ELEPHANT CHARGED HUNTERS

A Thrilling Experience in Malayan Forest.

I took a steady aim at the last vertebra at the nape of its neck, expecting the bullet to smash its backbone and perhaps to rake into its brain, writes G. Maxwell in the Temple Bar, describing an elephant hunt in the Malay peninsula. I fired and all was still.

Peering under the smoke of my ten bore, I saw the animal lying motionless. I waited a few seconds, and then looked around toward the two Malays. The week before, shooting in the Kuantan valley I had killed a finer tusker elephant with a single bullet in the brain. This made two consecutive elephants with two consecutive bullets, and the second of them was this famous Blat elephant. Trying to conceal my emotion, I backed to the men to come up, saying that the elephant was dead. But "dead" had barely crossed my lips when there was a rending of the rattans, and before I could move the elephant was charging straight at me.

A second before it had been lying on the ground with all four feet stretched out, and with, I believed, a bullet in its brain. An elephant cannot spring to its feet, and a tame animal generally takes some time to rise. The suddenness of this charge may, therefore, appear exaggerated. I can only say that was standing within a few yards of the animal and was not aware of any interval of time between its lying silent on the ground and its charging me. I saw the green rattans tearing asunder to right and left away from an enormous brown head—a trunk tightly coiled up and a pair of huge gleaming tusks. It was up high in the air and right above me—imminent as a wave that curls before it breaks. With my second barrel I fired into the center of the enormous brown chest, the head being so high and so close that it was covered by the tightly coiled trunk, and then with an empty rifle I turned and ran down the track up which we had come. The elephant was only a few yards behind me, and I ran for life.

Before I had gone more than 15 or 20 yards I tripped and fell heavily to the ground, my rifle being flung from my hand. Death seemed certain and I could only hope that it would be painless. But to my intense surprise the elephant had not followed me. Looking over my shoulder I saw it standing under the great dead tree from underneath which I had fired both shots. I picked myself up and, not daring to wait to get my rifle, which had been thrown into a thicket by my fall, raced down the path again and hid behind the first convenient tree. From this point of comparative safety I saw the elephant still standing under the dead tree. It was fumbling dizzily with its trunk in the heavy smoke of the black powder—fumbling to find me. The blood was pouring from the wound in its chest in great throbbing jets, and the bright green undergrowth was drenched with heavy red.

After a few seconds the great brute began to scream with rage and pain. How it screamed! As the numbness caused by the shock of the first bullet wore off the pain of the wound and of the second bullet in its chest drove it to frenzied madness. It trampled over the ground, which was already besmeared with its blood, and with trunk outstretched and ears thrust forward in every direction for its assailant.

After a time—it may have been only a few minutes, but it seemed like hours—weakened by the loss of blood and convinced perhaps of the futility of its search, it moved slowly away.

Long afterwards it was found dead.

Board Bill Law Invalid.

Ritzville, Wash., Oct. 10.—"It is just as reasonable to send a man to jail for neglecting to pay for a pound of sugar as for failing to pay a board bill," was the comment made by Judge W. T. Warren in the district court today in declaring the "law regulating liability of inkeeper, an act for the protection of hotels, boarding houses and lodging houses and providing penalty for violation thereof," was unconstitutional and no conviction could be secured under its provisions.

"This law is intended to provide for imprisonment for debt," said Judge Warren, "which is in violation of the constitution of the state of Washington and the constitution of the United States."

A Real Sensible Negro.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Daniel Francis, a negro murderer, whose execution was set for Friday of this week, has issued an appeal to his attorney and friends to cease their efforts to have his sentence commuted. In his communication Francis says:

"I am a bad man. I am ready, willing and anxious to be hanged. The world will be better for getting rid of me. I killed my wife and another woman with absolutely no provocation. I am only too glad to take what I ought to get. I have made the best amends to God I know how to make."

Francis was convicted on a charge of murdering his wife and Mrs. Emily Seroggs. He also shot his daughter, but only wounded her slightly.

The Best Doctor.

Rev. B. C. Horton, Sulphur Springs, Tex., writes, July 19, 1902: "I have used in my family Ballard's Snow Liniment and Horehound Syrup, and they have proved certainly satisfactory. The liniment is the best we have ever used for headache and pains. The cough syrup has been our doctor for the last 3 years."

GREAT LAKE IS FORMING

Will Eventually Cover 2000 Square Miles and May Change Climate

Washington, Oct. 10.—Who is responsible for the creation of the Salton Sea in Southern California, which already covers an area of 400 square miles and threatens to spread over 2000 square miles, if some means of diverting the Colorado river cannot be devised?

This question is perplexing Mexican and American diplomats, but for the time being diplomatic representations have been suspended, and both the United States and Mexico are bending every effort to check the river, which has been accidentally turned from its course through the efforts of the California Development Company to irrigate land in Northern Mexico and Southern California.

Interesting complications of an international nature are threatened when the two governments attempt to settle their differences and make good the damage which has been brought by diverting the Colorado from its old channel. The California Development Company originally tapped the river below Yuma, Ariz., and carried water from Arizona into and back into a great valley in Mexico and back into a great valley in Southern California. In 1904 it was found that this canal was inadequate to supply the water required for the irrigation project, and a Mexican corporation, controlled by the California Development Company was authorized by Mexico to take water from the Colorado in Mexico. The irrigation canal was only one-fourth of a mile from the river at the point in Mexico where a ditch was cut through the sandy bank of the river connecting with the great irrigation canal. No gates were provided, and when the Colorado river was diverted from its channel, it cut away its bank and went raging into the lowlands in California far below sea level.

Towns Below the Surface.

Repeated attempts have been made to turn the river back into the old channel, but without success. Again and again the Southern Pacific railroad has been compelled to move its tracks, which ran through the Salton sink, and have been forced onto the foothills surrounding the great basin, which is being converted into a sea. Several small towns are now beneath the waters which the Colorado has poured into the basin, and in many places only the tops of the telegraph poles indicate where the roadbed formerly was. In the lowest part of the sink the water is now 70 feet deep. For a time the water from the Colorado raised the sea at the rate of six inches a day, and it has been estimated that, granting the failure of engineers to check the river in 40 years, all the basin located beneath the main course of the Colorado will be covered with water.

Like Great Lakes of Canada.

A part of the basin is in Mexico, and a failure to control the river would give this country and Mexico a lake comparable to the great lakes separating the United States and Canada. At present the lake is greater than any body of water wholly within the United States except Salt Lake and Lake Michigan. The Mexican company, to which permission was granted to take water out of the Colorado in Mexico was merely created in Mexico to assist the California Development Company in making a success of an irrigation project, which was a partial failure when water was taken from the Colorado in Arizona. Most of the land to be irrigated was in the United States, and the Mexican government had comparatively little to gain from the concession granted to the irrigation company.

Treaties Call for Open Stream.

International complications have followed, growing out of the fact that the Colorado shall be maintained as a navigable stream, which is not now the case because it has been completely diverted from the Gulf of California into the great sink. Expert engineers are struggling to control the flow of waters, and the Southern Pacific railroad, whose property is suffering greatly, is co-operating with the Mexican and American government engineers in an effort to construct another channel with flood gates, into which the

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health is Worth Saving and Some Salem People Know How to Save It.

Many Salem people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill-health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is the statement of a Salem citizen who has reclaimed good health by the use of this remedy:

F. Pratt, proprietor of the Red Front Livery Stable, 268 Front St., Salem, Oregon, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are a remedy of exceptional merit and their value deserves to be known to all in need of a remedy for backache or kidney trouble. I had suffered from a deranged state of the kidneys and heavy aching through my back and loins, when I went to Dr. Stone's drug store for a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills. I received prompt and effective relief almost from the first dose and in a short time I was in such good condition that I didn't feel any further necessity to use them or any such remedy of the kind."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

A Boon to the Bilious

Are you compelled to deny yourself many wholesome foods because you think they make you bilious? Do you know that your condition is more to blame than the foods? Your liver and stomach need attention more than the diet. When you find yourself suffering with a bilious attack, take and all annoying symptoms will soon disappear. They settle the stomach, regulate the liver and exercise the bowels. Their good effects are felt immediately.

Beecham's Pills mingle with the contents of the stomach and make easy work of digestion. The nourishing properties of the food are then readily assimilated and the residue carried off without irritating the intestines or clogging the bowels.

Beecham's Pills should be taken whenever there is sick headache, furred tongue, constipation, sallow skin or any symptoms that indicate an inactive liver.

INDIAN WAS HELD PRISONER

Chemawa Authorities Attempted to Pull off a Shotgun Wedding

After being held virtually a prisoner since the graduation exercises in July, the authorities of the Salem Indian Training school, at Chemawa, have released Asa D. Bagnell, a full-blooded young Klamath Indian graduate of the school. He was let go yesterday evening, and permitted to return to the lodges and tepees of his people.

The alleged imprisonment was an attempt on the part of the school authorities to coerce young Bagnell into a marriage with Mabel McKay, an 18-year-old Indian student, to whose delinquency Bagnell was accused of contributing.

Judge Delos Woodruff, of Curry county, guardian of the Bagnell heirs, made a formal demand for the release of Bagnell, and is said to be now on his way to Salem to enforce his written request for the boy's liberty. Carson & Cannon, attorneys of this city, were employed by the Indian's relatives, and they threatened to secure the boy's release on habeas corpus proceedings. These legal steps culminated in the boy being given a ticket home.

However, the authorities purchased the boy a ticket by way of Portland and the Pacific ocean, a route that will consume more than a week, while his guardian is coming into Salem by the direct railroad route. In this way the Indian and Judge Woodruff, his guardian, will be kept apart for another ten days, at least.

In the meantime, the boy made several unsuccessful attempts to escape. At one time he got as far as Kelso, Washington, where he was overtaken by the school authorities and brought back to the school.

The condition of the McKay girl was said to have been discovered in August, and she was sent to her home at Woodburn, and from that time Bagnell was kept under surveillance.

Young Bagnell stoutly maintains his innocence, and says that a young white man connected with the institution is the cause of the girl's deception, and for that reason Bagnell has been refused a trial before a civil tribunal.

The authorities of the school have some kind of a written confession signed by Asa Bagnell. He claims that it was procured under duress, and is not true. Bagnell is 19 years old, and the legal jurisdiction of the school over him ceased July 30th.

Assistant Superintendent Campbell said this morning that he expelled Bagnell from the school yesterday, but admitted that he had no jurisdiction over him since July, and that instead of expelling him, he released him from surveillance, and purchased him a ticket home.

Mr. Campbell also said that he tried to make the girl's father take legal action in the matter, but that he refused to do so.

It is rumored that the girl does not attribute her betrayal to the Indian, but to a young white man.

Mr. Campbell admitted that the boy had his diploma, and that he had been restrained illegally. On the other hand, the Indian school authorities are the guardians of the girl, as she has not yet been graduated or expelled. As such, they could have recourse to the civil authorities and compel the young Indian to make any legal restitution.

Mr. Campbell says, as far as the school authorities are concerned, the incident is closed.

The authorities say they still hold Bagnell's confession and an intercepted love letter from Bagnell to the McKay girl. For what purpose these documents are being kept, as the incident is closed, is not known, unless it is for the defense of some one else the girl may accuse.

The persistence efforts of Asa Bagnell to escape from the Indian school do not comprise all the elopements from that institution in the past few weeks. Another runaway is Zinka Colby, aged 24, who is said to be booked for expulsion when apprehended, and who is rumored to be charged with admitting boy students into McBride hall, the girl's dormitory; Mary McDaniel, who has been returned; Albert Auberry, aged 23; William Booth, aged 21; Paul Derrick, aged 22. These last three were brought back to the school last Friday and are Alaska Indians. Other recent runaways are Frank Garbort, of Susanville, Cal., and Minnie Plute, of Plumas county, Cal.

Women as Well as Men Are Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the discourages and lessens ambition; vigor and energy soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. Kidney trouble becomes so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. It is child urinates too often, if the urine is the flesh, or if, when the child reaches age when it should be able to control its passage, it is yet afflicted with bedwetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized.
