

ANNOUNCEMENT

To our many friends and customers: We wish to announce that today we have sold our grocery store to the Moir Grocery Company, for whom we bespeak the same kind treatment that has always been shown us.

We take this means of thanking you for your very liberal patronage during the past five years.

We now intend to devote all our time and energy to our confectionery and bakery departments, and hope to be able to serve you in a more efficient manner than in the past.

Yours truly,

Saved His Life.

J. W. Davenport, Wingo, Ky., writes, June 14, 1902: "I want to tell you I believe Ballard's Snow Liniment saved my life. I was under the treatment of two doctors, and they told me one of my lungs was entirely gone, and the other badly affected. I also had a lump on my side. I don't think that I could have lived over two months longer. I was induced by a friend to try Ballard's Snow Liniment. The first application gave me great relief; two 50 cent bottles cured me sound and well.

It is a wonderful medicine and I recommend it to suffering humanity. Sold by D. J. Fry's drug store.

DRAMATIC ENDING OF TRIAL

A Girl Suing for Reputation Gives Tangible Evidence of Her Own Guilt

There was a hiatus in the circuit court this morning. Court continued the damage suit of Mrs. Lucy Anderson against Earl Aupperle, because of the sudden confinement of Valantha Thurman, the plaintiff's granddaughter. Miss Thurman is at a private residence on High street, and the advent into this vale of sin, sorrow and shame of the tangible evidence of her love affair is hourly expected.

Mrs. Anderson, who is the girl's guardian, as well as her grandmother, brought suit against Aupperle for $10,000 damages, alleged to be due on account of the loss of the girl's reputation, the loss of her work at home, and the care incident on her condition.

The defendant denies every allegation in the complaint and sets up the additional defense that the girl was not wholly discreet, anyway.

Mrs. Anderson is represented by John J. Jeffrey and Charles E. Lennon, and the defendant has for counsel Weatherford & Wyatt, of Albany, and Carson & Cannon, of this city. The trial was begun yesterday, and Mrs. Anderson gave her testimony. The Thurman girl went on the stand and gave her direct testimony last night, but the cross-examination was not concluded when court adjourned.

Then the climax came. Miss Thurman got sick, and the stork has been hovering over her boarding house ever since.

In court this morning, when the situation became known, Judge Burnett suggested that the records show that Miss Thurman became confined while in the midst of cross-examination, and that the jury be discharged and a new trial ordered for the next term of court. This order was made and the jury discharged.

The evidence so far does not reflect much credit on the character of the girl. Her grandmother said that she had often contemplated sending her to the Boys' and Girls' home, or some such institution for her waywardness, and the girl admitted things that are not usually permissible in polite society.

A local character, who is well acquainted with all the parties to the suit, has diagnosed the case in this way. It is said that another young man at Jefferson is vitally interested in the affair, and that his father interested himself in getting a competent attorney, who is a specialist in this kind of litigation.

All this would be quite a thrilling and sensational story, if the program had been carried out faithfully. But it was not. The stork stretched out his white wings and flew to Jefferson. Miss Thurman also went to Jefferson on the 11 o'clock train. Her grandmother accompanied her. All the witnesses and the defendant, and his father and friends also went. Jefferson, from this time on, will be the stage of action. Dr. Hawk, who cuts quite an important figure in the matter, also went to Jefferson.

Dr. Hawk sat up all night with the Thurman girl, and predicted the coming of the stork this afternoon. Of course this event may be delayed, but it is only a question of hours. Miss Thurman became angry yesterday afternoon on the witness stand, and made admissions that were damaging to the case. It is believed that she felt that she would be asked other embarrassing questions today that she could not answer without prejudice to her cause, and that she preferred to sham an illness that was not real. It is generally believed that the case will never come to trial.

All of the events in this matter tend to show that it is useful for a lawyer and jurist to add a complete knowledge of obstetrics to his equipment on medical jurisprudence.

Motion to Vacate Order.

The Aupperle-Thurman damage case is full of surprises. After the stork took his departure this morning, without accomplishing anything, affidavits were prepared, and, on the convening of court this afternoon, John A. Carson moved that the journal postponing the trial until the next term of court be not signed, and that the order allowing a new trial be vacated. Mr. Carson said he did not desire to make charges, but that the court had been grossly deceived regarding the condition of the Thurman girl. He supported the motion by an affidavit signed by H. J. Bigger, who saw the girl walk to the depot and wheel her grandmother in an invalid chair, just an hour after her physician said she was in confinement.

A. M. Cannon submitted a motion that Dr. Hawk be held in contempt of court for falsely representing the girl's condition, and said that he had a telephone message from Jefferson that the girl got off the train there, and walked home unassisted, and carried a heavy valise.

It is probable that the arguments of counsel on the motions will be made this afternoon.

Carson & Cannon designate the action of the plaintiff in this matter as being a desperate attempt to secure a continuation of the case, and to keep the girl from being cross-examined.

Will Meet Friday.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church will meet at the home of Mrs. Purdy, 930 Mill street, Friday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock.

REQUEST LABOR LEGISLATION.

Department of Labor and Statistics Wrestling With Problem of Additional Labor Legislation.

The department of labor and statistics has received requests from a number of labor unions asking for additional legislation on a number of subjects. Among the requests are the following proposed laws:

A law regulating the maximum hours that trainmen can be allowed to be on duty without rest and sleep.
A law preventing the railroad companies who handle train orders more than 10 hours each 24 hours, and to allow none under 18 years of age to perform that work.

A law compelling adequate fenders for street cars, and to have aisles in center of open cars.

A law requiring the Union Label on all public printing.

A law prohibiting convicts competing with free labor. One union suggests that they be set to work building state roads.

A law abolishing boarding house licenses.

An eight-hour law for all labor.

A law making the age limit in the child labor law from 14 to 16 years.

A law extending the 10-hour law for females to include all female workers.

A law such as exists in Eastern cities, compelling the carrying of a solid false floor beneath the men working on steel buildings, for the protection of the men and the public that may be near.

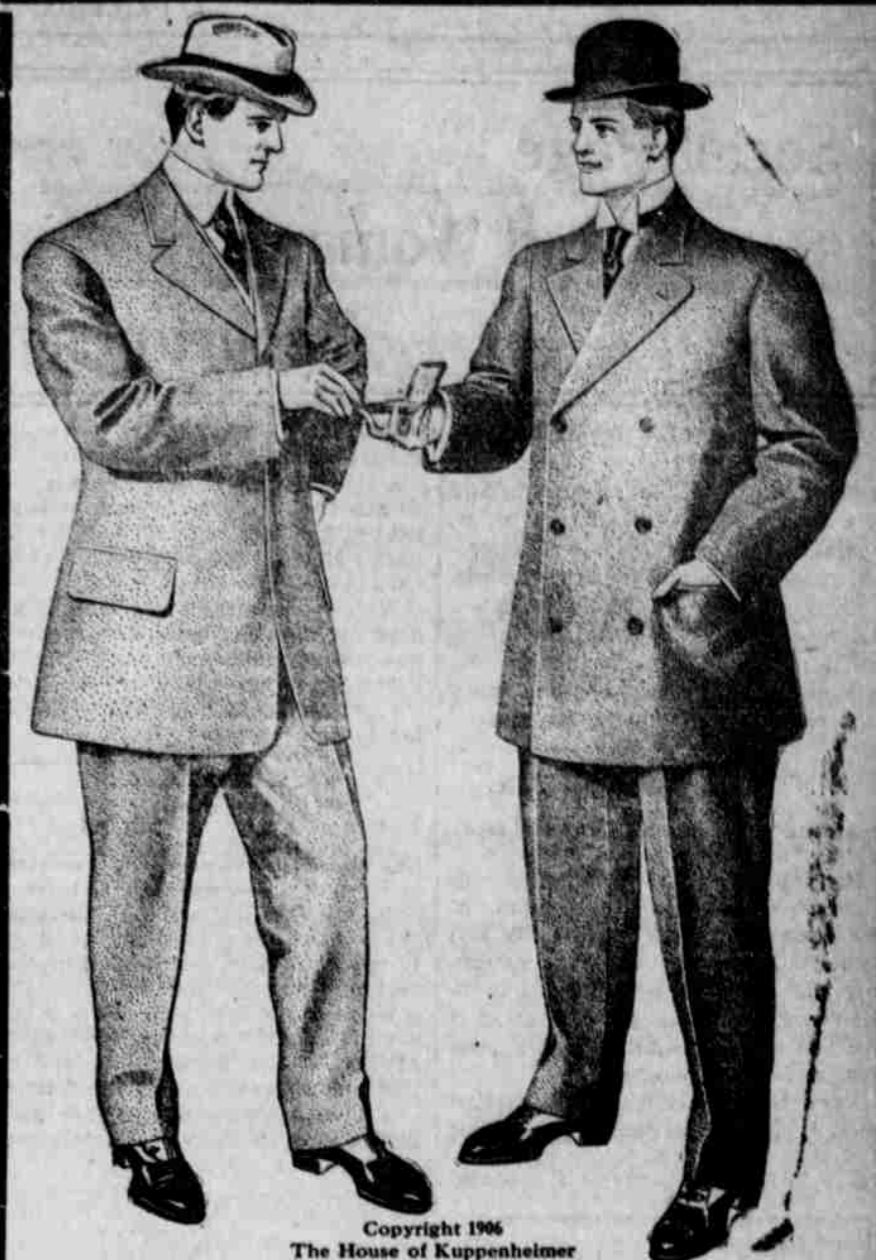

A law regulating boiler inspection, and putting a practical boiler-maker to do the work.

A law making corporations responsible for carelessness of their foremen and sub-foremen.

A law calling for an arbitration board to settle all labor troubles.

What One of the State Bank is Doing (Jefferson Review.)

The Oregon State bank has been in the habit of keeping open until 5 or 6 o'clock, or even 8 p. m., to accommodate patrons, but owing to rapidly increasing business it will hereafter be compelled to open at 9 a. m., and close promptly at 4 p. m., to keep up with its book work. An idea of its increasing business may be formed from the fact that its deposits for September, 1906, were over $15,000 in excess of those of September, 1905. Our people realize the value of a good bank in this city and show their appreciation by giving it a patronage that is very satisfactory to the stockholders.

Brief, But Successful.

"Comanche Pete's career on the stage was short."

"Yes; it lasted only one night. Pete was too realistic. In the gambling scene in the third act he drew his own six-shooter, cocked it and insisted that the game must be played with real money. He won every blamed cent the old man had, including the box receipts for the evening, slid out of the theater through the back door and they never saw him again."—Chicago Tribune.
