Oregonian, Nov. 26: A new printvices into virtues. Civilization ing plant for the new state printer, not mean sanctification; it Willis S. Duniway, in the capital in Salem, will take the place of the present plant, owned by Frank C. Baker, ex-state printer, and will be operated on and after Duniway's assumption of the office, January 14, 1907. Negotiations for the sale of the old plant to Duniway were considered by the two parties for some time, but it is understood that a price could not be agreed on. Baker says that should the legislature put Duniway on salary, he will give the old plant to the state.

Two new presses will arrive for Duniway's plant early next month, and two are alread; on hand. Type and other accessories have been ordered, which will bring the total cost up to between $12,000 and $14,000. The new machinery will be installed Meier & Frank's representative came before January 14, so that Duniway will be ready to turn out the legis- man & King were on hand to put up ture's printing on the very first day.

Bert E Haney and H's Bride Have a Strenuous House Warming

Profiting by the annoyance to hich Rev. Clarence True Wilson vas subjected a few months ago, some friends of Deputy District Attorney Bert E. Haney, who has just returned from a wedding tour, and who has taken up his residence with his bride in a cozy east side cortage, decided yesterday to give him a taste of what he may expect on the prosy

The racket began early and lasted nearly all day. The first intimation Haney had that anything out of the ordinary was occurring was about 7 o'clock in the morning. when he was awakened by a tremendous din in the basement. With thoughts of burglars filling his mind he timidly ventured below in his see a blg husky plumber knocking things right and left with a sledge-

"What does all this mean?" he demanded in astonishment.

"It means that I intend to find that blooming leak in your pipe if I have to knock the whole house down," was the cheerful answer, as another section of the wall went by continued the plumber, we have instructions to repair a water main in the basement, and to come early and do the job without wakening the inmates-them's our orders, young feller, so you had better trot back to bed and get in out of the cold."

After much expostulation Hanes convinced the man that somebody had imposed on him and the plumber went away, giving expression to certain phrases which can only be interpreted properly by a master plumber.

It was merely the beginning of the trouble, however, and before nightfall Haney's patience had been subjected to a severe test. Bill Storey's coal wagon drove up with a ton of anthracite and the driver proceeded to dump it in the back yard. While "My New Secret Bemedy Quickly Haney was remonstrating with him. the Banfield-Veysey out of sight before a junk dealer rang the doorbell and in a businesslike way inquired where the empty bottles could be found.

"What empty bottles?" gasped

"Why, somebody telephoned for us to come here and get 14 dozen empty beer bottles that had been left by the fellows that moved out," growled the junkman. "Said we could have the away."

A procession of delivery wagons followed the departure of the junkman. Lipman, Wolfe & Co, sent a man out to hang lace curtains; panies were there at the same time to put in telephones; the roof of the bouse was covered with carpenters hunting for an imaginary leak; several beer-wagons drove up at the same time and each proceeded to insurance agent showed up at the front door to write a policy on the

The day following Thanksgiving a farmers' institute will convene at Macleay. The program is very interesting and will cover dairying, draft horses, sheep and goats, cattle, fruit culture, the problems of grain raising, soil fertility, etc.

Besides the above there will be some addresses upon legislative matters of interest to the farmer, interspersed with songs and recitations.

Everybody is invited to bring a lunch basket and stay all day. The Grange will furnish plenty of hot coffee free.
