BETTER REGISTER.

While it is cumbersome and troublesome, all citizens better go to the city hall and register for the coming city election.

Under the Primary Election law all civic elections in towns and cities of over 2,000 population must be conducted in accordance with the provisions of that law. Otherwise there can be no lawful election. The Grant's Pass election of last year was illegal and of no account.

If the city election this year is not held in conformity with the Primary Law it will be illegal, and the present council will be the council for next year by virtue of their power to act until their successors are legally elected.

MORE ELECTRIC LINES NEEDED.

The electric line that is building from Salem to Portland demonstrates the great value of such enterprises in the development of the country.

Hon. Alex La Follette, who bought a piece of land last spring at $65 an acre on the line of this road, has been offered an advance of $20 an acre on the same land.

All team labor and the price of fuel wood has advanced correspondingly.

Every acre offered on this fifty miles of line will be increased in value by the construction of this road.

Millions of dollars of new wealth will be created, and thousands of new homes will be built as a result of its construction.

Every such enterprise completed through the country means an advance in the wages of labor, means more and surer employment for all the people.

Similar and even greater results will follow the construction of electric lines to Mehama and Dallas, also thickly settled regions.

The Mehama line seems reasonably sure to be constructed, although there are still many obstacles to be overcome.

The Mehama line should be in operation in time for the Turner campaign next June.

It is estimated that at least thirty days more will be required to secure the right of way, when contracts will be let for ties and bridge material.

The Salem, Dallas and Falls City railroad will probably be a steam transportation system. It will tap the heaviest body of timber in the state. It will be a logging road and will make Salem a lumbering and manufacturing town.

With no political campaigns to disturb the people for two years, and a legislature that can do very little harm, people generally should unite their energies in these development enterprises.

THE HORSE EDITION KICKS.

A company manufacturing computing scales, with that charming ingenueness and diffident modesty for which every corporation trying to get a clench on the public is noted, demurely asks the Capital Journal

What age do you expect to reach—60 or 70 or 80?

If you live that long, there are likely to be some years at the latter end when you will not be able to earn a living for yourself and family.

A man's productive powers are curtailed, and usually cease entirely with old age. This makes him dependent for support upon his friends or the state, unless he has saved while younger.

Begin to save now during the productive years of your life. Open a savings account and deposit regularly a part of your earnings, which will keep you and yours in old age.

to jump onto any and all competitors of that company, as the old time writers would tell it, with both feet, pedes ambo, and assist in punishing these uncongenial people, persona non grata; and naively suggests that this paper prepare an ordinance, lex scriptae, forbidding the use of all scales not constructed exactly as those manufactured by the company in question. The company wants the dear public to have the worth of its money, tit-for-tat, a Roland for an Oliver, a quid pro quo, do ut facias; and that this family newspaper ($4 per year by mail) with pen and pencil, vi et armis, lambaste the city dadda, patres scripti, to a hard boiled finish, post item mortem, until said ordinance is passed.

All this is to be done just to show the management's heart is in the right place, ut pignus amicitiae, and for the fun of doing the other fellows up, pars adversa, and without the company putting up a dollar, sesterce drachma, denarius, shekel, scad, playunc, chink, dough, verdens longa, plunk, or in common every day Cayuse, "Wake potlach pascium dollar, Wake Chickamen."

The Journal will not do it. It doesn't care two cents about any old scales, except when the white robed goddess of justice goes to using hers as spectacles. The Journal has not the time, and the horse editor is busy annotating his last screed on the ethnology of the soul, which he has been invited to read at the annual meeting of the Society for the Moral Advancement of Depraved Insects, and how to Make Home Happy." The Journal won't play; it "reneges," quits, passes in the car. It always draws 22 at that game, while the other fellow catches a "natural." It cries enough, ad satisfactum, ad nauseam, ad astra per aspera, sine qua non, Erin go Bragh, shoo! skiddoo! Grr!

REMOVAL OF A GREAT INDUSTRY.

The following press dispatch is of unusual local interest.

HILLSBORO, Or., Oct. 2.—One of the largest realty deals ever made in Washington county was closed here yesterday, when the Oregon Nursery company, for years doing business in Marion county, paid out over $90,000 for farm and orchard lands three miles east of this city, involving over 900 acres of choice prairie, and all cleared.

The Oregon Nursery company is one of Oregon's big nursery institutions, and its coming to Hillsboro is an event in the city's commercial life that means much for the future. The company employs 200 men on the nursery, 150 men on the road, and an office force of 20 men. The company has other options here, which it will close as soon as the time expires. It is now planting 20 tons of peach pits and expects to follow the planting with the putting up of permanent buildings. M. McDonald, president, and A. McGill, secretary, yesterday paid the cash for the properties, and left for Salem.

What this community could have been thinking about to allow this grand industry to slip away without an effort to save it, is beyond our comprehension.

The purchase of that amount of land near Hillsboro will add to the value of every acre of land in Washington county. The employment of several hundred men will benefit Hillsboro immensely, and will stimulate the trade of every merchant and will result in building many new homes there.

An effort was made to adjust the differences between the Willamette University trustees and the Oregon Nursery company at the time the controversy arose over the lease of their plant in this city, but it was of no avail.

The nursery company had already put in the foundations for a large concrete cold storage plant, never doubting but what they would be allowed to carry on their operations here undisturbed.

When it is considered that we are not only losing the sale of a large tract of land, a large shipping business, the largest payroll the city had, a large daily addition to the Salem postoffice business, but the educational institution itself will lose students from these, hundreds of families, and Salem will lose the rent of scores of houses, and the business of a hundred families, the magnitude of this disaster will be apparent.

It should be said in justice to the university that it was not alone to blame for the removal of the Oregon Nursery company. The rest of the community is also to blame for letting it go.

Men like McDonald and McGill are not picked up and planted in a community every day. They do not grow on the bushes. They are men of great business ability, men who can organize great industries, and who can build up any community they go into.

Their removal should be a lesson to this community that it should profit by. The removal of such industries will cripple us if it is allowed to occur too often. The employment of common labor and of skilled labor is at the foundation of all our prosperity.

Churches, schools, merchants, professional men, all live from the products of toil, and the payroll is the rock on which prosperity is built. There is no permanent prosperity possible without payrolls. Let us all resolve to stand by the men who meet the payrolls and who are making bigger payrolls.

Salem should be looking around to build up some other big industry to take the place of the Oregon Nursery company. If we can get more electric railroads and increase the lumbering business here, that will accomplish the result.

POLITICS AND THEORIES.

(The Dallas Chronicle.)

The growing prohibition sentiment, the unpopularity of gambling and gamblers, the demand for public purity and honesty, all point to the subtle development of the finer moral sense of the people.

At this sounds well in oratory, but when we look back to New York, Pennsylvania and other states on the Atlantic coast, settled for centuries, and see the results of the development of the system, it is not encouraging to the patriotic minded. The greatest need for reform is in the habit of the public bleeding a man it names for office the moment he is nominated to the time he shakes the dust from his shoes. He is held up by the man with "influence," the wire-worker and the speechmaker. Even the churches do not hesitate to "strike" a candidate for a contribution to pay the preacher or build a new sanctuary, and in the instance of ambassadors, where the salary is a new sanctuary and in the instance hardly sufficient to pay house rent, the attraction of a political career to the young man of ability and integrity are not likely to pan out so gloriously as the perspective is often colored.

To say a man is a politician in this day and country is to apply a term of approbrium, when in reality it should be one of honor, and until times change the profession of politics has no attractive field in the United States of America to the man of honest genius and patriotic ambition.

X-RAYS

The Portland Telegram says "shake" to Seattle on the fact that the former raised $650,000 and the latter $1981 the same day. The Telegram evidently thinks that the contributions are about equal, considering the localities.

If Taft gets onto a cigar box lid, he will make something smoke.

The President, in his speech today, says: "In Pennsylvania many Old World races have mingled their blood to make the new type, the American." In the light of the foreign element in the coal mines of that state, the statement is not flattering to Americans.

It is somewhat pathetic as well as amusing to see a woman chase a street car, when the car is not contagious.

A man named Spencer stole five bicycles from a Jap in Portland a few days ago. The only thing strange about this item is that it does not state whether any of the bikes got away.

WORRY AND OVERWORK

THE CAUSE OF MANY CASES OF DEBILITY.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restore Health and Spirits.

How Building up the Blood Strengthens the Nerves and Makes People Cheerful and Vigorous.

General debility is caused by mental or physical overwork with imperfect assimilation of nourishment, or by some acute disease from which the vital forces have been prostrated and the entire organism weakened so as not to easily rally. To restore health it is necessary that the blood should be purified and made new. This Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do. They actually make rich, new blood, which goes to all parts of the body. They are the most logical remedy and best tonic for all diseases of the blood and nerves.

The case of Mrs. E. M. Spears, of 92 Mt. Pleasant street, Athol, Mass., is a common one, and is given here in order that others may be benefited by her experience. She says: "I had been sick for a year from indigestion and general debility brought on by overwork and worry. I had tried many remedies, but found no relief. I suffered from swelling of the limbs, loss of appetite and dizzy spells, which became so severe towards night, that I sometimes fainted away. I was bilious and my hands and arms would go to sleep for an hour or two at a time. I was so sleepy all the time that I could hardly keep awake. I had frequent cramps in my limbs and severe pains at the base of my head and in my back. My blood was impoverished. I was afraid to give up and go to bed fearing that I would never get well."

"About this time Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended to me by a friend in South Mernon, Vt. I felt better soon after beginning the treatment and continued until I was entirely cured. I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a grand medicine for weak women."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure general and nervous debility because they make new blood. They strike at the root of these and other blood diseases, such as rheumatism, anaemia, indigestion and nervous troubles, such as neuralgia, nervousness and spinal weakness. They are guaranteed to be free from opiates or any harmful drugs.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.
