CITY PRIMARY NOMINEES

fatal to errors. City Recorder Moore is all around the man for the place. Not but what others might fill these places just as well, or even better, possibly, but, as city administrations go, they are men not easily duplicated in their respective positions. The public revenues are accounted for to a penny, and the character and integrity of the city finances are safeguarded.

For City Mayor.

For the head of the Republican ticket two very well qualified aspirants are in the field, W. C. Hubbard and Geo. F. Rodgers. Mr. Hubbard was county judge and has been in the city council, and knows the duties of the office pretty well. He is a careful, conservative business man, who has made a competency, mostly by farming, and has a neat little cottage home on Twelfth street. He has the leisure to attend to the duties of the office, having an income from his farm that more than keeps him. He is a member of the Elks Club, and drives his automobile when the roads are good. Geo. F. Rodgers was state binder, and is at the head of the Rodgers Paper Company, and president of the Business Men's League. He has been active in the support of street improvements, and is outspoken in his demand for progressive policies. Mr. Rodgers' aggressively pushes whatever he takes hold of, and, after serving a short term in the legislature, would have plenty of time to attend to the duties of the office of mayor. Both aspirants would give the office a great deal of time and attention, and are well equipped for its duties.

For City Marshal.

This office is the bone of contention among city politicians, and yet among the three gentlemen who are aspirants there is very little choice. Any of the three would be ambitious to fill the office well. They are all three men of some natural ability for the place. Mr. Gibson has the record he made under three terms of the Citizens' administration and a long service in police duties, and has a reputation as a fearless officer. The same is true of John Knight, who, as sheriff for two terms, and as Republican county chairman, has a good record in office and for loyal Republicanism that is above reproach. His friends know where to find him politically at all times. Mr. Longcor has made a good night policeman, and through a trying time of accusation bore himself in a dignified manner, and was sustained by his friends. He is a man who has worked his way up with very little assistance, and under adverse circumstances. There are citizens who have objections to all three of these candidates, and who will reserve the right to bring out still another candidate after the primaries are held, but this applies to some of the other candidates now before people.

Candidates for Aldermen.

In the first ward Wm. Waldo is up for nomination, without opposition. He is an old and honored citizen who was once elected county judge, but, after seeing what he was up against, resigned and was succeeded by Hon. T. L. Davidson, appointed by Governor Penney. He has the time and ability to attend to the duties of alderman, and would do it well.

In the first ward two first-class business men are after the nomination, Hon. A. N. Gilbert and Col. J. L. Stockton. Mr. Gilbert was in the legislature several times, was postmaster two terms, and superintendent of the state prison under the Lord administration, serving with credit to himself and friends in each position. He has made himself independent in worldly goods, and has the time and ability to serve the city well, and he has the inclination. Col. Stockton has made a success of his business, has purchased a beautiful home near the state house, and is a wide-awake citizen. As mayor of Independence he put that city on a cash basis by floating a popular loan. He has the courage of his convictions, and has expressed himself unqualifiedly for public improvements of a substantial and permanent character. Stockton will be found to be figuring closely in the interest of the city on all occasions, and would make more than an average city father.

In the third and fourth wards there are no opposing candidates, Gideon Stolz and Abe Frazier running by common consent as the best men that can be found. Both are sterling business men, who are public-spirited and progressive, and careful and conscientious in all their relations with the public. If the city can get the time and services of men of their character and ability it should always avail itself of the opportunity to secure them.

In the fifth ward Joe Smith, of the Capital Improvement Company and J. F. Goode, the auctioneer, are competing candidates. Both are first-class men, who have the good of the city at heart, who are favorable to improvement, and who would look closely after the interests of the city on all occasions. They would see to it that the money paid by the people of that ward would leak back into it in the form of improvements, and the chances are that they would get more for the ward than its share, but that ward could stand it, and either one of them will make a good alderman.

In the sixth ward Mr. Churchill, who held over on a tie vote last year, is the Republican candidate for the short term, while Wm. Lansing is the Democratic or Independent candidate for the same place, hence there will be no contest on this place until the election, when these two excellent gentlemen will settle the matter at the polls. In the south end of the ward Mr. Skafie, the present alderman, and Isadore Greenbaum, both good business men, are candidates for the long term.

In the seventh ward three aspirants want the place, and they are all competent men for the place, public-spirited and progressive men. In the order of age D. D. Keeler comes first: He is county stock inspector, is a prominent worker among the friends, and has a long record of faithful public service. Amos Vass was for many years foreman in saw-mills, and is now in business for himself under the firm of Mills & Vass, and is classed among the most careful and successful business men of the city. Henry S. Ratcliff is the candidate of the younger men, and represents the east side of the ward, on the ground that it has never had an alderman, and is entitled to representation. Mr. Ratcliff is a real estate dealer, and has built a number of new cottages in the Yew Park district.

The registration books are open all the day and evenings, and will be closed Friday evening at 5 p. m. The polls for the primary election will be open Saturday from noon until 7 p. m., at the usual polling places in each ward.

PIONEER RANCHER DIES.

H. T. Mills, of Hubbard, Died at Portland Yesterday.

H. L. Mills, a pioneer rancher of Hubbard, Oregon, and a veteran of the Civil War, died at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning at St. Vincent's hospital, Portland, after an illness extending over two months.

Mr. Mills was a veteran of the civil war and served more than four years as a member of the Fiftieth New York engineering corps. He was wounded at the battle of Spottsylvania in a skirmish run, and while at the hospital in his last sickness coughed up a buckshot that he had carried in his lungs for 40 years.

Mr. Mills was 74 years of age, having been born in New York, February 8, 1832. He was twice married, first in New York in 1854 and again in South Dakota in 1866.

He came to Oregon in 1876 and settled at Hubbard, where he resided continuously until his death. He leaves, besides his widow, the following children, all of whom were at his bedside when death came: Mrs. W. B. Palmer, Bourne, Oregon; C. E. Mills, Cairo, Illinois; Fred L. Mills, Irrigon, Oregon; Forest E. Mills, H. L. Mills, Jr., and Mrs. Elva Blosser, Hubbard. Another son was Clarence W. Mills, who was one of the boys of the Second Oregon infantry who yielded their lives in the Philippines.

The remains were removed to Hubbard yesterday, and the funeral will occur at that place Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

TO BEAT THE RECORD.

Nevada Mines Are Bringing the State Into Prominence.

"The little rotten borough," as the Oregonian used to always call Nevada, is coming to the front again as the greatest mining state in the union, the greatest mining country in the world. Tonopah, Goldfield, Manhattan are names to juggle with, and to recall the old days on the "Comstock," when the stocks made and unmade millionaires so fast that one could not keep track of them. The stock market has been doing some good stunts in the last few days. Mohawk, a Tonopah mine, has run up from $3.85 to $14 in a week, and has grown from a 30-cent proposition in less than a year. It reminds one of the old Comstock's antics, when, for instance, Con. Virginia went from nothing to $960, Sierra Nevada from a minus quantity to $358. Hundreds of new camps have been described as "second Comstocks," but none of them have materialized. Nevada gives promise, at Goldfield, of equaling if she does not surpass the record made by her on the Comstock.

COMING IN BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

Jessie Busley Who Is Nance Olden Will Arrive Tomorrow

The coming of Jessie Busley in "In the Bishop's Carriage" to the Grand opera house Friday evening has awakened considerable interest among people of a psychological bent, owing to the sharp discussion recently instigated by Miriam Michelson's clever book story of criminology from a woman's standpoint—the standpoint of a girl who is criminal by environment rather than by nature.

The novelty of the theme has created an unusual amount of comment, both on the part of reviewers who have perused the book and critics who have viewed the dramatization. Opinion in general has been of a diversified nature, ranging from the most enthusiastic encomiums of praise for the production as a whole to a rather critical analysis of the plot and theme, in which exception has been taken to the choosing of members of criminal classes for prominent characters. But where one critic has condemned the motif a hundred ministers have come to the rescue, asserting that the moral of the story was the redemption of a lamb which has strayed from the secure fold of respectable society.

Mr. Pollock's task in making a stage version of the book has been far from a sinecure. The work of adapting a popular novel to stage use brings almost certain disappointment to a large share of the book's admirers, who have formed ideals of the characters impossible of realization behind the footlights. The only salvation is to put on a play strong enough in itself to command attention and chain interest. Owing to the controversy which has arisen and the many suggestions Mr. Pollock was able to receive from those interested in the fascinating study of criminology, the characterization of the role of Nance Olden, as portrayed by Miss Busley, is as nearly faultless as human ingenuity and brains can contrive to make it.

LABORING UNDER A DELUSION

Label Marion County Products from California and They Sell Better.

As a matter of fact better grapes are grown in Marion county than can be shipped in here from California. Do the Salem people know this? It would seem that they do not. Splendid white grapes are grown in this county and are brought into Salem each morning and are sold to retail dealers. The dealers believing that the people like to be fooled, label these California grapes and they are readily sold at a good price. The buyer is really getting a better article than if his grocer was an honest man, but this tends to show that Marion county does not look after her own interests.

Marion county apples are being shipped to Hood River, packed into Hood River boxes and sent east as Hood River fruit; Marion county grapes are sold in the city of Salem as California grapes and the people who buy do not yet know that the Marion county product is ahead of the California article in size, appearance and flavor.

It is suggested that buyers of grapes and apples should insist on their dealers furnishing them with the home grown variety and this false branding to the detriment of the growers of the valley will stop.

DOING IMMENSE TRAFFIC

Salem-Portland Electric Line Between Salem and Chemawa Busy

The new electric line between this city and Portland, six miles of which has been in operation since the middle of September, is already doing a heavy passenger business. As soon as the cars were running between Salem and the Indian training school at Chemawa, the cars were fairly packed with passengers between the two points. This passenger traffic is by no means confined to the attaches of the school, but large numbers of people living along the line and in the vicinity of Chemawa come into Salem to do shopping much oftener than before. On Sundays and on nights when there are plays at the theaters and other attractions in the city, the road does a land office business. The late afternoon and early evening trains are loaded with people carrying packages and the business already brought to this city by the road is perceptible to the merchants.

Work on the remainder of the line is being pushed forward with all possible rapidity. The track has been completed as far as Lake Labish and the grading gangs are daily moving on towards the metropolis. A large force of men are kept at work on the big bridge over the Willamette river at Wilsonville and there is scarcely any doubt that this immense structure will be completed by next summer and probably before.

Foreman Tiffany said this morning that he believed that all the road would be ready to be placed in operation as soon as the Wilsonville bridge was completed. This means that electric cars will be in operation between this city and Portland by next Fourth of July.

PLAYED HALLOWEEN PRANKS.

The usual Halloween pranks were perpetrated last night by young America in Salem. For the most part the jokes were good-natured, and showed that the Salem boys are just boys, and not hoodlums. So far as has been ascertained all the lost gates have been discovered and the signs that were transferred from one place of business to another have caused no one any serious discomfort.

Adolph Gueffroy, a sophomore in the high school, came out with a little the worst of it. He was one of a party on the way to an entertainment at the house of Miss Martha Schindler. When about half way, a gang of high school seniors waylaid him and took his trousers. It was part of the original plan to exchange a pair of overalls for the trousers, but, before the exchange could be made, the seniors became frightened and ran away. They became rattled, and took both the overalls and trousers with them, and left Adolph shivering in the frosty night. It is said that some good Samaritan contributed a barrel, and he wended his way homeward in an original package, stored in wood.

A hive of bees, in good working order, that was left on the steps of the high school, caused some consternation this morning, although a wagon in the same place did not cause much anxiety.

RUNNING FULL BLAST.

Salem Mutual Cannery Will Be in Operation Three More Weeks.

The big plant of the Salem Mutual Cannery company is still running full blast and will continue to put up canned apples for three more weeks yet at the same rapid rate. All the time during the apple season the cannery has been running full capacity of the cannery. At present the plant takes care of the fruit as fast as it is received and for a week it has not been found necessary to ship any to Portland. The management believes that the season will close in about three weeks.
