrested, charged with the murder of Lyte Gregory, at Denver, in May, 1904, will not have his preliminary examination for two days, in order to permit an officer from Colorado to arrive.

No Hurry to Try Them.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Five of the indicted before the corporations are left for a hearing after the Humphreys immunity decision, and whose trial was set for this morning, were uncalled. The cases were continued indefinitely, but may be called at any time.

Poverty.

Poverty is very terrible and sometimes kills the very soul within us, but it is the north wind that lashes men into vikings; it is the soft, luscious south wind which lulls them to lotus dreams.—Ouida.

Too Many.

"And David had five kings before him," read the pastor. "Gosh!" exclaimed the man in the rear pew. "I'm glad David wasn't in the game last night."

Cambridge-Harvard Boat Race.

London, Sept. 8.—"They are off" was the yell that echoed from Putney bridge to Craven cottage when the signal shot was fired and like some huge and many-legged monster the two shells of Cambridge and Harvard broke from their leash and began toward Mortlake, beyond which the finish line is located. The old stone bridge at Putney, Hammersmith bidge, nearly two miles up the stream and all along the banks on both sides of the picturesque Thames hundreds of thousands of people were crowded together from early morning, patiently waiting for the great event of the day, the race between Cambridge and the crew from across the water.

The crowds were not a bit smaller or less enthusiastic than when the great varsity race between Cambridge and Oxford was rowed. Although the race today is not for the championship, but merely as a test of the superiority of the two contesting crews without reference to their past record, the race appealed to the sporting spirit of the Britons, who love a race or a fight for its own sake. The match between Cambridge and Harvard was arranged by R. C. Lehman and F. L. Higginson, Jr., who was captain of the Harvard university crews of 1899 and 1900 and who is now in England. The first offer was made by Harvard and the Cambridge men did not hesitate to accept the challenge and invite the Harvard crew to come over here for a race for the mere sport. This is the first time since August 1869 that an American university crew rowed against an English university crew in this country. In that year a four-oar crew from Harvard rowed against an Oxford crew over the same course of four miles and three furlongs. Harvard rowed a splendid race, but was beaten by a small margin. That event stirred up a great deal of interest on both sides of the ocean and it is safe to say that today's race will cause even greater interest.

As might have been expected the Americans now on a visit to England displayed great enthusiasm for Harvard from the moment the announcement was made that the race would take place. When the American crew arrived in Elgand, they were received like princes and only the absolute necessity of a strict diet and careful training prevented the American enthusiasts from putting their favorite crew completely out of condition for the race by dining and winning them to excess.

The Harvard crew worked hard and conscientiously ever since their arrival, the first week of August, but they are at a decided disadvantage against the Cambridge crew. In the first place the Cambridge men have been in training ever since the race in the spring, while the Harvard men were out of condition, when they arrived here. The difference in the climate, water and other conditions, also were against Harvard and, last, but not least, the character of the course over which the race was to be rowed.

At Putney bridge, where the race started, the river is about one hundred yards wide, with the boathouses of several of the Thames rowing clubs, including that of the famous Leanders, on the left bank and the palaces of the bishop of London on the right. For a stretch of nearly a mile the river is straight and then the first turn comes at Craven Point. Then comes another curver at Dung wharf, followed with another straight stretch to Hammersmith bridge, where the sharp horseshoe curve begins which continues to Chiswick. Then comes a slight double curve to the Barnes railroad bridge, where the last sharp curve of the course begins, which continues to the finishing line beyond Mortlake.

The two crews at today's races are made of as follows: Cambridge—Bow, G. D. Cochrane; No. 2, H. F. Benham; No. 3, H. M. Goldsmith; No. 4, M. Donaldson; No. 5, B. C. Johnstone; No. 6, R. V. Powell; No. 7, E. W. Powell; stroke, D. C. Stuart; coxswain, A. G. L. Hunt.

Harvard—Bow, R. M. Tappan; No. 2, S. W. Fish; No. 3, C. Morgan; No. 4, G. Glass; No. 5, J. Richardson; No. 6, R. L. Bacon; No. 7, D. A. Newhall; stroke, O. D. Filley; coxswain, F. M. Blagden.

TAFT OR FORAKER WHICH

Dayton, O., Sept. 10.—The forces of the factions of the Republicans are gathering today for the state convention tomorrow, upon the result of which Ohio's attitude towards the presidential aspirations of Taft and Foraker. It is said by Foraker that Dick will support Taft.

FIGHT DOWN IN MAINE

Portland, Me., Sept. 10.—The election in the state assumes national importance this year on account of labor's attack upon Congressman Littlefield, of the second district. United States Senator Frye's re-election is at stake, and Governor Cobb is a candidate to succeed himself. The polls will be open until 5 o'clock this afternoon. It is a fair day. Several days will be required to obtain results. The liquor question is a state issue. Maine is normally 20,000 Republican.

SOME CUBAN LIARS

Havana, Sept. 10.—An official bulletin claims the battle of Pinar del Rio yesterday was a government victory. General Avalos rescued the government train and defeated the rebels, the latter losing 300 men. Government forces are approaching to attack Pinar del Rio, which Guerra still holds.

Havana, Sept. 10.—The government's claim of victory is not substantiated. All reports indicate the rebels have the best of the situation at Pinar del Rio.

MOTIVES WERE PURE

St. Louis, Sept. 10.—Attorney-General Hadley today resumed the oil inquiry before a special commissioner. The case was a continuation of oyster proceedings against the Standard, Waters-Pearce and Republic Oil Companies. Pierce admitted the Standard holds 2746 shares of the Present Waters-Pearce Company, but pleaded his business motives were pure.
