King Corn Threatened.

Now comes Dr. Wiley, of the United States department of agriculture, and tells the farmer of the United States what may set them to thinking, for he says under the conditions to be found in most of the lowlands of the countries which stretch from the United States 5000 miles southeastward, yuca yields from 16,000 to 60,000 pounds of roots to the acre yearly, and about one-fifth of that may be made into food fit for mankind. That should give 3200 to 12,000 pounds more than the average crop of corn furnishes. But what is this yuca which is likely to become so formidable a rival of our king corn?
 Yet, strange as it may appear, this rival to corn grows quite as well as corn, and gives a generous supply of flour, even so far north and as far back from the tempering gulf stream as a line through the middle of North Carolina and the gulf states. In all that region bordering the warm water, including all of Florida, yuca gives 14 to 24 thousand pounds of roots to the acre in the year, and the flour or starch, with the other elements they carry, are not so far in value from those in potatoes and the grains commonly used as food.

Notice of Supplementary Articles.

Know all men by these present: That pursuant to lawful authority given therefor by unanimous vote of the stockholders of the Pacific Railway and Navigation Company, the directors of the Pacific Railway and Navigation Company did on the 13th day of November, 1906, adopt supplementary articles of incorporation for the following object, to-wit: To enlarge the powers of the corporation and vest it with authority to build, construct or otherwise acquire, maintain, use, operate and lease the following lines of railway, to-wit:
 First: A line from Buxton in Washington county, Oregon to Tillamook in Tillamook county, Oregon.
 Second: A branch line from a convenient point on the line mentioned in paragraph one, to a point at or near Nehalem Bay.
 Third: A line from Newport in Lincoln county, Oregon, to Astoria, in Clatsop county, Oregon, following the line of the coast or such other route near the coast as shall be found to be most practical and convenient.
 This notice is published pursuant to instruction given by the board of directors of the corporation on the 12th of November, 1906.
