

SOCIETY

Happenings of Interest on the Gay Side of Life in the Capital City.

SOCIETY the word means much to some, nothing to others and indifferent on the part of a great many more, but there is a great many more who are interested. The word in itself means a good many things. In speaking of it, Webster says "Society" is the relationship of men to one another when associated in any way; companionship; fellowship; company; specifically, the more cultivated portion of any community in its social relations and influences; those who mutually give and receive formal entertainments. Byron, the poet, said:

There is society where none intrudes
By the deep sea, and music in its roar.

'Tis quite true, but there is yet another society, that is better still, and that is the congregating of one's true friends at your home, and the enjoyment of being, where their talk music and laughter. One grows stale, morose and forgetful when left to themselves, and it is the getting out together and the gay side of life, that makes one happy. There is yet another kind of society, and this is the kind that some women sell themselves for. They turn themselves into gay butterflies and waste their lives frittering away the time just to be called a member of "the 400," and all for "Society," which they bow down to as a god. Salem is, however, free from this last class of society, and the pleasure loving people enjoy a great deal of happy festivity. Salem is noted for its pleasant social events, and hospitality of its citizens.

The new year was celebrated quietly throughout the city. The Houston-Babcock parties have been the leading event of the week.

The new year will be gay, as the opening of the legislature is near at hand, when hundreds of visitors from all parts of the state will be here, and will naturally receive a good deal of social attention. The Legislative ball, as usual, will be an event to be looked forward to. The Illibee club reception to the legislature is booked for about January 11.

Houston-Babcock Parties.

Notable among the week's social events, have been two delightful parties at the Houston home on South Commercial street which have been attended by large numbers of society people. Thursday afternoon Mrs. R. B. Houston and Mrs. W. P. Babcock were the hostesses at a "500" party. Despite the exceeding inclemency of the day there were over forty ladies present, and once in the beautifully lighted and decorated rooms, one forgot the rain outside. The decorating was of a Christmas and holiday nature, mistletoe, holly and ivy predominating. The drawing rooms were extremely pretty, the walls being festooned with the ivy, while the ceiling was encircled with red ribbon, held in place with Oregon grape leaves, a decidedly original scheme. An immense bunch of mistletoe was suspended in the archway between the rooms, while handsome potted ferns and plants added much to the beauty. The red and green color scheme was carried out in the rooms, the den, being especially effective, where a very large Christmas bell was hung in the center of the room, and quantities of greenery was used. The hostesses were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. J. N. Smith, Misses Eileen Fawk, Sibyl Elliott, of Eugene, Mayme Babcock and Effie Needham. Miss Floy Houston received the guests at the door. The prizes, dainty souvenir spoons, were won by Miss Callista Moore and Mrs. Sherman Thompson.

A dainty luncheon was served at the close of the game. Friday evening a large number were entertained at "500," Mr. and Mrs. Houston and Mr. and Mrs. Babcock being the hosts and hostesses. The prizes were won by Dr. T. C. Smith, Jr., and Mrs. F. K. Lovell. Eugene Houston opened the door for the guests and Misses Effie Needham, Floy Houston, Sibyl Elliott and Mrs. E. Frank Douglas and Mrs. J. N. Smith assisted in entertaining and serving.

The grand march at 8 o'clock was led by William H. Prunk and Miss Anna Swartz. The "Peerless" orchestra furnished the music for the occasion.

Four prizes were awarded, the fortunate ones being Mr. William H. Prunk (sailor), first gentleman's, an umbrella; Miss Anna Swartz (napping girl), first lady's, water set; Mr. Phil Woods, second gentleman's, a toy goat; Miss _____, second lady's, a baby elephant.

Tom Holman presided at the punch bowl during the evening. The affair was highly successful and the boys are now planning another, which will be a "hard times" ball, given January 24. The floor managers at the ball Monday night were: Paul Aufranc, Elmer Giles, Ernest Haas and Jasper Longcore.

House Warming.
A number of young people of South Salem spent a pleasant evening Wednesday at the new home of Rev. Alfred, which is nearly completed. The time was spent playing games, and ended in a genuine old-fashioned "taffy pull."

Women of Woodcraft.
Silver Bell Circle, Women of Woodcraft, entertained the Women of the World and a number of visiting ladies from Albany Friday evening at their hall in the Holman block, and a large number were in attendance. After the usual sessions of both lodges, the two lodges adjourned to the men's hall, where a banquet was served on small tete-a-tete tables. Mrs. F. G. Bowersox was chairman of the refreshment committee, and she was assisted in serving by a number of the ladies of the team. During the progress of the banquet a musical program was enjoyed. Mrs. M. E. Holcomb and Mrs. A. L. Harvey were on the program committee. Among the numbers were a violin solo by Gaynell Baldwin, accompanied by Miss Vera Kitchen on the piano; vocal solos by Mrs. C. W. Simon, Miss Marguerite Montgomery and little Fay Hutchins, and several numbers by a ladies' quartet, composed of Mrs. Hutchins, Miss Mabel Magness, Miss Martha Schindler and Miss Marie Hutchins.

The lodge was to have had a number of the state officers present, and a delegation from Albany, but owing to the high water they did not arrive, with the exception of six ladies from Magnolia Circle, No. 23, of Albany, Mrs. E. E. Warford, Mrs. Edna Warner, Mrs. Clara Hand, Mrs. Lola Junkin, Mrs. Candance McChestney and Mrs. Mary Munkers.

The club feels that it is doing some good work in securing such noted attractions, and the members who have not been attending in the past should bestir themselves and attend the meetings, and help in the good work that is being done. Salem should feel proud of its club, and every woman belonging to it should feel proud that she is a member.

A Great Rural Play.
Any play that can attract an audience of intelligent people of a size to tax the capacity of the big New York Academy of Music, that can play upon the heart-strings of humanity without a discordant note, that can compel the tribute of tears and again of the heartiest and healthiest sort of laughter, certainly must possess merits in abundance and, when it is clean surely is deserving of praise and words of commendation put into type where those who run may read as well as those who read and take more time to think.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer" succeeds upon the stage because it is full of heart touches, because it possesses the power to grip, as with hooks of steel, upon the affections and when the play does there is small use in hunting for technical flaws.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer" fills its mission completely. That work seems to be the entertaining of big audiences, judging by its record of last season and by indications at the Academy. The houses have been crowded in every city and that those present are mightily pleased is clearly evident from the enthusiasm frequently shown, amounting in every instance to several curtain calls.

The spectators' pleasure is manifested in other ways than by enthusiasm in the form of handclapping and after all by the strongest kind of approval — that quiet, intense satisfaction that finds solace, contentment and approbation in simply keeping still and permitting the act or speech to sink deeply into one's very nature — an effect not so often reached in the theater as to be very familiar.

This piece is handsomely produced. The scenery is new and bright, the properties abundant and appropriate, and the company as large and competent as could be wished. At the Grand opera house, Monday night.
